A French book, written upon Parchment by a French hand; and in the second page of the first spare Leaf bearing this more modern Title,

"Histoire du Roy d'Angleterre Richard II. traictant particulièrement la Rebellion de ses Subjects, et Prinse de la Personne, &c. composée par un Gentilhomme François de Marque, qui fuit à la Suite du dict Roy, avecq permission du Roy de France."

Hors la Librairie de Monsieur le Comte de Maine, comme il appert folio ultimo verso de sa main propre.

Concerning this Book, I take leave farther to observe, That this History is written, for the most part in French Verse; beginning at the 25th of April 1399. when the Author was desired by a Man of Quality to accompany him into England; and ending upon the delivering up of the young Queen of England, Widow of K. Richard II. to the Commissioners of her Father the French King.

That the Note at the end of the Book abovementioned, is this, "Ce Livre de la Prinse du Roy Richard d'Angleterre, est a Monseigneur Charles-Damon, Conte du Maine, et de Mortaigne, et Gouverneur de Languedoc. Charles."

That John Stow hath taken very much from this Author, even verbatim in a manner, without making any mention of him: and that Raphael Holinghead hath also borrowed some light of him, for which he citeth a French Pamphlet, or Poem, in the Possession of Doctor John Dee; which perhaps, may be this very Book.

That the History is illustrated with sixteen Pictures: wherein the persons, and especially the habits of that age or time, are well represented: which might have been of good use to Seignor Antonio Verrio in his representing the triumphant Entry of Edward the Black Prince (in St. Georges Hall at Windsor Castle) & have prevented his arming & dressing our English People à la Romaine; which was little less absurd than his representing, in the same Picture (wherein I will now find no more faults) the said Prince carried on the shoulders of naked men, when as History faith, (vid. Froissart, Cap. 173.) "The French Kynge rode throughe Londone on a whyte Courser well apparelled, & the Prince on a lytell black Hobby by him."

Num. 1319-1323.

1320.

Codex membranaceus in fol. minori, quo continetur, Polychronicon Ranulphi ygdæ Monachi Cestrensis; usq; ad mortem R. Edwardi III. continuatum. Notandum verò, quædam Polychronici, cum nonnullis Continuationis, folia, ante penultimum, desiderari.

1321.

A parchment-Book in small folio, written in old French Verse; wherein I find,

1. Le Roman de Roland, ou de Charlemagne. This wants the beginning. 1.

2. L'Estoire dou vaillant Conte Aimeri; by the Author of the former. 35. b.

3. L'Estoire dou vaillant Conte Aimeri; Et dit comment 200 gualees de Sarrazins vindrent a Narbonne. 118.

This may belong to the former, although it be separated from it.

4. L'Estoire dou Conte Aymeri; & deuse coummant il donna Narbone a son filleul, et ala en Elpaigne four Sarraïns pour acroître la Loy Chrestienne. 134.

This is still the History of the same man, Almeric Earl of Narbonne.

13. A briefe Discourse upon the Commission of Bridewell: written by Sir Frauncis Bacon, Knight, whose Opinion was, that the Proceedings in Bridewell (London) upon the Acculation of Whores, taken by the Governors of Brydewell aforesaid, are not sufficient to call any Man to answer, by any Warrant by them made, without Indictment, or other Matter of Record, accordinge to the old Law of the Land.

14. A breiffe Discourse, or a Defence, for the Alteration of England to the Name of Great Brittainne.

15. The Case of Humphry Stafford Esq. attainted of High Treason, in the first of Henry vii.

Herein the Subject of Sanctuaries is taken into consideration.

16. The Office of meafuring all manner of Coles, Grayne, Corne, & Salte; laden or unladen, in or out of any Shipp or Vessell; in or upon, or by the Sea-Rodes, Saite & Fresh Waters; and in all places at Land, by or near the Sea-Shore, where any Coales, Grayne, Corne, or Salte, shall be found to be carried or laden, into or out of any Shipp, Vessell, &c. except the Cinque Portes.

This is a Law-Argument concerninge the King's Power to grant the said Office, with Fees.

17. A breiffe Discours; or a true Relation of the Embassie of Marshall Bassompierre Lord of Barre, Ambassadour Extraordinarye ffrom his Christyan Majestie of France, unto Kinge Charles his Majesty of England; concerninge the breach of certayne Contracts of the Treatyes of Peace & Amitye. CAT. HARL. VOL. II.

Num. 1338.—1340.

Therefore some learned Men were appointed to compare all that had been written on it; & out of all the Transcripts of the MSS. of Fathers & Councils, to gather together whatsoever did strengthen it. Several of these MSS. I have seen. One is in Mr. (Richard) Smith's Library, where are the Quotations of the Fathers, Counsellors, Schoolmen, & Canonists written out at length: which I take to be this very Book; and take leave to add farther concerning it, that by the adorning the Cover, with the Rose & Crown, with Fleurs de Lis thereon (not to mention the plainness of the Hand-writing) it should seem to have been done for the King himself. My Lord goes on and says, 'There are three other such MSS. in the Cotton Library; of which, One (Otho. c. 10) contains a large Vindication of these Authorities from some Exceptions made to them. Another (ibidem) is an Answer to the Bishop of Rochester's Book for the Queen's Cause, A third (Vespas. B. 5.) digests the matter into twelve Articles,—and these are there enlarged on, and proved. But all these, & many more were summed up in a short Book & printed first in Latine, then in English, with the Determinations of the Universities before it.'

Whether his Lordship, by these printed Books meant, that entitled, "Italia ac Gallicæ Academicarum Censuræ de ducendo Relictam Fratris mortui, London, 1530." and another printed at London 1552. and whether the present MS. be contained in them, or either of them; or only an Abstract of it, (not having those Books ready) I cannot now enquire.

It may be also noted, that although the Determinations or Censures abovementioned are but eight in Number; yet the Prologue to the Treatise immediately following them, mentioneth TEN: for it beginneth thus, "Hæc hic, candide Lector, Censuræ ac Decreta, quæ decem Illustrissime ac omnium quas habet Ecclesiæ Christiana maxime celebres Academicæ." — Two therefore are wanting, which, whether they might be those of Oxford & Cambridge, or of other Foreign Universities, I cannot now tell.

2. Alphabetical Table of Surnames; at the end.

An Heraldical Book in 4to, rudely tricked & written; It containeth,

1. The Achievements of most of the Earls of England; the last being Hay Earl of Carlisle, with the Arms quartered by divers of them.
2. Here are besides, the Badges antiently used by Percy Earl of Northumberland; Stanley; Somerset Earl of Worcester; Clifford; & Ratcliff Earl of Suffex.

1362. A Book

Num. 1362-1364.

1362.

A Book in 4to, written & painted by the hand of Jacob Chaloner the Arms-Painter. It containeth,

The Arms of the Nobility of Ireland, with Notes touching their Creations; done A.D. 1629. or about that time. The Method is somewhat singular: For after the Earls, he putteth the Barons, before the Viscounts.

A Book in 4to, falsely entituled, the Visitation of Norfolk, made 1563. by William Hervy, Clarenceux; but really containeth,

1. Part of a Pedegree, laboured for the Family of Cavendish. (the 3 first being wanting.) 4.
2. Notes illustrating the History of the Family of Ogle. 5. b.

3. Like Notes touching the Family of Carnaby. 6. b.
4. Like Notes concerning the Family of Basset. 7.
5. Notes touching the Family of Aldibley, or Audley. 8.

6. English Translation of an old Deed of William Vilers; on whose Seal, he is represented as a Knight on Horseback armed with Sword & Shield, and a Tabard over his Armor. 8. b.

7. Descent of Derham, copied from Hervy's Visitation-Book of Norfolk. 10.

8. Arms of divers old Families, with their Matches; seeming to have been found in some Church Window. 11.

9. Epitaphs in Sanderton-Church in Com. Surr. 11. b.

10. Pedegree of Cavendish continued into the Family of Talbot, & so to Howard & Pierpoint. 12.

11. Descent of John Balliol, & Robert Brus Kings of Scots, from David Earl of Huntingdon brother to William, & son of Alexander, Kings of Scotland. 16.

12. List of some of the English Nobility, temp. Edw. II. (out of Cowpers History.) 16. b.

13. Descendants from the Lady Anne de Bretagne, wife to Lewis XII. of France. 18.

14. Arms of the Norfolk Gentry (perhaps from Clarenceux Hervy's Visitation, of A.D. 1563.) 20. 44.

15. Descent & Arms of Cottrell of South-Reppes. 39.

16. Arms, with the Descendants from the great Sir Ralph Sadler. 39. b.

17. Descent & Arms of Atkins of Norwich. 42.

18. Descent & Arms of Beckham of Norfolk. 43.

19. More Arms of Norfolk-Families. (vid. supra N° 14.) 44.

20. Arms of Townesend, & Earle; added to the former. 48.

21. Descents and Arms of Jervis, Kemp, Baker, Norgate, Northgate, Topcliffe & Hill. 48. b.

22. Arms of Downes of Bodney in Com. Norff. 52. b.

23. Descent of Parker of Honnings in Com. Norff. 54.

24. Pedegree of Davy of Norfolk, as set forth by John Philipott Somerset, A.D. 1636. inserted into this Book, between fol. 55. & 56.

25. Alphabetical Table of the Surnames of Families herein mentioned. At the end.

An Heraldical Book in 4to, written by different hands; wherein are contained,

1. The Names of the Marshalls of England since the Conquest, to Anno 1577. 1.

2. Arms, given by Christopher Barker als Garter, Knight, (with some other auncient Armes) who died the 2d day of Januarie being Thursday, &c. A.D. 1557. copied out of an old Booke somtyme William Colbornes York-Herald; and of late tyme Rafe Brookes York-Herald, now in the custodie of Sir Edward Deringe, Knight & Barronet. 2.

Num. 1364.

These Arms are described in French Blazon; and room is left all along for expressing the same in trick. 2.

3. Notes relating to the Families of Howard, Scates, & Bardolf, taken in the Church of Garboldesham in Com. Norf. A.D. 1607. 65.

4. Notes touching divers Earls Marshalls of England, extracted from the public Records. 67.

5. Arms of Malyart, both tricked, & in French-Blazon. 68.

Turning to the other end of the Book, I find,

6. Some Geometrical Rudiments, for Learners. 7.

7. A Tract to which this Title is prefixed, "This Monument briefly conteyneth sundry auncient Remembrances of Armes, Genealogies, and other Notes of Gentilitie belonging to the worshipful Names and Families of Picrot or Picot; that came out of Normandie with Duke William, at the Conquest of England; and hath flourished in divers Provinces of this Kingdome even to our age; being in contract of Tyme dispersed into multiplicitie of Houses, advanced by younger Brethren through Militarie Service, Civil Desert, or Preference of Marriages; as both by the varietie of their differenced Markes, as also the succeeding Pedegree appeareth. Collected from the Records of the Tower, with other Registers and Evidences: lately confirmed by the Heralds Bookes of Visitation; and some of our Common Histories or Chronicle of this Realme." 3.

The History of Pigot seemeth to have been drawn up, temp. Elizab. Regina, & perhaps in Latin: this Tract seemeth to be only an Extract from it; and the Arms & Pictures therein are done in half. 3.

8. Thinne als Botvill, his Crest. 20. b.

This Crest is a Rain-Deer, the Horns whereof are here pretty truly tricked. It may be noted, that the Horns of this Beast, are seldom accurately represented either by Painters, or Gravers; an instance of whole carelessness may be this, The Right Honble. the Lord Viscount Weymouth (still living A.D. 1712.) was Envoy Extraordinary in Sweden, A.D. 1667. where he bought the Horns of some of those Creatures, which were afterwards sett up in the Hall of Long Leat, his Lordship's principal Seat: and yet when I was there, all his Lordship's Plate, that I saw, with respect to the Horns in his Lordship's Crest & Supporters, was erroneously engraven.

9. A loose Paper, containing a Note touching the Matches of the Daughters & Coheires of Sr. Robert Itchingham; one of whom was married to Worfeley, & after to Sr. Fra. Walsingham, by whom he had a daughter first married to Sr. Philip Sydney, & then to the great Earl of Essex. Another was married to Wroughton, whose daughter was wife to Sir John Thynne of Long-Leat, whose son Mr. Charles Thynne wrote this Paper: inserted at fol. 20.

10. Of the Descendants from John Bothvile of Stratton de Com. Salop. surnamed otherwise John le Thymne, 21 E. 4. related, by marriage, to Pigot; with the Arms of Bothvile, Thynne, &c. 21.

Perhaps this may yet be a part of the precedent Account of the Family of Pigot.

As to the Note about Thynne; authority seems to be quoted in these words, "The first part of this Note is found in the Evidence of Stratton in Stratton-dale aforesaid." Perhaps such Evidence may be in my Lord Weymouth's Evidence-Room at Long-Leat: now I remember that when I was there, near 3 years ago, I saw in a fragment of some Rental, mention of Roger de le lüne,

Num. 1364, 1365.

Inne, as holding a Tenement (I think called the Hethe) in Stretton, in Com. Salop. ann. 17 R. Hen. vii. which Tenement was then said to have been ever since that time in my Lord's Family: and I believe his Lordship is also Lord of that Mannor

11. Some other Notes relating to Pigot: perhaps belonging to the Tract abovementioned. 21. b.
12. A laboured Pedegree of Pigot, with Arms; which seems also to belong to the same Tract. 22.

Then follow a Collection of Pedegrees, namely of Digby, & of other Families allied to them; which seem to have been copied from some large Pedegree, or History of that Family; they are, 13. Pedegree of Digby of Tilton, &c. deduced to Kenelm Digby, A.D. 1636. 31.

14. Pedegree of Digby of Coleshull, Baron of Geashull, in Ireland. 34. b.

1365.

A Book in 4to, which by another now in the possession of William Shires Painter-Stainer of Southwark; as also by the Book N^o 1465, seemeth to have been written by Thomas Chaloner Arms-Painter in Chester. It containeth,

1. Arms (as it seems) Quartered by Laurence Bretghe of Bretghe-holt, in Blazon, in the first blank Leaf.

2. Arms (as it seems) of William Grafton, the former owner of this Book; in Colors. In the same fol. b.

Then follow Copies of divers small Alphabets in Blazon, viz.

3. One, seeming to have been transcribed from some old Book: wherein, besides the Arms of divers antient English Families; are Arms attributed to King Arthur, Godfrey of Boloigne, St. Alban, &c. 1.

4. Another seeming not to be of any particular County of England; but of some English Families, with a sprinkling of Irish among them. 22. b.

Num. 1365-1367.

5. Another, not seeming to be confined to any particular County. 34. b.

6. Another, of the like sort, unconfin'd. 73.

7. Another shorter Alphabet. 116.

8. Another (still unconfin'd to any County. 131.

9. Arms in Blazon, of divers Families bearing Piles. 161. b.

10. Arms, in Blazon, of divers Families bearing Geronyes. 163.

11. Arms in Blazon (distributed by way of Alphabet) of many Families bearing Barres; breaking off in the Letter F. 165. b.

Although the Surnames of some Families be erroneously written in this Book; I nevertheless take it to be of good use. This Thomas Chaloner was a diligent & an able man; was Deputie there to Norroy, & was also Ulster King of Arms in Ireland. There is much of him among Holme's books in this Library.

1366.

A Book in 4to, written & tricked by the hand of Richard Scarlett the Painter-Stainer, vid. fol. 18. b. (who, as I have heard, was a man eminent in his Profession) containing, 1387.

A Book in fol. done by divers hands, & containing, in printed Escutcheons,

Part of a good Ordinary of Arms; with imperfect Tables before it.

CAT. HARL. VOL. II.

Num. 1388-1391.

1388.

An Heraldical Book in fol. made by Mr. John Withie the Painter-Stainer, for the most part, while he was a young man, as I believe. It containeth,

1. A Table shewing the method observed.
2. Alphabetical Table of the Surnames of Families, whose Arms & Crests are herein exhibited.

3. An Ordinary of Crests well tricked from some other Book by John Withie, as it seems: with some Additions of his own: all done in printed Escutcheons. By the Colors of the Ink, it looks as if he tricked the Arms & Crests first, & afterwards putt the Names & Colors to them.

An Heraldical Book in fol. written by divers hands; wherein are contained,

1. Alphabetical Tables of the Surnames of Families mentioned in many other Books; some or all of which may perhaps be now extant in this Library. 1.

2. The Genealogie of the ancient & illustrious Family of the Montagues, alias Montagues, Lords & Kings of Man, Earles of Salisbury, Manchester, & Sandwiche, and Barons Mountague of Boughton; and also Nevilles Marquess Mountagues; and Poole Lord Browne, Lord & Viscount Mountagues. Collected & extracted out of Letters Patents, Writs of Summons, History, and other authentick Evidences; and composed by John Tiltton Gent. Anno 1670. 87.

I take this to be no more than a private Extract made by Mr. John Saunders the Painter-Stainer, from Tiltton's Book; to which he put some few Notes of his own.

3. The auncient & right worshipful Descent of Sir Harbottle Grimston of Bradfield in the County of Essex Kt. & Baronet; continued in a lineal Stem from the worshipful Sylvester Grimston of Grimston in the County of York, Esq. who did homage to William the Conqueror, &c. 92. b.

This, perhaps, may have been drawn up by the same Tiltton; and copied by Mr. John Saunders.

A Book in fol. tricked & written by Mr. John Saunders the Painter-Stainer; it containeth,

1. Arms & Descents of Bedfordshire Families, dated, A.D. 1582. & 1583. 1.

Whether there was any Visitation of that County, in either of those Years, I cannot, as yet, tell: however, it may not be amiss to observe, that here are divers Additions & Continuations, by Mr. Saunders.

2. Names of some of the Sheriffs of Bedfordshire. 37.

3. Arms of the Bedfordshire Gentry. 41.

4. Alphabetical Table of the Surnames of Families; at the end.

A Book in fol. (for the greater part) written & tricked by Mr. John Saunders the Painter-Stainer. It containeth,

1. A Copie of the Visitation-book of Buckinghamshire as the same was taken A.D. 1634. with many considerable Continuations and Additions.

Herein I take leave to mention particularly, That although this Copie beginneth at fol. 12. it is not to be accounted as imperfect; because divers other Copies begin with the Descent of Parsons, which is here at fol. 14. b.

G

Alfo

Num. 1391—1393.

Also that besides the Corporation, or Town Seal of Chipping-Wicombe, Church Notes, & Extracts from Deeds; and the Continuations aforesaid, I find,

2. The Arms (in Blazon) & Epitaph of William Duntomb Esq. taken from his Monument in the Church of Battlefield in Com. Bedford. as also the Arms & Epitaph of Richard Saunders, from his Monument in the Church of Wandon in Com. Bucks. Both these, with their Attestations transcribed by Mr. Robert Dale Suffolk Herald.

Inter fol. 38. & 39.
3. Epitaph of Mrs. Elizabeth Lane, who died 20th April, 1655. post 62.

4. In the Descent of Saunders, at fol. 85. b. (as also at fol. 124.) Mr. Saunders, hath taken notice of himself; and in the former place affirmeth that he made this Copie, A.D. 1648.

5. Attestation of the Descent of Fox of Great Miffenden, A.D. 1637. 107.

6. Pedegree & Arms of Verney; dated A.D. 1694. 109.

7. Church Notes relating to Verney; and taken in the Church of Middle Claydon in Comitatu Bucks. in the same hand with the Pedegree. 110.

8. Grant of Supporters to the Arms of Heneage Finch Baron of Darente, Lord Keeper of the Great Seal, by Sir Edward Walker, Garter. 140.

9. Descent & Arms of Finch; to Daniel the present Earl of Nottingham, son to the Lord above-mentioned. 141.

10. Descent of Bennet of Bechampton. 141. b.

11. Alphabetical Table of Surnames of Families whose Descents are exhibited in this Book. At the end.

1392.

An Heraldical Book in fol. before which somebody hath prefixed the Title following, "This is a Copie of Mr. Robert Glover's greate Booke of Ordinaries. It containeth,

1. A Table to shew where every Ordinary doth begin.

2. A Table to find every Name, (i. e. Surname) and its Armes in his Page.

3. Then followeth the main Treatise itself, as in this Copie it should seem; but I rather take it to be a Copie of some ancient Roll of Arms prefixed before it; containing the Arms of many British & Saxon Kings; Roman Emperors; Kings of England & of other Nations; of the nine Worthies; of many old Saints, &c. many of which seeming utterly fabulous, not being disposed by way of Ordinary, nor admitted into that valuable Copie of Mr. Glover's Ordinary which in this Library is inscribed 82. B. 7. I therefore esteem it to be no part thereof. 1.

4. The Ordinary beginning with Eagles double-headed & displayed; with some few Additions made by Mr. John Withie. 17.

5. Arms of the several Archiepiscopal Sees in England; & of Dublin in Ireland. 729.

6. Arms of many Cities & Corporate Towns in England. 731.

7. Arms of English Abbies & Pories, in number 146. 735.

8. Arms of the University of Cambridge, of King's, & Eaton Colleges. 748.

All the Arms of this Book, are hastily tricked in printed Elcocheons.

An Heraldical Book in fol. written & tricked by the hand of Mr. Nicholas Charles, Lancafter Herald; wherein are contained,

1. Trick of a Picture found in an old Booke of Richmond, whereby K. William the Conqueror is represented as giving a Charter unto Alan Earl of Richmond, who kneels before him. Beside them are many figures of Noble Personages in compleat Harneis, & Suroates shewing their severall Arms. Here are also the Banners of the King, the Earl, & of divers of the Earl's Attendants. By this Description, the Reader will easily guess that the Picture abovementioned, must needs have been made long after the time of the Conqueror. And, as I remember, one of this Kind remains still in the Cottonian Library, in the Book there noted FAUSTINA. B. 7.

2. The Words of the Patent or Charter above-mentioned, with a Trick (in little) of the Conquerors Counter Seal: which, I suppose, Mr. Charles did not find in his old Book, but rather took from Mr. Speeds Chronicle, or some original Seal. ibid.

3. The Visitation of Yorkshires taken by Robert Glover Somerset-Herald, as Marshall to William Flower Norroy King of Armes: in the yeares of our Lord God 1584 & 1585. And since, augmented & encreased both with Armes & Descents by me

. . . Here, the rest is blotted out industriously. In this Copie of the said Visitation, Mr. Charles hath imitated the hands of those Gentlemen, who gave the information. Moreover, I find therein.

4. Trick of the Great Seal of the City of York.

2. & vid. 308.

This Great Seal is called SIGILLVM SECRETVM; which seems somewhat odd and unusual.

3. Trick of a Seal with this Epigraphe SIGILLVM CIVIVM EBORACI. ibid.

This may be more antient, though not so large as the former.

6. Trick of the Seal (as it seems) of the Metropolitane Church of York. ibid.

7. Tricks of the Arms, & Seals of Beverley. 3.

8. Tricks of the Seals of the Towne of Hedon, within the Liberty of Holderness. 32.

35. Arms & Supporters of the Lord Crofts. 138. b.

A Book in fol. for the most part written & tricked by the hand of Mr. John Withie, & by him entitled, 'The Visitation of Shropshire, made & taken by Robert Trefwell, Somerset; & Augustine Vincent, Rouge-Croix; Officers of Armes, Marshalls, & Deputies to William Camden Esq; Clarenceux, King of Armes, Anno 1623. Together with the Visitation made by Richard Lee, Portcullis, Marshall & Deputie to Robert Cooke Clarenceux, King of Armes, anno Domini 1584. with other Collections (or Additions) by me John Withie.'

Here it may be noted that these two Visitation-books are not to be understood as if the one was kept distinct from the other; but rather that the fresh Descents taken A.D. 1623. do supply the former Visitation of A.D. 1584.

Num. 1396, 1397.

That, this being transcribed from the original book, Mr. Withie has imitated the hands of those Gentlemen who gave the Information in ann. 1623. That the above mentioned Officers being men of Learning & Judgement; here are Copies & Extracts of the private Evidences of divers antient Shropshire Families; the Seals whereof, as also the Arms, all along, are well tricked by Mr. Withie. That divers of the Descents, are not of Mr. Withie's hand, but are done by Jacob Chaloner, & others employed by him.

Moreover, in this Book, I observe,
 2. The Original Paper, containing the hands of those, who during this Visitation of A.D. 1623. did disclaim the Titles of Esquires, & Gentlemen, at Ofwaldestre; by subscribing to a Preamble written by Mr. Withie, who rode Painter at the same Visitation. At the beginning.
 3. Arms of some of the Shropshire Gentlemen, put down by way of Alphabet.
 4. Tricks of the Seales of the Towne of Brugenorth.

5. Labour'd Pedegree of Bromleigh or Bromley, as the same was attested by Robert Cooke Clarenceux, & Robert Glover, Somerset. A.D. 1583.
 6. Some very modern Continuations, made perhaps, by Mr. Robert Dale now Suffolk-Herald, & others, before the Book came hither.
 7. Some late Continuations have been made by John Withie himself; as at fol. 160. b. after fol. 190. b.

By my Lord's command, Mr. James Greene Newmantel Pourlivaunt at Armes, did enter a Pedegree of Corbet, &c. into this Book, beginning at fol. 53. b. and also put the Persons Names in the Index.

8. Part of a Descent of Harnage, by the hand of Mr. Richard Mundy, is placed between fol. 165. b. & 166.
 9. Descent, Funeral Certificate, & Arms of David Lloyd of Shrewsbury; taken A.D. 1623. by Robert Owen Deputie to the Hearolds for Salop & Stafford.
 Inter fol. 259. & 260.

10. Trick of the Seale of the Towne of Bilhopscastle. 52. b.

11. An old Painting of the Arms of Pytt. Inter fol. 313. b. & 314.

12. Copie of the Proclamation of Richard Lee, Portcullis, dated the 12th of September 1584. whereby he disclaimed many residing within the Towne & Liberties of Salop, the Hundred of Ofwestry, the Towne & Liberties of Ofwestry, Chirbury, Conover, Pimhill, Clunne, Foord, & Brauford, as Usurpers of the Appellations of Esquires & Gentlemen.

13. Alphabetical Table of the Surnames of those Families whose Descents are to be found in this Book. At the end. 447.

An Heraldical Book in fol. almost wholly tricked & written by the Hand of Mr. John Saunders the Painter-Stainer. It containeth,

1. Alphabetical Table of Surnames, referring to the Arms & Pedegrees in this Book, as far as fol. 263.

2. Arms of the Cornish Gentry, taken out of the Visitation-book of that County, made A.D. 1620. with which the Arms of very many Families of other Counties are indifferently mingled.

3. Copy of the Visitation-book of the County of Surrey, made A.D. 1623. by Samuel Thompson Windior, and Augustine Vincent Rouge-Croix, for William Camden Clarenceux. 38. b.

In this Copie I find,
 4. Funeral Certificate of Mr. Henry Leake; taken 13 October 1622. by Lisle Baxter Deputy to the Office of Armes for the Counties of Surrey & Suffex. 39.

Num. 1397, 1398.

5. Notes taken in the Parish-Church of Micham. 43.
 6. Copies & Extracts of many private Evidences, with Tricks of the Seals: sparim. 119.
 7. Notes taken in the Parish Church of Rygate. 60.
 8. Tricks of the Seals & Arms of the Borough of Guilford. 119.
 9. Notes taken in the Parish Church of Charlwood. 161. b.
 10. Tricks of the Seals & Arms of the Towne of Kingfton upon Thames; as also of certain Armes found in the Towne-hall there. 164.
 11. Notes taken in Sheere-Church. 170.
 12. Notes taken in the Parish Church of Putney. 183. b.
 13. Notes taken in the Parish Church of Horley. 191. b.
 14. Notes taken in the Church of Richmond, by the Writer of this Copie, John Saunders, A.D. 1676. ibid.
 15. Notes taken in the Parish Church of Newington Butts. 192.
 16. Epitaph of John Tredecant, in Lambeth-Church; by another hand. 193. b.
- Then follow,
17. A Copie of the Visitation-book of the County-Palatine of Durham, taken by Richard St. George Esq. Norroy; and, in his company Henry St. George, Blew-mantle, A.D. 1615. 201.
- Herein I find,
18. A Noteror Lift of such Persons as were disclaimed in the time of this Visitation. ibid.
 19. A Continuation of the Defcent of Elftob to the year 1710, which that ingenious virgin gentlewoman Mrs. Elizabeth Elftob sent to me two years ago, together with some account of the Defcent of her mother. Both which Papers I have inserted herein before fol. 242. where the Defcent of Elftob as it was taken at this Visitation, is entred. I only, here take leave farther to observe, that Mrs. Elftob is very much improved both in Writing & Drawing, since the year 1710.
 20. The Arms of the old Visitation of the Bishoprick of Durham, made A.D. 1575, by William Flower Norroy. That is, the Arms of some of the Families. 260. b.
 21. Devices of divers Captains, during the late Civil Wars, painted on Ensigns & Cornets or Standards: being, for the most part, against the King. 264. b.
 22. Concessio Armorum Christophoro Stackaus, per Maximilianum II. Imp. Germ. II die Decembr. A. D. 1578. 32.

An Heraldical Book in fol. done by different hands; wherein are contained,

1. Pedegrees of divers Essex-Families: whereof some at least, are taken from the Visitation-book of that County made A.D. 1614, by John Raven Richmond, for William Camden Clarenceux. 4.
 2. Pedegree of Fitch, dated A.D. 1636. with Arms entred by John Withie. 25. b.
 3. Pedegree of Legatt, as begun by Sir Richard St. George Clarenceux, & finished by his son Sir Henry St. George Norroy, A.D. 1635. (The Arms tricked by Mr. John Withie.) 26. b.
 4. Defcent of Smith, alias Carington. 29.
 5. Pedegree of Davenant, brought down to A.D. 1667, entred by Mr. John Withie. 37. b.
- After many blank leaves, I find,
6. Some private Accompts & Notes of Mr. John Saunders: and then after many more blank leaves,
 7. An Alphabetical Table to the preceding Defcents; at the end.

CAT. HARL. VOL. II.

Num. 1399-1401.

1399.

An Heraldical Book in fol. wherein are contained,
1. A Copie of the Visitation-book of Devonshire, as the same was taken, in & about the year 1564. by William Hervy Clarenceux; whose words this followeth; the whole being putt down by way of Narration, and not in Genealogical Scheme. 1.

- Herein I also find Tricks of,
2. The Armes of the Cittie of Exeter. 1. b.
 3. The Armes of the Merchant Taylors of Exeter. 2.
 4. The Armes of the Corporation of the Smithes, Cutlers, Armourers, Lorymers, & Brasiers of Exeter. 2. b.
 5. The Armes of the Corporation of the Weyvares, Tuckers, & Sheir-men of Exeter. 3.

 12. The Armes belonging to the Towne & Bourouge of Barnstable. 71. b.
 13. Armes of Newcourt, with the Defcent by way of Scheme; seeming to be an Addition. 113. b.
 14. Arms & Defcent of Andrews; in Scheme: by the first hand. 116.
 15. Arms & Defcent (in Scheme) of Turner; added by another hand. 116. b.
 16. Alphabetical Table, containing the Surnames of those Families whose Defcents were registred in this Visitation of Devonshire. At the end.

1400.

A Book in fol. tricked by Mr. John Withie; & written, part of it, by Him; much more by Jacob Chaloner; & the rest by others. It containeth,

1. The Visitation-book of Nottinghamshire, made by Sir Richard St. George, Norroy, King of Armes, in the year of our Lord God, 1614. with Inlargements, by John Withie.

Remarkables in this Copie, are,

2. Alphabetical Table, of the Surnames of such Families whose Arms & Defcents are herein registred.
3. Arms of Knights living in Darbyshire & Nottinghamshire, in the tyme of K. Edward I. 1.
4. Trick of the Seale of the Towne & Borough of East Radford. 3.
5. Tricks of the Seals of the Towne & Borough of Newarke upon Trent. 3. b.
6. Tricks of the Arms & Seal of the Towne & Borough of Nottingham. 4.
7. Copies of divers Evidences, with Tricks of their appendants Seals; then belonging to Sir Henry Pierpoint, 19. George Laicelles of Eilelton, 23. William St. Andrew of Gotham, 36. b. & several others.
8. Lift of the Names of those who were disclaimed at Nottingham, 23d Sept. 1614. 94.

An Heraldical Book in fol. wherein are contained,
1. A Copie of the Visitation-book of Cambridgeshire, as the same was made & taken by Henry St. George Richmond, for William Camden Clarenceux, A.D. 169.

I

Observables

Num. 1401-1404.

Observables in this Copie (besides the omission of the Extracts from ancient Evidences, &c.) are,

2. The Omission of the Arms of the several Families: for what are now done in the book, are of the hand of John Saunders, who tricked some with his Pen; traced out others with his black Lead, & omitted the rest.

3. A Leaf of the original Visitation-book, as I take it to be; containing the Descents of Baron, & of Harris; subscribed by John Baron & William Harris. 89.

4. Alphabetical Table containing the Surnames of those Families whose Descents are herein entred. At the end.

A thin Book in fol. consisting, for the most part, of blank Paper. It containeth only,

Some Entrances of the Arms of deceased Persons, about whose Funerals Mr. John Spicer was employed as Painter: which Arms, as I suppose, were tricked by him.

NB. This Mr. John Spicer, bought Mr. John Saunders's Books after his death; as Mr. Saunders likewise bought Mr. Withie's; who bought those of the Collection of Mr. Edmund Barwick the Painter Stainer. Mr. Spicer's books were bought of Mr. Forcight an Apothecary, who was his Executor. But although all that were in Mr. Forcight's hands are now in this Library; there are wanting divers excellent Books which Mr. Spicer was known to be master of; which seems to be occasioned by his lending them to divers; & also leaving them behind him in his different Country Lodgings, which he took, time after time, for the sake of the Air.

A Book in fol. at the beginning thus entituled,

1. "A Book of the Armes, Crests, & Supporters, with the severall Quarterings of all the Nobility of Ireland, in their severall Ranks: collected together by me John Withie, about A.D. 1630.

These Achievements are all tricked; and before them, is,

2. A List of the Irish Nobility; living A.D. 1629. shewing the time of their several Creations, their Titles, Surnames, & the Leaves of this Book, wherein their Achievements are to be found.

Among them are,

3. The Titles of Richard Barry Earl of Barrymore, written & subscribed by his Lordship, at London, 10th Sept. 1645. before fol. 9.

4. Copie of the Confirmation of Arms, & Grant of Supporters to Charles Mac Carthy Viscount Carthy of Muskrey, by Thomas Preston Ulvesther. dat. 21st Sept. 1639. before fol. 36.

5. Achievement of the said Viscount Carthy, in little, tricked under that of Jones Viscount Rannellagh. 36.

An Heraldical Book in fol. painted & written by some old industrious Painter, as it seems; being,

1. A large Ordinary of Arms in Colors; before which are premised,

2. The Contentes of this Book; or the method used in this particular Ordinary.

3. Alphabetical Table of the Surnames of Families whose Arms are exhibited herein.

4. Some few Additions have been made to this Ordinary, by John Withie, John Saunders, &c.

Num. 1405-1407.

A Book in fol. begun by John Withie; whose design seems to have been to trick hastily & privately herein, the Arms of the Gentry of England, from the last Visitation-books. For now, the Officers of Arms were grown so wise as to keep their Pedegrees & Visitation-books up pretty close. It containeth,

1. Arms of the Gentry of Oxfordshire, from the Visitation-book made A.D. 1668, by Sir Edw. Byshe, Clarke.

2. Arms of the Gentry of Buckinghamshire, from the Visitation-book thereof, made A.D. 1669, by Sir Edward Bythe Clarenceux.

3. Arms of the Gentry of Bedfordshire, from the Visitation-book thereof, made A.D. 1669, by the same.

4. Arms of the Gentry of Hertfordshire, from the Visitation-book thereof, made A.D. 1669, by the same.

5. Particular Tables of Surnames of Families referring to the Tracts above-mentioned. At the end.

An Heraldical Book in fol. written & tricked (for the most part) by Mr. John Saunders the Painter-Stainer; the rest, by other hands. It containeth,

1. A Copie of the Visitation-book of the County of Suffex; as the same was taken A.D. 1633 & 1634, by John Philipot Somerset, & George Owen York, Heralds; for Sir John Borough Garter, & Sir Richard St. George Clarenceux, who visit d jointly.

I believe that this Copie was made in some haste; not only because of the variety of hands, but by reason of the great want of Transcripts of old Deeds, Tricks of public & private Seals, with Church Notes, wherein the Copie done by Mr. Withie (who rode Painter at this Visitation) aboundeth. However, besides some Additions & Continuations, I find herein some,

2. Notes taken in the Church of Stening. 24.

3. Notes taken in the Church of Cuckfield. 25. b.

4. Notes taken in the Church of Arundell. 52. b.

5. Loose Notes concerning the Family of Morley, Sir Richard de Walleyes, & Sir Robert de Kendall.

6. Notes taken in the Church of . . . 127.

7. Alphabetical Table of the Surnames of Families. 132.

An Heraldical Book in fol. wherein are contained,

1. The Tables of Titles following: i. e. a Table shewing the method followed in the ensuing Ordinary.

2. An Alphabetical Table of the Surnames of Families whose Arms are taken into the following Ordinary.

3. Heraldical Rudiments; taken out of the Book of Robert Cooke Clarenceux.

4. Part of an Ordinary of Arms; all tricked in printed Escutcheons. 1.

5. Arms of some British & Anglo-Saxon Kings: i. e. ascribed unto them. 149.

6. Arms of the Nobility of England, from the Conquest. Done from the Treatise commonly ascribed unto Robert Cooke Clarenceux; all in printed Escutcheons, as the others. 157.

The Writing & Tricking of this Book is an hasty Performance: or else, as indifferant as if done in haste.

An Heraldical Book in fol. written & tricked by many hands: but chiefly by John Hollingworth who was Blew-mantel Pourfuivant, ann. 1 Eliz. Richard Scarlet the Painter; Raufe Brooke York Herald (of whom here is but little) above all, by William Penfon Lancaſter Herald; but perhaps, before them, by Edmund Atkinſon Somerſett Herald, temp. R. Edw. vi. & Mar. i. It containeth,

1. Deſcent & Arms of March of Newport; as atteſted by William Penfon Lancaſter, A.D. 1633. At the beginning.

2. Arms of ſome foreign Emperors & Kings in blazon. (vid. fol. 18.)

3. Arms of ſome Britiſh, Saxon, & Engliſh Kings; as alſo of the old Engliſh Nobility, in Blazon. r. c.

4. A Collection of Arms in old Trick, put together promiſcuouſly; before I enter upon which, perhaps it may not be amiſs to obſerve, that at the top "Edmund Atkinſun" wrote his name with his Title, "Somerſett Herald of Armes," under which Raufe Brooke (who was a man of a turbulent envious & malicious temper) wrote theſe words, "and a verie forye one twee:" which words ſome other perſon cenſured by writing underneath the ſame, "But Atkinſon might have taught York to write true Orthography, in requital of ſuch his diſparageable Language."

But to return to this Collection of Arms; in looking ſomewhat narrowly into the ſame, I find it to have been made & enlarged by divers hands; and that many of them were found in & about divers old Churches & Houſes, which Arms being in all probability, broken to pieces & gone, by this time; I will therefore put down the names of ſuch Places, ſome of whole Antiquities are hereby preferred.

5. At Bedford in Polys. 7. (et vid. 33.)
6. Darenton Church. 8 b. 9.

11. Church of Stainrap by Raby. 11. et 29. b.
12. Roderam Church. 11. b. & 28.

13. Arms of many Families bearing a Chevron between 2 Eltoiles; put down by Will. Penfon; who having ſuch Arms, the Reader may imagine that here he would not omit his own. 14. b. et 15.

14. The end of an old Alphabet of Arms in Blazon; moſt of which is in the Book, but miſerably tranſpoſed; however, here I ſhall put down where what remains may be found. 16. 45. 51. 56. b. 58. 71. 80. 84. 80. 87. 90. 91. 99. 149. &c.

15. In Ralegh Church. 17. b.
16. Arms found in Petworth. 22. et 29.
17. In the Paryſhe Church of Ware. 23. b.
18. In Donſtable. 25. b.
19. Belfre Church in York. 31.
20. Wakfylde-Church. 32. b. et 33.
21. Topclyſe Church. 33.
22. Heraldical Rudiments. 33. b. et vid. 34.
23. Saint Elyns in the Stang. 34.
24. All-Haloughe on the Pavement in Yorke. 34. b.

25. A notable old Fragment containing the Arms & Creſts (which Creſts are omitted in Mr. Nicholas Charles's Book, 81. A. 2.) of many of the Lord Mayors, &c. of London, during the Reigns of the Tudors. But divers of the ſaid Creſts are to be found in the ſame Mr. Nich. Charles's Copie of the Viſitation-book of London, made by Robert Cooke Clarenceux, A. D. 1582. (inſcribed 82. B. 11.) into which Viſitation-book it ſhould ſeem that Clarenceux Cooke inferred the ſame, from theſe individual Papers, were the word ENTERED, with the uſual mark + is frequently put.

Here is alſo a Liſt of the ſaid Mayors, with the mark + before many of them. 36. &c. 39. &c.

Num. 1408.

26. Unto the above-mentioned Fragment, Will. Penfon hath made good Additions. 38. b. & 40. b.

27. The Arms of Marcus Mayger, emblazoned in Latin & Engliſh. Old. 41.

Then follow by the hand of Will. Penfon;

CAT HARL. Vol. II.

Num. 1414, 1415.

1414.

An Heraldical Book in large fol. at the beginning thus entitled,

"The greite Alphabet of Armes, in Trick."

Note, many of the Arms, especially at the beginning, have been coloured upon the tricking.

An Heraldical Book in fol. for the most part written & tricked by one hand; it containeth,

1. The Booke of Estrances made in the tyme of the Visitation of Yorke shire; begone A. D. 1581. and continued A. D. 1585. by Robert Glover alias Soumerfet Herald at Armes, Marshall & Deputie to William Flower Esq; alias Norroy Kinge of Armes, & principal Herald of the East, West, & North Parties of the Realme of England, from the River of Trent Northward.

In this Copie, besides many Tricks of private Seals, Extracts from Deeds, & some Church Notes; I find,

2. Part of the Record of Domesday, relating to Yorkshire.

3. Nomina Villarum et Terrarum infra Richemondshire quæ quondam, ante Conquestum Angliæ fuerunt Edwini Comitis; et quas Willelmus Rex, Angliæ Conquestor, dedit nepoti suo Aano Coniti Britannice, in tempore Oblisionis Villæ Eboracæ, circa annum .50 regni sui, diu ante constructionem Castræ de Richemond; sicut continetur in quodam Libro in thesauraria Dñi Regine vocato Domesday, Descriptionem totius Angliæ continens. 2. b.

4. Certificaciones factæ de Feodis Militum tempore Regis Henrici II. pre-textu mandati Regis ejusdem; sicut habetur in Libro Rubro, in archivo Westmonasterij reservato, pro Eboracshire. 2.

NB. The Arms of most of these Yorkshire-Lords who held in Capite, are here added.

5. Nomina eorum qui Scutagium ac Auxilium persolvebant, diversis temporibus, ab anno scilicet septimo R. Henrici II. usque ad ann. 2 R. Johannis, pro terris ipsorum in Comitatu Eboracensi. 6. b.

6. Milites et Barones Tenentes de Rege in Capite, in Comitatu Ebor. secundum inquisitionem captam anno 12 R. Johannis. 7.

7. Nomina Baronum et Militum, in Comitatu Eboracensi, collecta ex Rotulis de Feodis Militum, vel de Scutagio, solutis Regi Ricardo I. quemadmodum habetur in Libro Rubro penes Rememoratorem Regis in Scaccario aservato. 7. b.

8. Nomina eorum qui tenent 20 Libratas Terræ de Rege in Capite, vel de illis qui sunt infra statum, in Comitatu Ebor. qui ex mandato Regis, distringebantur per Vicecom. ad transfretandum ad Regem Henricum III. in Valconiam, contra Regem Castellæ, qui terram Valconie hostiliter ingressurus erat, pugnaturi: anno R. R. Hen. III. 38. et Salutis a Christo 12. 3. ibid.

9. Nomina habentium 40 Li. ratas Terræ in Comitatu Ebor. A. D. 1299. i. e. ann. 28 R. Edw. I. ibid.

10. Nomina Militum, et Hominum ad arma, A. D. 1324. i. e. ann. 17 R. Edw. II. 8. b.

11. Arms & Seal of the Borough of Pontefract. 26. b.

12. Seals of the Towne of Doncaster. 34.

I will not be positive as to the hand who wrote this Visitation, because it is known that many Officers of Arms wrote very like to one another. But this I will affirm, that comparing one or two of the Descents herein, with the Book 81. B. 10. written by Mr. Nicholas Charles, I found those Descents to be larger here; and, as I thought, more correct.

13. Arms of Johnstun of the North, by Mr. John Saunders. 46.

14. Beginning

Num. 1415.

14. Beginning of an alphabetical Table of Surnames as mentioned in the preceding Descents. 47. b.

15. Then followeth, Part of another Copie of the same Visitation-book of Yorkshire, written, (although more hastily, yet) by the same hand, & in smaller Leaves. 48.

Herein I find,

16. Two Seals of the City of York. 48. b.

17. Seal of the Metropolitane Church of York. 49.

18. Arms & Seals of the Town of Beverley. ibid.

19. Seal of the Towne of Headon in Holderness. 54. b.

20. Seals of the Towne of Kingston upon Hull. 80. b.

21. Nomina et Arma illorum Equitum de Comitatu Eboracensi qui cum Edwardo 1. Rege stipendia mererant in Scotia, et alibi. Ex Libro Gloveri Somersfett de Visitatione Com. Ebor. 1584. 1585. 97.

In this last Copie of the Yorkshire Visitation, there are divers Tricks of private Seals, Extracts from old Instruments, & Church Notes.

'Then followeth in another hand, as it may seem at the first sight; but really is of the same Man, 22. The Visitation of Stafford-shire, made by Robert Glover alias Somersfett-Harold, Marshall to William Flower alias Norreye, Kinge of Armes, Anno Dni 1583. 105.

In this Copie, I observe,

23. Notes shewing what is to be performed at a Herald's going in Visitation. ibid.

24. The Tenor of Robert Glover's Proclamation for disclaiming of divers persons inhabiting within the Hundred of Pirehill. dat. . . . August 1583. ibid.

25. Mr. Glover Somersfett's Charge to the Bayliffe of the Hundred of Cuddestone, to summon the Gentry to appeare before him at Stafford, in order to the enregistoring their severall Arms & Descents, dat. . . . July, 1583. 105. b.

26. Mr. Glover Somersfett's Charge to . . . to appeare before George Talbot Earl of Shrewsbury, Earle Marshall of England, & answer to the Contempt of his refusing to appeare at the Visitation. dat. 20 August, A.D. 1583. 105. b.

27. The Names of those that in the tyme of this Visitation of Staffordshire, have made no prooffe of their Gentrie, bearing no Armes, and yet before tyme had called & written themselves Gentlemen; and were therefore disclaimed in the cheife place of the Hundreds where they dwell. A.D. 1583. ibid.

The last of these is industriously blotted out, the Posterity or Relations of him, being perhaps grown ashamed of that disclaiming. However, in the book 61. C. 26. at 34. b. the Name remaineth plain enough, being John Coleman of Canke.

28. Nomina Militum, ut videtur, de Comitatu Stafford. tempore Rich. II. vel Hen. IV. 106.

29. The Seale of the Towne of Lichfield. ibid.

30. The Seale of the Towne of Stafford. ibid.

31. The Seale of the Burgh of New-castell under Lyme. ibid.

Here are also the Tricks of very many private Seals of Families, & Extracts from some old Deeds. If the whole book was written by one man, I should be inclined rather to think it might be done by Sr. William Dethick, who used to write the three severall hands herein used; than by any other.

32. Alphabetical Table of the Surnames of those Families whose Descents are inserted into this Visitation of Staffordshire: in a modern, & no very staunch hand. 136. b.

Num. 1416, 1417.

An Heraldical Book in large fol. dedicated unto Queen Elizabeth, and (as it seemeth to me) designed to be presented to her. It is entituled,

The Progenie of the Monarchs of the Englishmen, conteyning the Titles & Reignes of them; the Coronations & Parentage of them & their wyves; the Names, Armes, Nativities, Mariages, Deceases, Burialles, & Issue of them, their wyves, & their children. 1595.

This work is divided into two Books, the first beginning with Noth, & so proceeding through the Saxon Line to K. Harold. The second begins with K. William the Conqueror, & endeth with the Children of K. Edward III.

The whole is embellished with Armes, & written in a large hand. The Design was such, as if the Compiler had confined himself to such things only for which sufficient Authority was found; he would have saved much pains, & thereby had time to finish with the Queen then reigning.

An old Heraldical Book in fol. which seemeth from fol. 1. to have formerly belonged to Sr. Thomas Wrythe or Writheley (for so the name is written herein at fol. 55.) and afterward to John Cocke alias Lancaster-Herald. It containeth,

1. A List of the Noblemen in the time of K. Henry VIII. perhaps of his Privy Council. 3.

2. An Alphabet, made upon several leaves perpendicularly, in order to the inserting therein a Table of the matters contained in this Book; but the same was not done. 3.

3. A Registre of Genealogies, contained in some book of Pedegrees then belonging to the Office of Arms, & therein marked x; being not that which in this Library is now inscribed 89. C. 1. 48.

This Registre, or alphabetical Table is very imperfect; for it wanteth all from A to S exclusive. 48.

4. Stemma Grayorum Dominorum Powisfar, e Cadwalladro deductum; cum adnotationibus. 57.

5. Descent of Thomas Butler Earl of Ormond & Wiltshire; & of Sir William Paulet of Basing, from John Lord Wellys. 59.

18. Descent of Fitzwilliam. 68. b.

19. Descent of Lucy, Hampton, &c. 69.

20. Pedegree of Racyffe & Fitz-Walter. 69. b.

21. Pedegree of Docwra, with a Descent of Hodilston. (which seems to be mistaken for 70.) 80.

22. Descent of Grey of Codnor, Zowche, &c. 80. b.

23. Descent of Dunstanville Baron of Castelfombe. 81.

24. Descent of Borwashe. 81. b.

25. Descent of Hampden. ibid.

26. Descent of Beauchamp of Bedford. 82.

Num. 1417.

1422.

An Heraldical Book in fol. whose best part was tricked and written by Mr. John Gough the Paynter-Stayner, being not only his Master-piece as to the fineness, beauty, & regularity of the Tricking, but the best in that kind that I have seen either here or elsewhere; and hath also been esteemed as the best Book of Tricking by divers both Heralds & Painters, who had formerly seen the Book, and supposed it to be lost or torn to pieces. This great beauty and fineness of the Tricking, which ought to have induced its successive owners to have preserved it with the more Care, is that which hath been chiefly the occasion of its Ruin. For being thought to be the best Work-book of its kind; it all along lay in the Shop or Work-Room, being the Pattern from whence every young Apprentice learned to draw: unto whom, and to the Master's children, it was a perpetual Slave & Diversion. From hence it hath happened that what by their flabber & driving, what with their nastiness, scribbling, blotting, tearing, & mangling; it is but as a Skeleton to what it was; or as an heap of Ruins, which by the Remains of Capitals, Columns, Arches, Architraves, &c. might shew the judicious beholder, that in former days the Building had been very regular & magnificent.

It was designed to be a sort of Register of such Armes, as had been granted by the several Kings; expressing some entirely which might be thought more remarkable than others. But letting all that pass; this Book now containeth,

1. Attestation des Armes de la Maison de Micault, par Pierre d'Hozier, Sieur de la Garde, Gentilhomme Ordinaire de la Maison du Roy, Chevalier de son Ordre de St. Michel, et un des Herauts d'Armes de sa Majesté du Tiltre de Tolozé. Fait, le 18 jour du Mois de Juin, 1634.

The Arms & Seal with the Crest were finely tricked: but having taken Wet (and perhaps the Ink not being well gummed, that it might flow the more easily from the Pen) they are now not very visible. And this is the case (more, or less) of the Tricks belonging to the seven Grants next ensuing.

2. Grant of Armes, without a Crest, unto William Swayne; by William Wrexworth Guyan King of Armes. dat. 29 Jan. 39 Henr. vi. 1. b.

3. Grant of Armes, unto William Crokey alias Johnson; by Cristoter Carlyle Norrey princeps Herald & King of Armes. dat. 3 June, A.D. 1496. 2.

2. Confirmatio

Num. 1422.

4. Confirmatio Amorum ac Crisæ, Thomæ Mountford S.T.D. per Guilieum Camdenum Clarenceux, Regem Armorum, dat. 18 Febr. A.D. 1602. 2. b.

5. Alteratio of the Coat (in respect of its confusion in Blazon) which was granted unto Henry Randes of Holbech, made Bp. of Rochester, & afterwards of Lincoln; under the name of Henry Holbech, which name he had from the place of his birth, according to the custom of that Age amongst men of Ecclesiastical Profession: made by William Camden Clarenceux, to Thomas Randes a Justice of the Peace in Lincolnshire, son & heir to the Bishop. dat. 10 July, 1599. 3.

6. Attestatio of the Pedegree, Armes, & Crests, of John Thomfon Esq; 31 March, 1574. 3. b.

7. Certificate of Robert Cooke Clarenceux; that he had registred the Armes & Crest granted to Sir Francis Drake, dat. 20 June, A.D. 1581. 4.

In my poor Opinion, the Crest would have been more adroit, & agreeable to the Usage of Antiquity, if the Hand had been a right Hand, the Arm, naked, or at least clothed in more antique fort; for so the Antients used to express God, & his Power, & Providence: as I have seen in very many old MS. in Oxford, Cambridge, & in this City.

8. Confirmation of 2. several Coats, with the Crests, unto Thomas Penyllon of Hawrugs in the County of Buks. by Robert Cooke, Clarenceux. dat. 8 Febr. A.D. 1573. 4. b.

9. Confirmation of Arms, to Dorothy Bewprey the wife of Robert Bell of Bewprey-Hall in the County of Norfolk; by Robert Cooke Clarenceux. dat. 17 June, A.D. 1571. 7. b.

10. Grant of Arms & Crest to William Carpenter of Cobham in Com. Surrey, by Sir Edward Bysshe Clarenceux. dat. 4 March, A.D. 1633. 8.

These two last, are written by another Hand; and want the Tricks of the Arms.

Then followeth the Collection of Arms granted, being ticked in Elicocheons before made for the purpose, twelve in each Page: beginning at pag. 51. where, it is to be noted, that Mr. Gough did not put all the Arms in his best manner of tricking; but only such as he thought fit. They are,

11. Arms, or Crests, granted or confirmed, by Robert Cooke Clarenceux; Thomas Holme Clarenceux; William Harvey Clarenceux; Laurence Dalton, Norroy; John Borough, Norroy; William Camden Clarenceux; Richard St. George Clarenceux. 51.

12. Ten Coats granted to persons of the name of Moore, or More; whereof Five of them are to the same man, one John Moore Dr. in Physic, whose first Arms having, as he might fancy, no reputable Relation to his name, nor to any worthy Deed of his Ancestors or himself (unless they should hint as if they had been Bird-catchers) by four successive alterations, he comes at last to bear S. a plain Cross Argent, as being, forsooth, an old Christian; with a Moor's head adorned with a Chapeau, & Jewels, for his Crest, as if designed to be understood of some Saracen, or Moor-Commander, whom his Ancestor fighting valiantly in defence of Christianity, had killed or taken in single Combat. But whatever fancy the Doctor might get into his head, about his Family & Arms, of which, the last are ascribed to one Sr. William De la More, whose Family might be extinct long since; the Heralds, we see, took not only his Money, but Care to preserve his Name & all the alterations he had procured from time to time. 53.

13. Arms, & Crests, granted & confirmed to many, by Sr. Richard St. George, Sir William Segar; William Camden, Robert Cooke; Sir William Dethick; Thomas Hawley Clarenceux; Robert Glover Somerfet,

Num. 1422.

Marshall to William Flower Norroy; Laurence Dalton, Norroy; Thomas? Wriothesley Garter; Christopher Barker Garter; Sir John Borough; Henry St. George, Richmond, and Sampson Lennard, Biew-mantle; Roger Machado? John Wrythie, Garter; Thomas Benolt Clarenceux; Sir Gilbert Dethick Garter; William Flower, Norroy; William Harvey Clarenceux. 54.

14. The like granted or confirmed, by William Camden Clarenceux; among which are some few, by Sir William Segar; Sir William Dethick; Earl Marshall A.D. 1609. 61.

15. The like, in like manner, by William Camden, Robert Cooke Clarenceux; William Harvey Clarenceux; Sir Gilbert Dethick Garter; Sir William Dethick; William Flower Norroy. 71.

16. Arms (mostly without Crests) given in the time of Henry v. and since; in the Reigns of Henry vi. Edward iv. Richard iii. Henry vii. and Henry viii. And were all taken out of an old Booke, late belonging to Raphe Broke Yorke Herald; now in the Custody of Sr. Edward Dering Knight & Baronet A.D. 1628. 75.

The Names of the Officers of Arms particularly mentioned in this Tract; are but Sir Christopher Barker; Sir Thomas Wriothesley, & Thomas Benolt Clarenceux; Thomas Tonge, Norroy; for they are almost every where omitted.

17. The like, by William Camden Clarenceux. 108, 110, & 118.

18. Arms & Crest of Satterthwaite, as taken by Sr. Edw. Bysshe Clarenceux, in the Visitation of Kent. Inferred by John Saunders. 109.

 114. A Table to the Irish Pedegrees in my Lord Totnes Book, markt by the Letter QQ. 230.
 I suppose most of those Pedegrees are entred into this Book, & make the first Treatise, to fol. 197. As to the Books of George Carew Earl of Totnes, among which were a most noble parcel of Manuscripts relating to the Affairs of Ireland, they were sold, and the M^r. S. bought, as I believe, by Archbishop Laud. Some few of them he gave to the Bodleian Library at Oxford, where they have been often consulted by the Irish Nobility & Gentry. The rest (which they knew not where to find) I have seen in the Metropolitcal MS. Library at Lambeth.

- An Heraldical Book in fol. written & tricked by divers hands; of which, notwithstanding the Title on the outside, I shall give the following account. For it containeth,
 1. An Alphabetical Table to the ensuing Visitation-book of Hertfordshire, as it is called. 1.
 2. The Visitation of the Countie of Hertford, made by in Anno 7.
 This Title, I am afraid, is a Painter's Title: for Painters when they see a Book of Pedegrees relating to one County alone, usually call them Visitations, without further examination. As for this, I find three Dates therein, viz. ann. 5 Car. 1. A. D. 1631. and ann. 11 Car. 1. and yet the last is no Addition to the Visitation-book of A.D. 1534. with neither of which, nor that of 1572, it doth agree. I shall therefore look upon it only as a Collection of the Arms & Descents of the Gentry of that County, which Descents are all putt down by way of Narration. In this Tract, I also find,
 3. A Catalogue of the Names of the Gentry yet remaining in this Countie, or that lately were; according as their Ancestors first seated themselves therein. 7.
 4. Arms of some of the Gentry, in Blazon. 14.
 5. Arms of Gravell, taken from a Window in the Parishes Church of Gravell. 21.
 6. Descent & Arms of Titus; added by John Saunders. 21. b.
 7. Notes taken in Ec'lesia S. Michaelis prope Villam S. Albani. 26.
 Then

Then follow,

8. Descents registred in the Visitation-book of Staffordshire, made. A.D. 1663. & A.D. 1664. by William Dugdale Norroy; inserted herein by John Saunders. 28. 31. b. 34. b. 37. b. 38. b. 39. b. 42. b. 45. b. 48. b. 49. b. 50. b. 51. b. 52. b.

9. The Visitation for the County of Stafford by Roger Glover alias Somerset-Herald Marhall to William Flower alias Norroy King of Armes, Anno 1583. 31.

Norwithstanding this Title, here are no more than some Arms, with the following particulars collected from that Visitation, viz.

10. Nomina Militum et Hominum ad Arma in Com. Staff. anno 17 R. Edwardi II. ibid.

11. Names of the Persons disclaymed at the same Visitation. 31. b.

12. The Manner or Tenor of the Heralds Proclamation for the disclaiming of ignoble Persons; and Admonition to forbear the Style & Titles of Esquires or Gentlemen, until such tyme as lawful Proof may be made thereof, for the Dignity of Honor & Gentrie. 32.

13. The Forme of the Warrant directed to the High Constable to summon the Esquires & Gentlemen inhabiting within his Hundred to appeare before the Deputy, or Marhall. 33.

14. The Forme of the Warrant of Summons against such as contemptuously refuse to appeare upon the former Warrant, to make their further Appearance before the Earl-Marhall. 33. b.

15. Seale of the Towne & Burrough of Stafford. 34.

16. Seale of the Cittie of Litchfield. ibid.

17. Seale of the Towne & Burrough of Newcastle under Lymc. 36. b.

18. Arms of Aston of Tykfall in Com. Staff. with Supporters; inserted by John Saunders. 40. b.

19. Index Visitationis Comitatus Staffordiæ, Captæ per Robertum Glover alias Somerset, Nomine et Loco Gulielmi Flower alias Norroy Regis Armorum, A.D. 1583. 41.

Then comes,

20. The Visitation of the County of Northumberland, taken by Richard St. George Esq. Norroy; & in his company Henry St. George Blewmanlye, A.D. 1615. 45.

This Title is to be understood only of the Arms of the Northumbrian Gentry, herein put down from the Visitation book above-mentioned. 45.

21. Descent of Collingwood of Northumberland, with the Arms; inserted by John Saunders. 46. b. &c.

22. Alphabetical Table to the Northumberland Arms; according to the old Numeration of the Leaves. 49.

23. Pedegree (with all the Arms) of Thamworth, or Tamworth, as the same was drawn up by Robert Cooke Clarenceux, & attested by Sir William Dethick, William Camden, & Thomas Knight. 50.

24. Arms & Crests of divers Gentlemen, with their Quarterings & Crests. 57.

25. Attcheivement of Sr. Robert Douglass Viscount Bellhaven. 62.

26. Arms of Sr. Patrick Curwin of Lancashire, with Supporters, & Quarterings. 63.

27. Four Coats born by the name of Leicester; with some other Arms. 64.

28. Descent & Arms of Ladkin; approved by Sir Henry St. George Norroy. 65.

29. Descents & Arms of Banneffer. 66.

30. Descent & Arms of Constable of Catfoss in Com. Ebor. approved by Sr. Hen. St. George, Norroy. 67.

31. The Visitation of the County of Buckingham, by William Harvey Clarenceux, A.D. 1566. 68. et 84.

CAT. HARL. VOL. II.

Num. 1429-1431.

This Copie is so full of Additions & Continuations, that it will be no easy matter to shew what belonged to that Visitation, & what not. I also find therein, 32. The Armes or Common Seale of the Borough of Chipping Wiccomb. 70. b. et 81. b.

33. Arms of the Buckinghamshire Gentry. 81. &c.

34. Alphabetical Table to the preceding Tract of Buckinghamshire, according to the old Numbers. 88.

35. Note of the Officers who took the Visitation of Hertfordshire anno 1614. & 1669. 88. b.

36. Copie of the Book of the Visitation of Hattfordshire taken by Sir Henry St. George Kt. Richmond-Herald, anno 1634. being Deputy to Sir John Burrough, Garter, & Sr. Richard St. George Clarenceux, who visited jointly; entered herein by John Saunders. 89.

37. Descent & Arms of Read of Wigford in Essex. 102.

38. Alphabetical Table to this Visitation of Hertfordshire. At the end.

After which, namely on the inside of the Cover, is, 39. The Arms of Chynsey with Quarterings, as engraven on Silver in his Belt.

1430.

An Heraldical Book in fol. before which Mr. John Withie hath written the following Title,

1. A Copie of the Visitation of Surrie made by Samuell Thompson Windfor, and Augustine Vincent, Rouge Croix, Officers of Armes; Marshalls & Deputies to William Camden Esq. Clarenceux King of Armes, A.D. 1623.

The book seemeth to be almost all of the hand of the same Augustine Vincent; the rest, being Tricks of some of the Arms, with some few Additions & Continuations, are of the hand of the above-mentioned Mr. John Withie.

Herein, with some few Copies or Extracts of Deeds & Tricks of private Seals, I find,

2. Descent & Arms of Byshe, written & signed by Sir Edward Byshe Clarenceux, on a loose Paper fastened between fol. 21. & 22. on the other side of which, Sir Edward hath written the Descent of Beecher.

3. Arms & Seals of the Towne & Borough of Guildford or Guilford. 135.

4. Arms & Seals of the Towne of Kingston-upon-Thames. 170.

5. Descent & Arms of Freeman, dated A.D. 1633. Done upon a loose Paper by John Saunders; and inserted after fol. 179.

6. Alphabetical Table of the Surnames of those Families whose Descents are found in this Book; made by John Withie. At the end.

An Heraldical Book in fol. almost wholly written & tricked by the hand of Mr. John Saunders the Painter Stainer. It containeth,

1. An Alphabetical Table of the Surnames of such Families, whose Descents are entered in this Book.

2. A Copie of the Visitation-Book of the County of Leicester, as the same was made & taken A.D. 1619. by Sampson Lennard Blewmanlye, & Augustine Vincent Rouge-Rose, for William Camden Clarenceux.

3. Transcripts of some Deeds relating to the Family of Bradgate. 107. b.

4. Copies of the same in long hand, by Sir William Dugdale. 108.

1432. An

Num. 1432, 1433.

1432.

An Heraldical Book in fol. written & tricked by Mr. John Saunders, the Painter-Stainer; containing,

1. An Alphabetical Table (incomplete) relating to that part of this Book which treateth of Essex.

2. Arms & Crests of some of the Essex Gentry; four in a Page.

3. Arms of the Nobility & Gentry who were in the Commission for the Peace, about the latter end of the Reign of Q. Elizabeth, or the beginning of that of K. James I.

4. Arms & Crests, perhaps, of another sett of Essex-Judices.

5. Defcent & Arms of Silverlock; by John Withie, with a Note of his, 9th March, 1641. (inserted) 12.

6. Defcent of Kelsey of Essex; by John Withie, inserted at fol. 13.

7. A Collection of Descents & Arms of the Gentry of Essex, seeming not to have been copied from any particular Visitation-book: some of them bearing the Dates, 37 H. 6. 1593, 1578, 1613, 1614, 1612, 1608, 1599, 1616, 1585, 1587, 1634, 1580, 1619, 1593, 1617, 1588, 1615, 1637, 1616, 1657.

8. Descents taken by George Owen alias Yorke-Herauld, & Henry Lilly Rouge-Role; in the last Visitation made for the County of Essex, A.D. 1634. 100.

9. At the end of this Tract, are some additional Descents; as also,

10. Copie of the Confirmation of Arms & Crests, unto Thomas Gent Elq. by Robert Cooke Clarenceux. dat. 12th November, 1571. 163. b.

Then followeth, the Numbers on the Leaves beginning afresh.

11. A Copie of the Visitation-book of the County of Kent, as the same was made & taken, A.D. 1619. &c. by John Philpot Rouge-Dragon, for William Camden, Clarenceux. 1.

Mr. Saunders hath noted, that he began this Copie the 1st of October 1645. at 9 of the Clock in the Night; & that he ended the same on Saturday 31st January, 1645. Herein I find,

12. Armes & Seale of the Towne and Corporation of Gravefend & Milton. 7. b.

13. Armes & Seales of the Dean & Chapter of the Cathedral Church of Christ in Canterbury. 88. b.

14. A printed Cut of the Arms or Atchievement of Sir Edward Dering Baronet, dated A.D. 1630. with a fanciful Motto in mishapen Saxon characters; but by the hatching the Arms in order to shew the Colours, according to the way found out by Sir Edward Byshe, I guess that it is not so old. 110. &c.

15. Confirmation of Armes & Grant of a Crest, to Matthew Mennes Elq. by William Camden Clarenceux. dat. 10th July, 1616. 159. b.

16. Defcent of Leveson, in the hand-writing of Sir Henry St. George the elder, inserted after fol. 160.

17. In this Treatise of Kent, are some few Extracts from Evidences, with certain additional Descents, and Continuations.

18. Tabula Visitationis Comitatus Cantij. At the end.

An Heraldical Book in fol. written & tricked by divers hands; wherein are contained,

1. A Copie of Robert Cooke Clarenceux his Visitation-book of the County of Hertford, made A.D. 1572. 1.

This is of the hand-writing of Thomas Knight Chief-Herald; and has some Continuations, by the hand of Sir John Verney Baronet, Lt. Viscount Fermanagh, viz. at fol. 19. not to mention other places in this Book.

Num. 1433.

2. The same Thomas Knight's Copie of the Visitation-book of the County of Surrey, as the same was made & taken, A.D. 1572. by Robert Cooke Clarenceux. 25. b.

Herein I find,

3. The Arms of the Corporat Towne of Kingston-uppon-Thames. 29.

4. Defcent & Armes of Gainsforde; added to this Visitation. 35. b.

5. Alphabetical Table to the Pedegrees in the two abovementioned Visitations. 36.

6. Answer of the Kings of Arms (Sir John Borough, Sir William le Neve, & Sir Henry St. George) to a Question touching precedence among Esquires by Office. 37.

Hereafter the Numbers on the Leaves begin afresh,

7. The Visitation-book of the County of Surrey, as the same was made & taken A.D. 1623. by Samuel Thompion Windlor-Herald, & Auguftine Vincent Rouge-Croix, for William Camden Clarenceux. 1.

I will not call this Tract a Copie, or an Original: for turning it over this morning June 13, 1712. I found divers hands therein, which seemed to be Originals; as well as many others which at first sight appeared plain Copies. In order therefore to come at some certainty, I took Boat immediately for the Heralds Office, where I found two notable Books of this Visitation, both written by Auguftine Vincent, one of which was in most places subscribed by the hands of the Gentlemen who gave the Information. Comparing this Book with them, I found, that of the Descents in this Book which seemed to be subscribed & attested by the original hands of those Gentlemen who gave the Information, Three (fol. 66. b. 84.) were entered into their original Book, either with the same original hands, or at least an Imitation of them from this Book.

That as to the rest (viz. at fol. 67. b. 73. 75. 75. b. 76. b. 78. b. 82. 89. 91. 96. 97. b. 98. b. 101. 101. b. 102. 102. b. 104.) either the Subscriptions were wanting in those Books, or in the original Book; or with the Subscriptions the Arms were also wanting, which are extant in this Book; or else (which was the case that happened oftenest) there were neither Defcent, Arms, nor Subscription. Which therefore made it plaine to me, that when Auguftine Vincent made those two Books, one for the Office, & the other for himself, even so early, some of the original Papers were mislaid; & never after came into the Office.

As to the different hands which wrote this Visitation, I will not now determine who wrote all the Descents, & all the Continuations: but this I may affirm, that the Defcent of Carique at fol. 49. is certainly of the hand-writing of Auguftine Vincent, who also seemeth to me to have tricked most of the Armes here, especially at two places after-named. And I believe that more of his hand may be found herein, as at fol. 150. and perhaps his own Defcent at fol. 144. b. and in other Places.

Obiervables in this Visitation-book, besides the ordinary Pedegrees & Armes, may be,

8. Notes taken in the Church of Carshalton. 2. b.

9. Notes taken in the Parish Church of Riegate. 19. b.

10. Armes & Seals used by the Borough of Guldeford. 74.

11. Epitaph of Thomas Pakington Sword-bearer to Henry Percy Earl of Northumberland; who was slain at the second Battle of St. Alban's. 83.

12. Armes & Seales of the Towne of Kingston-upon-Thames; tricked also, at it seemeth, by Aug. Vincent. 115. b.

13. Arma Justiciariorum Comitatus Surr. A.D. 1601. 192.

Some

Num. 1433—1436.

Some of these are omitted.

14. Alphabetical Table to this Visitation-book of Surrey. 184. b.

15. Tenor of the Warrant of the above-mentioned Windsor & Rouge-Croix to the Constable of . . . whom they commanded to summon four Gentlemen to appear before Thomas Howard Earl of Arundell & Surrey, Earl Marshal of England, to answer for their Contempts in making default of Appearance before them at this Visitation. 186. b.

16. Arms of five Gentlemen of the County of Surrey. 187. b.

Note, much of this Book was written by Samuel Thompson above mentioned; especially about fol. 46. before & after.

An Heraldical Book in fol. all written & tricked by the Hand of Mr. John Saunders the Painter-Stainer, who at the beginning thereof, hath left written, the following Title,

1. HEREFORD-SHIRE, 1610.

From this Title the book hath been look'd upon by many, as a Copie of the Visitation-book of that County, taken the same Year. But to speak my opinion, I much doubt it; not only because of the variety of the Dates found at the bottom of many of the Descents; but because I could never certainly learn that there was any Heraldical Visitation of that County made in, or near the year 1610.

Besides the Descents & Arms of the Herefordshire Nobility and Gentry;

I find therein,

2. An alphabetical Table to the same; at the beginning.

3. Arms of St. Ethelbert of Hereford. 1. b.

4. Arms of St. Owen of Herefordshire. ibid.

5. The Arms of the See of Hereford; i. e. those of St. Thomas de Cantelupo. ibid.

6. Arms Prioratus Herefordiensis. ibid.

7. Arms Civitatis Herefordiæ. ibid.

8. Here are also some few Proofs from private Evidences, & Tricks of private Seals.

See more concerning this Book, lower; at the Book N^o 1442.

An Heraldical Book in fol. at the beginning thus entitled by Mr. John Withie,

1. The Visitation of Westmerland per Rich. St. George Norroy.

Sir Richard St. George made this Visitation A.D. 1615. But this Book is somewhat better; for here are many Continuations of Descents, and also additional Pedegrees; even from a later Visitation of this County, made A.D. 1634, as it is believed.

2. It may be noted, that the Pedegrees in this Book, are mostly of the hand-writing of . . . but those Arms which are found herein, were tricked by Mr. John Withie.

3. The same John Withie's alphabetical Table to the Pedegrees; at the end.

A Book in fol. written & tricked by different hands; wherein I find,

1. Certain Descents of Lincolnshire Gentry, belonging to the Traſt hereafter mentioned at N^o 3. contained in the Leaves marked A. B. C. D. E.

2. Pedegrees & Descents of the Lincolnshire Gentry, taken from the Visitation book of that County made by Robert Cooke then Chester-Herald, A.D. 1562. for

Num. 1436, 1437.

William Harvey Clarenceux; they following one another in alphabetical Order; which prevented a Table at the end. 1.

To these Descents there are many Additions.

3. Pedegrees & Descents of the Gentry of the same County; copied by John Saunders from the Visitation-book thereof made A.D. 1592. by Richard Lee Richmond-Herald, for Robert Cooke Clarenceux; with many more modern additions, inserted paginatin, among the Pedegrees of A.D. 1562.

4. Among these abovementioned Descents, are some Proofs from Evidences; as also, the laboured Pedegree of John Thamworth Esq.

5. Laboured Pedegree of Dighton. 114. b.

6. The Coates of the several Families who have been Earls of Lincoln, of such Noblemen who had Estates in Lincolnshire, and of the Lincolnshire-Gentry, as they were set forth in the Lord Burghleys Gallery at Tibalt (1. Theobalds) by Robert Cooke Clarenceux, for Lincolnshire. 121.

In this Copie some of the Arms are omitted.

7. Notes or Proofs relating to the ancient Family of Busley; taken from some old Book. 123.

8. De Exitu Guberri Nevill Domini de Grimeshorpe. 124. b.

9. Grant of a Crest to Richard Johnſon of Gainſborough, by William Flower Norroy. dat. 7 May, 1579. 125.

10. Attestation of a Grant of Armes to Thomas Revell Sheriffe of the Towne of Galloway in Ireland; in presence of the Mayor of the Place & a Public Notary, 2 March 1673-4. ibid.

11. Arms of the Monasteries of Sempingham, & Alvingham. 7.

A Book in fol. wherein are contained, 1. Many, if not most of the loose Papers wherein the Descents of the Lancashire Gentry were taken & registred at the Visitation of that County A.D. 1613, by Richard St. George Norroy, and Henry St. George Blewmanſtle, his Son, in his company. Which Gentry subscribing the same, this Book (so far as it goes) is therefore the ORIGINAL BOOK of this Visitation.

Observables touching this Book, may be

2. Besides what is written & tricked by Sir Richard St. George, & his son Sir Henry; here are divers Papers with Descents & Arms, inserted by, or at least the Handy-work of John Withie the Painter-Stainer.

3. The same John Withie hath added the Arms; & some Continuations to divers Descents.

4. Here are divers Copies & Extracts of private Deeds, & Tricks of Seals; made by the Visitors.

5. Some of these Descents are not subscribed by the Persons who gave in the Information; and some want the Word ENTRED or ENT, which Sir Henry St. George, when he made the Office-Book generally putt upon them: It would therefore be worth the while to consult some other books of this Visitation, & see whether they have been entered into them, or remaine peculiar to this.

6. An original Letter of William Haydoke to Richard Norrey Kinge of Armes (i. e. Mr. Richard St. George here called Norroy only, according to the ancient usage) written 11 September, during the time of this Visitation. 113.

7. Alphabetical Table of the Surnames of those Families, whose Descents are registred herein.

8. At the end, is fastened in, a loose Paper, printed, with this Title, "A true portraiture of sundrie Coynea found the 8 of Aprill & other daies following, in the year 1611, in a certaine place called the Harkirke within the Lordship of Little Crobrie in the Parish of Sephton

Num. 1437, 1438.

Septon, in the Countie of Lancaſter: which Place William Blundell of the ſaid Little Croſbie Eſquire incloſed from the Reſidue of the ſaid Harkirke, for the Buriall of ſuch Catholick Recufantes deceaſing, either of the ſaid Village, or of the adjoining neighbourhood, as ſhould be denied Buriall at their Pariſh Church of Septon.

In this Print 35 Coyins are repreſented, whereof 32 are Anglo-Saxon, & the other three are Foreign. But notwithstanding their Title of a true purtrature, I know that many of them are incorrectly engraven: the Prielt or Perſon who endeavoured to diſpoſe them into the form of a Croſs, ſeeming to have more Superſtition than Learning.

An Heraldical Book in fol. written by divers hands; and at the beginning entituled by John Withie HEREFORDSHIRE, 1586. concerning which, I shall beg leave to make one or two short Observations, I finding therein,

1. Arms of many Herefordshire Gentlemen, hastily tricked; being, for the most part, granted to them A.D. 1634. At the beginning.

2. Alphabetical Table of the Surnames of Families, whose Descents are contained in this Book.

3. The Visitation-book of the County of Hereford, of the year 1586. if any such was made that Year, as I cannot hitherto certainly learn that there was. However it is plain, that divers Descents here are brought down lower than in the Visitation-book of Robert Cooke Clarenceux, made A.D. 1569. and if it may not be reputed a Visitation-book, it cannot be denied the reputation of being a Collection of Pedegrees of the Gentry of the same County, very fairly set forth.

4. It appears that John Saunders's Book 82. A. 9. above described, is a Copie of this; but withall, that the said Copie hath some additions, made afterwards unto it, which are not to be found here.

5. It appeareth also, that this book is a transcript from that of William Peason in this Library, inscribed 66. A. 24. breaking off abruptly in the midst of Blounts Descent, at fol. 104. b. of that Book; which therefore could not be expressed intirely, in the book 82. A. 9.

6. In this Book there are some additional Pedegrees, & continuations, inserted therein by John Withie & others since it was copied from Mr. Lancaster Penfon's; and some of them since it was copied by John Saunders.

7. As to the Hand that wrote it; although it be somewhat like the hand of Mr. Penfon, Mr. Augustine Vincent, & John Withie; yet I am inclined to believe that it is not of any of them; unless it might have been done by Mr. Penfon, when he was resolved to write better than he commonly did.

An Heraldical Book in fol. all written & tricked by the hand of Mr. John Withie the Paper-Stainer, who hath given it the Title following,

1. The Visitation of the Countie of Wilts made & taken by Henry St. George Esq. Richmond-Herald, and Sampson Lennard Blew-manthe: Marshall & Deputies to William Camden Esq. alias Clarenceux King of Armes of the South, East, & West Parts of England, from the River Trent, Anno Dom. 1623. Together with the Visitation of the said Countie, taken Anno Dom.

Num. 1443—1445.

1565, by William Hervey Clarenceux, with additions, & continuations.

Here it must be understood, that the two Visitation-books said to be contained in this Volume, are not separate one from the other; but that the Vol. of 1623, is grafted upon, or a Continuation of that made in anno 1565, as a very useful way of writing Pedegrees; although the acquiring of each several Visitation-book, of every County, is by no means to be rejected.

2. In this Book, besides the Descents & Armes, are some few Tricks of Seals & private Evidences; and

3. The Armes & Supporters of the Citie of New Sar.

4. Seales of the Towne & Borough of Wootton-Basset.

5. Armes belonging to the Guild & Steward of the Towne & Borough of Calne.

6. Seale & Armes of the Towne & Borough of Marlborough.

7. Armes of the Towne & Borough of the Devises.

8. Armes belonging to the Fellowship & Corporation of the Burgeses Merchant-Adventurers, Clothiers, Weavers, Drapers, & Taylors, and others using any Art or Facultie within the Towne & Borough of the Devises.

9. Common Seale of the Towne & Borough of Malmesburie.

10. Common Seale of the Towne & Borough of Chipenham.

11. The Names of those of that were disclaymed at Salisbury . . . September, Anno 1623.

12. Wootton Bassett-Church-Notes, taken in the yeare 1616, by me John Withie.

13. Armes in the Church of Chipnam in the County of Wilts. taken 1616, by me John Withie.

14. Armes, &c. in the Church of Cawne in the County of Wilts. taken 1616, by me John Withie.

15. Alphabetical Table of the Surnames of Families, whose Pedegrees are herein contained. At the end.

I 444.

An Heraldical Book in fol. wherein are contained,

1. Armes of some few of the London-Gentry, hastily

2. A good Number of the Descents & Armes of the London Gentry, copied from the Visitation-book of the same City made A.D. 1634, by Sir Henry St. George Richmond-Herald, for Sir Richard St. George Clarenceux, and (as I remember) Sir John Borough.

3. Alphabetical Table to the abovementioned Descents.

At the beginning.

I 445.

An Heraldical Book in fol. all written & tricked by the hand of Mr. John Withie the Painter-Stainer; who hath given this Title to it,

1. The Visitation of the Countie of Somerset, taken by Henry St. George Esq; Richmond-Herald, and Sampson Lennard Blev-mantle, Marshalls & Deputies to William Camden Esq; Clarenceux, King of Arms, of the South, East, & West Parts of the Realme of England, from the River of Trent, Anno Domini 1623.

With the Visitation as made Anno Dom. 1565. Whether the date of the last-mentioned Visitation, viz. 1565, be right, I now not: having at present, no other knowledge of any Visitation made of this County in that year, but from hence. Richard Mundy's book. N^o 15:9. maketh no mention of any such; yet it appears that he was diligent in getting the old Visitations, having tacked his Descents taken in A.D. 1623. to those taken by Raif

Num. 1445—1447.

Brooke in A.D. 1591. & also to those taken by Robert Cooke in ann. 1573. which, perhaps, may be in the Visitation that Mr. Withie meant.

In this Book, besides some few Continuations, Proofs from Evidences, and Tricks of Family-Seals; I find,

2. Common Seals of the City of Wells.

3. Common Seales of the Towne & Borough of Bridgewater.

4. Common Seales of the Towne & Borough of Axbridge.

5. Common Seales & Arms of the Citie of Bath.

6. Church Notes taken at Taunton.

7. The like at Bakewell.

8. The Names of those that usurped the titles of Gentlemen within the County of Somerset; and where disclaymed at Taunton, 16 Aug. 1623.

9. Alphabetical Table to the preceding Pedegrees.

10. Church-Notes taken within a few years at Bath; one of the Epitaphs being dated A.D. 1707.

An Heraldical Book in fol. written by divers hands; wherein I find contained,

1. An imperfect alphabetical Table to the two next ensuing Treats.

2. A Copie, as it should seem, of some old Roll, containing the Arms of many of the Kings of this Realm, and most of the Princes of the Plantagenet-Family: concluding with the Arms of Richard of Bourdeaux, before he was King; which perhaps, might be added to the same Roll, which otherwise more regularly ends with George Duke of Clarence Written & tricked by the hand of Robert Glover Somerset-Herald.

3. Part of an Ordinary of Arms in Trick; by the same Robert Glover.

Within the said Ordinary, are

4. Ten Coats born by the name of Hunt (inferred, perhaps by the same John Hunt, who hath left his name written at the top of pag. 2.)

5. Alphabetical Table to the Arms exhibited in this Book.

I 447.

An Heraldical Book in fol. by Mr. Nicholas Charles Lancaster, relating to the Order of the Garter; wherein are contained,

1. A Copie of the President of the most Honorable Order of the Garter, for the Livery of the said Noble Order; as to Cloth, Mynever, & Garters.

2. Things to be prepared for the Installation of a Knight of the Garter.

3. Duties (i.e. Fees) to be paid by the Knights of the Garter at there Installation at Windsor, according to their Estates.

4. Duties to be paid by every Knight of the Garter, at his first entry.

5. Duties to be paid for the Soules health of every Knight of the Garter, after their Estate and Degree.

6. Charges belonging to the Kinges Leiftenant at the feast of Saynt George.

8. Certeyne Duties which Garter Kinge at Armes of the Honorable Order, ought truly to have of the Sovereigne and the rest of the Company yerlie.

9. The Statutes & Ordnaunces of the most noble & honorable Order of Saynt George, named the Garter, reformed, reformed, explaind, declared, and also renewed by K. Henry VIII. with two additional Statutes. 4.

Num. 1447, 1448.

10. An Order to be observed & kept by the Knights of the noble Order of the Garter, being absent from the Royall Majestie, upon Saynt Georges daye. 9.

11. A Letter by the Kinge to a Knight new elected. 9. b.

12. The Knight's Othe that is new elected. ibid.

13. A Licence for a Knight of the Garter in beinge absent from the Feast of Saynt George. ibid.

14. The Order how a Knight of the Garter is disgraced at the Colledge of Windesore; exemplified in the Case of Edward Stafford Duke of Buckingham. 10.

15. Of the Institution of the Order of the Garter; with the time & occasion thereof. 10. b.

16. The Armes & Crests of the several Sovereigns & Knights of the Garter; some of them in Colours. 11.

This Tract goes down to King James the First, being done by some good hand, and containing besides, some Notes relating to divers of the said Knights: in his Reign it goeth on to Karre Viscount Rochester, intalled 13 May 1611. whose armes, with those of the two before him, and divers of the Titles, are plainly of the hand of Mr. Nicholas Charles Lancaster Herald. From thence it is continued in a worse manner, mostly by John Withie to James Stuart Duke of York & Albanie, lately King by the title of James II.

17. Alphabetical Table to the precedent Arms of the Knights of the Garter. 75.

18. John Withies List of Knights of the Garter, from Algernon Percie Earl of Northumberland, to Henry Bennet Earl of Arlington. 78.

19. Part of Pope Gelafius his Decree exploding the History of the Passion of St. George. 79.

20. List of Authors who make mention of him; to which might be added the Martyrologium Romanum; the Anglo-Saxon Menologium; some accounts of his Passion in Greek in the Bodleian Library; another in Arabic; and another both in Coptic & Arabic, all in the same place. This List & the last Article, seem to be of the hand of William Camden Clarenceux.

An Heraldical Book in fol. written & tricked by divers hands; wherein are contained,

1. An alphabetical Table to the Descents of the Northumberland-Gentry, made by Sir Henry St. George the elder. At the beginning. 1.

3. A Copie of the Visitation-book of the County of Northumberland, as the same was made and taken A.D. 1615, by Richard St. George Norrey, and in his Company Henry St. George Blew-mantle, abovementioned. Observables in this Copie, may be, 27.

4. Tricks of the Seals & Armes of the Towne of Newcastle upon Tyne. 1. b.

5. Seal of the Towne & Burroughe of Berwicke upon Tweede. 3.

6. Four Coats borne by the name of Collingwood. inter 13 & 14.

7. The Descent of Carr of Woodhall, is of the hand of the same Sir Henry St. George. 19. b.

8. The Descent of Lille of Fenton, is of the same hand. 27.

9. Here are very many Transcripts of & Extracts from private Deeds; many Tricks of private Seals; with some continuations, & additional Descents.

Num. 1449; 1450.

An Heraldical Book in fol. written & tricked by Jacob Chaloner the Painter-Stainer; wherein are contained,

1. Armes of the Dukes, Marquisses, Earls, Barons, & antient Knights of the County of Suffolk: with some few additional Armes. At the beginning.

2. Justiciarij de Com. Suffolciæ A.D. 1601.

3. Copie of the Visitation-book of the County of Suffolk, as the same was made & taken A.D. 1561. by William Hervey Clarenceux, with large continuations, and some additional Descents and Armes: as well by the Hand of the same Jacob Chaloner, as of others. 1.

Herein I also find,

4. The Seal of the Towne & Borough of Sudbury. 37.

5. Seal of the Towne & Borough of Aldborough. 44.

5. The Armes & Common Seale of the Towne & Borough of Poole.
6. The Names of those that were disclaimed at Bridport, & at Dorchester, A.D. 1623.
7. Alphabetical Table to the Descents in this Book; at the end.
8. At the beginning is a List of some of the Dorsetshire Gentlemen, who were (as it seemeth) in the Commission of the Peace; in a more recent hand.

A Book in fol. written & tricked for the most part, by Mr. Sampson Lennard Blew-mantle; wherein are contained,

1. An alphabetical Table to the Tract, mentioned in the fourth Article.
2. Notes touching the noble Families owners of the Castles, &c. in Kent.
3. Some Acct. of the Contents of this Book.
4. A Collection of the Arms of many English & other Families; partly in order alphabetical, & partly without order.
5. Arms of certain antient Families, in Blazon.
6. Arms borne by divers eminent Personages of the County of Devon; some of them found in Churches.
7. Arms of the Gentry of Devonshire, in Blazon; putt down alphabetically.
8. Arms of Charles, & of Hudson; both of Warwickshire; with the Crest of Odinglells.
9. Arms of the Leicestershire Gentry, alphabetically.
10. Arms of some other Leicestershire Families.
11. Arms of the Gentlemen of the County of Lincoln.
12. Arms of the Gentlemen of the County of Lancaster; most of them in way of Alphabet.
13. Arms of the Gentry of the County of Essex.
14. Arms of the Gentry of the County of Suffolk.
15. Alphabetical Table containing the Names of some of the Families mentioned in this book.
16. Arms of the Gentry of the County of Norfolk.
17. The beginning of an Alphabet of Arms, for the County of Norfolk; in Blazon.
18. The Copie of Sir William Fairfax's Book of Arms for Yorkshetire.
19. Arms & Crest of Beke of Arley in Com. Berks.
20. Alphabet of Arms in Blazon, of the Cornish Gentry.

CAT. HARL. VOL. II.

Num. 1452, 1453.

21. Arms with Crests, or Quarterings, of divers Families.

22. Part of Robert Cooke Clarenceux his Treatise, concerning the Creations of the Nobility of England; as it seemeth; but larger, in many places, than some other Copies of the same.

An Heraldical Book in fol. for the most part tricked & written by Nicholas Charles, Lancaster-Herald; wherein are contained,

1. An imperfect account of the Contents of this Book, by John Withie; at the beginning.
2. A Collection of Arms & Crests, granted or confirmed by Robert Cooke Clarenceux.
- Herein I observe, besides some explanatory Notes,
3. A short Descent of Marlor.
4. A short Descent of Wardour.
- Then followeth,
5. A Tract of Ralph Brooke, or Brokesmouth Yorke Herauld, under this Title, "Dyverle Guifts of Armes passed by Sir William Dethick when he was Garter; as they were informed to the Earle of Essex Earle Marshall of England, by York Herald." But Ralph's own Title followeth in these words; "A Catalogue of a few Armes & Crests as hath byn given by William Dethick now called Garter, with some Note of other his Abuses maynteyned and lyked of by some his followers new-elected Officers of Armes, which have byn Brokers for the same."

Herein honest Ralph endeavors to take away Sir William Dethick's reputation; if he had any left. What became of this Complaint I cannot yet tell; but Sir William was turned out of his Office of Garter (or, as the Heralds had rather say, "Deposed") for fresh matter.

6. Other Arms & Crests granted or confirmed by the same Sir William Dethick.

Here also seem to be some of Sir Gilbert Dethick Garter; father to the said Sir William; with Ralph Brookes Epilogue or Conclusion, written by another hand.

7. Grant of Arms, &c. to the Company of Glovers, or Leather Sellers of London, by John Smart Garter, A.D. 1464, by John Moore, Norroy, 20 May, 19 Edw. iv. and by Roger Machado Richmond, 7th Nov. A.D. 1505, as they were confirmed at the Visitation of London, by Sir Henry St. George Richmond, A.D. 1534, and by his son Sir Henry St. George Clarenceux, A.D. 1687. written & tricked by John Saunders.

8. Arms & Crests granted or confirmed unto many Families, by William Camden Clarenceux, Sir William Segar Garter, Sir William Dethick Garter, Sir Richard St. George Norroy, Robert Cooke Clarenceux, Richard Lee Clarenceux; and perhaps by others; with some Notes by Mr. Nicholas Charles Lancaster-Herald.

It seemeth as if Sir William Segar upon inspecting this Tract, did not approve of the making mention of his Name therein; which might occasion some marginal Notes, at psgs. 128, 129, 130, 131, 136, 138, 139, 140.

9. Here is also a short Descent of Cooper.

10. Alphabetical Table to the Names of Families, whose Arms are exhibited in this Book, thus far.

Then followeth,

11. Another Collection of Arms of divers of the Nobility & Gentry, with Crests, or Supporters, or Mottoes, or Quarterings; several of which Arms, are noted as Grants; all tricked promiscuously.

Some of these seeming more remarkable than the rest, I take leave to mention.

Num. 1453; 1454.

12. The Arms of Gilbert Lord Talbot & Earle of Shrewsbury as they were marshalled in his last Pedegree. 146.
13. The Armes of the Lord Fitz-Hugh, with those of his Wife; as they were embroidered upon an old Cope. 146. b.
14. The Armes of the Earle of Pembroke, as they were marshalled for him on St. Georges day, 1610. by me Nich. Charles Lancaster. 147.
15. Arms of Hellen the daughter of George (or Wolfgangus as in Dugd. Baronage) Suavenburg, a Swedish Nobleman, wife to William Parre Marquis of Northampton. 147.
16. Arms of Conway with Quarterings; to the second Coat whereof, there is no name; it being Welsh, and that Nation formerly had no Surnames. 149. b.
17. The Arms of Mary Queen of Scots as Dolphinels of France, quartering those of England without difference. 150.
18. Arms & Crests of four Families of the name of Darrell. 150. b.
19. Arms of Henry de la Tour Duke of Bouillon, by some called Henry de la Marche. 151.
20. Arms of Louys del Hospital Baron de Vitrye. 151. b.
21. Arms of Penestone, with Quarterings, & 13 Crests. 157.
22. Arms of Sir Edward Cary, with Quarterings & 13 Crests. 158.
23. Arms of Sir Thomas Knevit Baron of Efferick, with Supporters, & 13 Crests. 158. b.
24. Arms of Grave Maurice Prince of Orange, with Quarterings, & 3 Crests. 159.
25. Achievement of the Lord Spencer, impaling Willeghby; with Quarterings, & 6 Crests. 160.
26. Arms of Chetwood, with Crest, Quarterings, & Supporters. 160. b.
27. Achievement of Henry Howard Earl of Surrey, for which he was attained. 161.
28. Arms of with Quarterings. 162.
- Then follow,
29. Arms of divers Citizens, Sherriffes, & Aldermen of London. 163.
30. Alphabetical Table to the Arms above-mentioned, from N^o 11. inclusive. 164. b.
31. The Names of all those that have had Armes granted unto them by William Flower Esq. alias Norroy King of Armes. since the tyme of his Creation & Coronation; which was on Shrovetuesday the 8th of February 1. 61. 166.
32. The Names of those Persons to whome William Flower King of Armes hath delivered Patentees of Armes, since the tyme that the Right Honourable George Earl of Shrewsbury hath been Erle Marechall of England, viz. ab anno 1573. to this present 185. 168.
- The two last Articles seem to be of the hand-writing of Robert Glover Somerset-Herald.

- An Account Book in fol. placed in this Library only to preserve the latter part of it, as containing,
1. The Posting-book of the Accompts of Stephen Huigons (vid. fol. 44.) Apothecary of London, from 4th May 1594. to 29th Octob. 1605. 1.
2. A like book of some other Apothecary, beginning at A.D. 1646. and ending A.D. 1661. 62. b.
- Then follow,
3. Some Papers relating to the Combination of the Painter Stainers of London, who agreed to work in one common Room as a Society, which was to be governed by a President, Treasurer, &c.

Num. 1454-1457.

- This Society was to lay down such a sum of Money at first; each Man according to his Proportion; they were to work each Man in his turn, not in their own Houses, but in the common-working Room; what was received by any person, for work bespoken of him, was to be brought to the Treasurer, whose Accompts were audited Quarterly, and a Dividend made of the Money remaining in his hands. This Society began about 3d March 1686-7. 153.
4. The Account of Mr. John Saunders the first Treasurer to this new Society; being audited Quarterly, and fairly cleared off at the year's end. 155. b.
5. The Account of Jeremiah Wright, Painter Stainer, chosen the second Treasurer, 29th March 1688. to October following; without any Quarterly audit. 175. b.
6. Notes of Parcels of Goods of divers kind; relating to Mr. Saunders's Account; where (like as in the same Account) may be found the hand-writing of divers of these Painters. 181. b.

- An Heraldical Book in fol. almost wholly tricked & written by Mr. John Withie the Painter-Stainer; wherein are contained,
1. An imperfect Table to the ensuing Treatise.
2. A Collection of Arms & Crests, borne by different Families of the same Surname; or of Surnames somewhat agreeing in Sound, or Writing; tricked in printed Escutcheons. Very useful.

- A large Heraldical Book in fol. all done by the hand of Mr. John Withie; wherein are contained,
- The Achievements of the English Nobility, living about the 16th year of K. Charles 1. all painted with lively colours.

1457.

- An Arms-book in large fol. all written & tricked within printed Escutcheons by Mr. John Saunders the Painter-Stainer, who (as I believe) caused it to be entituled on the back, "ALL COUNTYS ARMES." It containeth indeed, the Arms of the Nobility & Gentry of most of the Counties of England, to each of which, there is a separate Table at the end (although one general Table would have done better) which Tables being not very easy to find; I shall direct the Reader to them, at the same time as I mention the Counties they refer to. Omitting therefore the Table of Shires at the beginning, I find herein,
1. Arms of the Cornish Gentry, with some Crests. The Table is at fol. 360. b. 1.
2. Arms of the Wiltshire Gentry; with some Crests. The Table is at fol. 360. b. 13.
3. Arms of the Hertfordshire Gentry; with some Crests. The Table at 361. 17.
4. Arms of the Staffordshire Gentry; with some Crests. The Table at 361. b. 20.
5. Arms of the Gentry of Cumberland; with some Crests. The Table at 362. & 380. 24. 231.
6. Arms of the Buckinghamshire Gentry; with some Crests. The Table at 362. b. 25. b.
7. Arms of the Dorsetshire Gentry; with some Crests. The Table at 363. 32.
8. Arms of the Gentry of the County of Berkshire; with some Crests. The Table at 363. b. 35; 390. b.
9. Arms of the Gentry of Gloucestershire; with some Crests. The Table at 364. 37. b.
10. Arms of the Gentry of Lincolnshire; with some Crests. The Table at 364. b. 372. 41. 150.
11. Arms

Num. 1457, 1458.

11. Arms of the Essex Gentry; with some Crests. The Table at 365. b. 49.
12. Arms of the Kentish Gentry; with some Crests. The Table at 366. b. 63. b. 288.
13. Arms of the Leicestershire Gentry; with some Crests. The Table at 367. 75.
14. Arms of the Gentry of the County of Worcester; with some Crests. The Table at 367. b. 82.
15. Arms of the Gentry of the County of Surrey; with some Crests. The Table at 368. 85.
16. Arms of the Gentry in the Bishoprick of Durham; with some Crests. The Table at 368. b. 92.
17. Arms of the Gentry of the County of Suffex; with some Crests. The Table at 369. 97.
18. Arms of the Gentry of Bedfordshire; with some Crests. The Tables at 369. b. & 380. b. 103. 307.
19. Arms of the Gentry of the County of Norfolk; with some Crests. The Table at 370. 106.
20. Arms of the Suffolk-Gentry; with some Crests. The Table at 370. b. 116.
21. Arms of the Gentry of Cheshire; with some Crests. The Table at 371. 129.
22. Arms of the Lancashire Gentry; without Crests. The Table at 372. b. 159. b.
23. Arms of the Hampshire Gentry; with some Crests. The Table at 378. not completed. 163. b. 277.
24. Arms of the Yorkshire Gentry; with some Crests. The Tables at 373. 374. 376. 164.
25. Arms of the Northumberland Gentry; with some Crests. The Table at 380. 233.
26. Arms of the Northamptonshire Gentry; with some Crests. The Table at 375. b. 236. 297.
27. Arms of the Somersetshire-Gentry; with some Crests. The Table at 376. 241.
28. Arms of the Devonshire Gentry; with some Crests. The Table at 376. b. 242.
29. Arms of the Warwickshire Gentry; with some Crests. The Table at 377. 254.
30. Arms of the Cambridgeshire Gentry; with some Crests. The Table at 377. b. 262.
31. Arms of the Shropshire Gentry; with some Crests. The Table at 377. b. 267.
32. Arms of the Hampshire Gentry; with some Crests. The Table at 378. 277. 164.
33. Arms of the Oxfordshire Gentry; with some Crests. The Table at 378. b. 283.
34. Arms of the Derbyshire Gentry; with some Crests. The Table at 379. 285.
35. Arms of the Nottinghamshire Gentry; with some Crests. The Table at 379. 291.
36. Arms of the Herefordshire Gentry; with some Crests. The Table at 379. b. 294.
37. Arms of the Huntingdonshire Gentry; with some Crests. The Table omitted. 311. b.
38. Arms of the Gentry in Middlesex; with some Crests. The Table at 379. b. 324.
39. Arms of the London Gentry; with some Crests. The Table at 380. 334.

NB. The Arms of the Rutlandshire Gentry are omitted; and that in divers of the other Counties the Arms are taken from more than one Visitation-book; not to mention here the Arms of the Lincolnshire-Families, from the Paintings in the Lord Treasurer's Gallery at Theobalds, which is also included therein.

1458.

An Heraldical Book in fol. tricked & written by & containing,

1. An Ordinary of Arms tricked in printed Elicochons.
2. Rough Draught of a Table to this numerous Collection of Arms.

Num. 1459, 1460.

A thick Heraldical Book in fol. before fol. 1. thus entitled;

1. "This is a true Coppie of a Booke of Armes (otherwise called a Booke of Ordinaries) which was tricked and written by the hands of the late worthy Gentleman Robert Glover Esq. Somerset-Herauld; but put into a more ample & playne order & methode, and also enlarged (the which you shall finde marked & written with Vermillion) by mee John Withie, 1628."

Besides which, Mr. Withie hath also written herein.

2. A Table (for expedition) to finde out every thing of speciall Note, conteyned in this Booke: that is, shewing the method used in this Ordinary. At the beginning.

At the end is a Table, by Mr. John Withie thus entitled, "An alphabetically Callender (readily) to finde out every perticuler Name in his Page.

4. Some few Additions have been made by Mr. Saunders to this Ordinary; which is all along tricked in printed Elicochons.

It is plain by the date, that Mr. Withie made this excellent Book when he was but a young man; which may be the reason why it doth not contain all the Arms found in other Books that came to his hands. I observe this, not by way of detraction from his, or Mr. Glover's labours, but to encourage the Reader, if he cannot find a desired Coat in this great Collection, not to forbear consulting others, although they may be in many respects inferior to this.

An Heraldical & Historical Book in fol. written by the hand & painted or illuminated with Metals & Colours, by the order of a whimsical Author, one Paine or Fitz-Paine Fisher; who afterwards died in the Fleet, as I have heard; having printed many Encomiums and Compliments on those who had been eminent for their Loyalty to King Charles I. This Book containeth,

1. The Attievement of an Emperor of Fitz-Paine's own making; with the following Inscription,

"Infignia tam hereditaria quam honoraria fere-nissimi prepotentissimique Principis Olivari D. G. Ang. Scot. Hib. cum Dominis prope longiusque jacentibus, Protectoris, nec non Imperatoris semper Augusti."

2. As to the Work itself; it beareth this Title, "A perfect Registry of all the Colloours (and Standards) taken from the Scots at Preston in the County of Lancaster, by the then Lieutenant-Generall Cromwell, anno 1648. As also, of all the Colloours both of Horse & Foot, taken from the Scots at Dunbarr in Scotland, by his then Excellency, the Lord Generall Cromwell, 3d Sept. 1650. And for the perpetuall Memoriall of those signall Trophies of his Highnesse Victories & Valour to succeeding Ages; carefully collected & compiled by FF. FF. (i. e. Fitz-Paganum Fiferum, Fitz-Pagani filium) Historiographer of his Highnesse Warres in Irland & Scotland.

These Standards & Colours were in number 223. and are all of them, or so much of them as remained, represented in this Book, which looks as if designed for the present Book.

3. But before the said Colours, is a Dedication to Oliver's Privy Councillors, each of whose Arms are done with proper Metals & Colours, in the following style, "Ad Olivari Dei Grat. Ang. Scot. Hib. cum diuionibus circumjacentibus, nec non insularum longius Occidentium peramplissimi Protectoris, et Imperatoris semper Augusti Consilia cooptatis, Dom. Primoribus, Patriasque sue Luminibus eminentissimis: eruditissimo Domino Dom. Henrico-Laurentio predicti Conceilij Presidi perquam Prudentissimo—&c.—Fitz-Paganus Piscator bocce perpetuum Observantia Monumentum.

Num. 1461-1463.

An Heraldical Book in fol. tricked in printed Escutcheons, & written by the hand of Mr. John Saunders the Painter-Stainer wherein are contained,

1. A Fragment of a Collection of the different Arms, born by different Families of the same name: this was designed to be put down in way of Alphabet, but proceedeth no farther than the names of Ablyn, Aburton, Abewe, Alford, Amory, Atton, Arundell, & Acton.

2. A Collection of Armes, with some Crests, of that kind which some call Ribus alluding to the most part, to the sur-name of the Bearer; and sometimes to his original, manners, or qualifications.

3. A Collection of Arms & Crests, granted or confirmed by divers Kings of Arms, unto many persons & families (I believe most of them were copied from the book 8. C. 14. and will therefore make no farther mention of it.)

4. A large Collection of Arms, with this Title, "Worke begun & carried on by a common Consent of Arms-Painters, at a publick Workhouse, from April the 4th 1687. to the 6th of August 1694.

This useful Registre sheweth also not only the name of the Defunct, & the time when the work was bespoken (which to be sure was soon after body & soul were separated) but the Quantity of work so ordered, and the name of the Person who furnished the same.

5. Alphabetical Table of Surnames. At the end.

A thin Heraldical Book in fol. to which Mr. John Witthie hath prefixed this Title,

1. "The Names, Armes, & Crests, of all the Knights of the Bath, made at the Coronation of King James, 1603. at the Creation of Charles Duke of York; at the Creation of Henry Prince of Wales; at the Creation of Charles Prince of Wales; and at the Coronation of King Charles, 1625. all in their due rank & place, written & tricked (in Escutcheons with Mantles & Helms all printed) by the same John Witthie.

Then follow,

2. The Names and Armes of those Honorable Persons who were created Knights of the Bath at the Coronation of K. Charles the Second, April 23d 1661. written & tricked in like manner by Mr. John Saunders and others.

3. At the end is a printed Tract, with this Title, "The manner of creating the Knights of the ancient & honorable Order of the Bath, according to the Custom used in England, in time of Peace. With a List of those honorable Persons who are to be created Knights of the Bath at his Majesties Coronation, 23d April, 1661. London 1661. 4to.

An Heraldical Book in fol. almost wholly tricked & written by Mr. Nicholas Charles Lancaister Herald; and by Mr. John Witthie thus entitled,

1. "The Visitation of London, taken by Robert Cooke Clarenceux, King of Armes, Anno Dom. 1568. and since augmented both with Descents and Armes.

Intermixed with this Visitation-book, and the additional Descents and Armes, I find,

2. Robert Cooke's Attestation of the Arms of Sebright & his Quarterings; which he makes to be hereditary in England in the time of King Henry II. from the sight of sundry very fayre & auncient Deeds, Charters, & Records of credit & authority.

After the said additional Descents, or Continuations, wherein I find the hand-writing of William Camden Clarenceux, who bought Mr. Charles's books after his decease; I find done by the same Mr. Charles,

Num. 1463-1465.

3. Arms of divers Gentlemen & Knights, Inhabitants of London; among which are several Descents by . . . and others.

4. Mr. Charles his alphabetical Table, to the above-mentioned Visitation-book.

5. Another alphabetical Table made by Mr. Charles; and relating both to the Visitation & to the Additions.

6. Alphabet of Arms of the London Gentry, in Blazon.

7. List of many Citizens of London who were made Knights, drawn up alphabetically: with their Arms emblazoned.

8. Arms of divers of the Company of Skinners of London, who were Gentlemen; in Blazon.

9. Arms of divers of the London Gentry, tricked promiscuously.

10. Another alphabetical Table made by Mr. Charles, which seemeth not to belong to this Book.

An Heraldical Book in fol. all relating to the Citizens of London, & the City itself; at the beginning whereof I find the following Note written, "A° 1634, this Booke was taken by Mr. Richard Pice Armes-Painter, in the time of the Visitation of London, for which I gave him 20 pounds. Witness my hand John Witthie. It containeth,

1. A short narration of the antiquity of the City of London, and of the Government thereof by Portreeves, Sherifes, Bayliffes, &c. together with a Translation of William the Conqueror's Charter of the Liberties thereof.

2. Arms of Henry Fitz-Alwine the first Mayor of London; and of three other old Mayors.

3. Concerning the ancient Arms of London; and that of old time there was an L in the Canton, and not a sword; contrary to the opinion of John Stowe.

4. The Armes of St. George for England; the auncient Armes of London; & the present Attcheivement of London.

Then follow,

5. The Arms or Attcheivements of the severall Companies of the City of London; with proper Notes touching their Incorporation, &c. and the Armes of such of them as had been Mayors, Sherifes, or otherways eminent Members of their respective Companies, so far as they could be found or retrieved.

In this Tract, up & down may be found some Notes of the hand-writing of Sir Henry St. George senr. Mr. John Witthie, & others.

6. Armes of certain persons who had been Sherifes of London long since; but the Companies they belonged unto are doubtful.

7. Armes of severall Aldermen of London of diverse Companies.

8. Alphabetical Table to all the Armes above-mentioned.

9. John Witthie's List of the severall Companies of the City of London; & designation of the places where their respective Halls stood. Inferred at the end.

1465.

An Heraldical Book in fol. wherein are contained,

1. An Ordinary of Armes in Colours, with this Title, "Coates & Crests, collected by Thomas Chaloner of Cheshire, now at Dublin in Irelande, Anno 1588. August 22. of all Bearings.

2. An

Num. 1465—1467.

2. An alphabetical Table of the Surnames of Families, whose Arms are exhibited in this Book.

3. A Table for the Coats in this Booke. That is, shewing where the severall heads under which the Arms are arranged; may be found.

1466.

An Heraldical Book in fol. written & tricked by Edward Cole the Painter-Stainer; who was cotemporary with, and wrote much like Mr. John Saunders. It containeth,

1. A Table to the next ensuing Collection.

2. Arms & Atchievements painted by this Edward Cole, or others; for funerals or other Occasions, and entered herein for his own use. 1.

3. Two Bills of Work done by this Edward Cole, with a letter of his at the beginning. 16.

Turning to the other end of the book, I find,

4. A Table to the Arms at this End.

5. Arms of some families, granted by Sir Edward Byshe, & Sir Edward Walker Garter. 1.

6. A like Entrance-Book as was at the other end. 23.

Herein I also find,

7. A Descent of Gore. 23. b.

8. Descent of Staples. 25.

9. Descent of Shaftoe. ibid.

10. Pedegree of Cresset of Upton-Cresset; with Arms. 26.

11. Pedegree of Gregoy of Stivichal near Coventre. 27. b.

12. Descent of Vyvyan. 34.

13. Descent of Levett. 37.

14. Descent of Huntley of Boxwell, in Com. Gloucestr. 40.

1467.

An Heraldical Book in fol. written & tricked by divers hands; wherein are contained,

1. A List of the Justices of the Peace for the County of Northampton, A.D. 1601. inserted in partitions over printed Mantles, Helmets, & Escudocheons, wherein some of their Arms & Crests are tricked. 1.

2. Arms of the Gentry of the County of Northampton; with some of their Crests & Quarterings. 3. b.

3. Descent of Vaux of Harrowdon, by William Penfon Lancaster Herald. Inserted before fol. 11.

4. Pedegree (& Arms) of the Northamptonshire Gentry, written by Jacob Chaloner; perhaps from the Visitation-book of this County made Ann. Dñi 1618 & 1619. by Auguiline Vincent Rouge Rose, for William Camden Clarenceux; with continuations by Richard Munday & John Saunders, &c. 11.

5. Arms & Descents of some Northamptonshire families; by another hand. 52. b.

6. Ratification of Arms, with proper difference, to Bernard Garter of Brigstock; by Will. Segar Garter. dat. 2 July, 10 Jac. 1. 54.

7. Descent & Arms of Acton. 54. b.

8. Descents & Pedegrees of many Northamptonshire Families; written narratively, A.D. 1635 (as appeareth fol. 61.) but whether by Thomas Colwel Gent. who is mentioned at fol. 62. as the Composer of the Pedegree of Norwich of Brampton-Dingley; I know not. 55.

9. Arms of Thorne, alias Dorne of Northamptonshire. Inserted after fol. 68.

10. Alphabetical Table, at the end; written partly by Jacob Chaloner; & partly by others.

Num. 1468, 1469.

1468.

An Heraldical Book in fol. done by divers hands; wherein are contained,

1. John Saunders his alphabetical Table of the Surnames of those Families whose Descents were registred in the Visitation-book of Middlesex presently to be described. 1.

2. An alphabetical Table of the Surnames of Families mentioned in that part of this book which relateth to Lancashire; as well of the Arms, & Matches, as of the Descents. 2.

This being drawn up before the book was bound, and not answering to the present numbers of Pages or Leaves (not to mention the Additions which are not comprehended therein) makes it not of so good use as otherwise it might be.

3. Pedegrees of the Lancashire Gentry, as registred (narratively) in the Visitation-book of that County, made A.D. 1567. by William Flower Norroy. 12.

Over each Descent is a Blank-Escudocheon, with Mantle & Helmet stamped or printed upon the paper, the Mantles being so contrived as to fit the Crests, which with the Arms are tricked therein.

10. Differences proper to be born by Sons, or Brethren of younger Houses; at the end.

A Book in fol. for the most part of the hand of Mr.
John Saunders the Painter-Stainer; containing,

1. Part of the Visitation-book of Shropshire, according as it was made & taken A.D. 1623. by Robert Tref-well Somerset-Herald, & Augustin Vincent Rouge-Croix, for William Camden Clarenceux. 12.

This seemeth to have been taken from John Withie's Book of this Visitation (which was also grounded upon the Visitation book of A.D. 1584. taken by Richard Lee Porteuill for Robert Cooke Clarenceux) but not immediately; and, in my opinion, is inferior to Withies Copie, so far as it goes. However, if it contain any Descent which that hath not, it is more to be valued.

In this part, besides some Extracts or Copies of old Evidences, & Tricks of private Seals, I find,

2. The Seales of the Towne of Brugenorth. 22.

3. The Common Seale of the Towne of Bishops-Castle. 54. b.

4. Alphabetical Tible of Surnames. 66. b.

Num. 1472.

NB. Mr. Saunders intended to have tricked the Armes of the Shropshire Gentry at the beginning of this Book; and accordingly this Table referreth unto them, although the Paper still remaineth blank.

5. Then follow some few Descents, belonging to this Visitation, which should have preceded the Table above-mentioned. 68. b.

After much blank Paper, and toward the end of the Book, Mr. Saunders entered down divers matters relating to the City of London, or Parish of St. Dunstan's in the West, wherein he was an eminent Inhabitant.
Since when, some other Papers have been added unto them, some of which are upon the matters following,

6. Verses Latin & English, of some poor Boys, offered to their Patrons, & to John Withie or John Saunders among the rest. 251.

7. A printed Summons for John Saunders to meet his fellow Commisfioners for charitable Uses, for the City of London. dat. 20th Oct. 1686. ibid.

8. Argument, that the Temple is exempt from the Jurisdiction of the City of London. 252.

9. John Withie's printed Order to the Beadle of St.
Andrew's Parish in Holbourn, requiring him to deliver into his hands, a Scrowle of all the Baronets, Knights, Esquires & Gentlemen, within that Division, for the use of Sr. Edward Byshe Clarenceux. dat. 14th Sept.
1663. 254.

10. Account of Moneys received or disbursed for the use of the Parish of St. Andrew's Holbourn, A.D.
1658. & 1659. 255.

11. Petition of Isabel Waters to be admitted into St.
Bartholomew's Hospital, for cure. 256.

12. Printed Charge or Exhortation, to those who are called to be Governors of the Hospital of Bridewell.
257.

13. Petition of Anne Daft, praying that her Son might be taken into Christ's Hospital: signed by divers of the Parish of St. Bride. 258.

14. Order of the Vestry of St. Clement's Danes, obliging the Parishioners to make use of no other than the Parish-Pall. dat. 12th July 1669. 259.

15. Printed Abstrakt of the Charter granted by K.
Charles II. for erecting a Corporation for relief of poor Widows & Children of Clergymen; with a List of the Governors, as they were, 8th November 1683. 261.

16. Printed Table of the accustomed Rates for Burials, for the Parish of St. Dunstan's in the West. 262.

17. The Parish Officers Bill for the buryall of Mr.
Melithes in the Church of St. Dunstan's in the West, 19th Novemb. 1682. 264.

18. List of the Officers of the said Parish or Ward, (where our John Saunders, is first of the Common-Council-Men.) 265.

19. Printed Certificate, shewing that John Saunders did qualify himself, 27th April, 1673. 267.

20. John Saunders's List of the Names & Surnames & Qualities of those persons that were Communicants at the Parish-Church of St. Dunstan's in the West, London, by virtue of an Act of Parliament Anno 25 Caroli II.
Regis entituled, "An Act for preventing Dangers which may happen from Popish Reculants." 269.

This beginneth 20th April 1673, & goeth on to 8th Febr. 1674 inclusively. Some of the loole Papers wherein their Names were first taken, are inserted herein.

21. A Voluntary Contribution towards the making & setting up an Organ in the Parish Church of St. Dunstan's in the West, London; collected by Mr. John Saunders Com. Councilman, Edward Kempe Churchwardens. A.D. 1674. 284.

22. Orders for the Vestry of the same Church, about disposing of the Remainder of the Money collected for the making & setting up their Organ. 286.

23. A long

Num. 1472—1474.

23. A long winded Receipt signed by Mr. Saunders, for two small Sums. 289.

24. Order of the Lord-Mayor of London to the Alderman of the Ward of Faringdon-without, to transmit unto Sir Henry St. George Clarencieux, a perfect List of all the Baronets, Knights, Esquires, Gentlemen or reputed Gentlemen, within the said Ward: the said Sir Henry being authorized to make a Visitation of the said City of London & Precincts thereof. dat. 16 December 1686. 290.

25. A Noat of what Money is subscribed towards the late Loane to his Royall Highnes the Prince of Orange, in the Parish of St. Martin's Ludgate, Farindon Extra. 291.

An Heraldical Book in fol. written & tricked by divers hands; wherein are contained.

1. Part of the Achievement of the Towne of Southampton; tricked by John Withie.

2. Arms of many of the Hampshire Gentry tricked in printed Escutcheons, by the same.

These have been lately inserted at the beginning.

3. Defcent of Pink of Hampshire, with their Coat; sett down by John Withie, A.D. 1657. inserted.

4. Alphabetical Table to the ensuing Descents.

5. Arms of the Hampshire-Gentry; belonging (except the 3 first Coats) to the next Treatise. 1.

6. Descents of the Hampshire-Gentry, as they were registred A.D. 1530. by Thomas Benolt Clarencieux; A.D. 1575. or 1576. by Robert Cooke Clarencieux; and A.D. 1622. by John Philipot Rouge-Dracoon for William Camden Clarencieux, with many Additions & Continuations made A.D. 1634. 3.

This with the Arms mentioned N^o 5. appears to be copied from the Book compiled and written by the diligent Mr. Mundy, which is now extant in this Library at 90. A. 16. only it may be noted that since this was taken from that, some Additions have been made to it, which are not to be found in this. In like manner, some Continuations, Explanatory Notes, with the additional Pedigree of Bromfield are inserted into this, and wanting in the other. Moreover as this appeareth to be a Copie of Mr. Mundy's Book; so, by the + made with Black Lead over most of the Descents, with some other Notes, it is plain that some other Book hath been made from this.

7. At the end is a Table containing the Names of most of the Families whose Descents are herein sett down according to the Order as they stand in this Book; but the Notation of the Pages shew that it referreth not to this Book; nor to the Book 90. A. 16. It is of the handwriting of

1. A Bill of Fees due to the King's Servants from all Persons that receive the Honour of Knighthood.

2. The Fees of the several Offices for a Baronet's Patent & Discharge.

3. The Descents (without Arms) of many Baronets, entred herein, in the year 1602, 1663, 1664, 1668, & 1669, to which Mr. John Saunders hath made divers continuations, and additions. 1.

4. John Withies alphabetical Table, as augmented by Mr. Saunders; toward the end.

5. Defcent of Coudham of Appletton in Norff. dated A.D. 1664. written by Mr. Withie at the end.

CAT. HARL. VOL. II.

Num. 1475—1477.

1475.

An Heraldical Book in fol. wherein I find,

1. A Table shewing the Disposition of the following Ordinary of Crests; begun to be made by Mr. John Withie, but unfinished.

2. An alphabetical Table of the Surnames of those Families whose Crests & Coats are entered in this Book, written by Mr. John Saunders at the beginning & end.

3. An Ordinary of Crests, with the Coats they belong to, tricked on printed Papers by Mr. John Withie; who hath left much Room for Additions; some small part whereof hath been made use of by Mr. John Saunders. 1. b.

It may be noted that this excellent & useful Collection is not complete; as including only the Ordinaries of Creatures or parts of them, which are to be supposed to have had life, or to have been in a state of growing. And this Notion must include the heraldical Monsters, as living Creatures. Whether Mr. Withie ever made another Volume for Crests, compiled or consulting of things inanimate, I know not.

4. In some parts of this Book, are inserted a few Leaves of an older Collection of Crests, disposed methodically in way of Ordinary, some part of which may perhaps be of the hand of Richard Scarlet the Painter-Stainer. One of them, namely before fol. 183. hath the latter end of some Table made to an heraldical Book by Thomas Knight Chester Herald.

A very thick Heraldical Book in fol. almost all written & tricked by the hand of Mr. John Withie the Painter-Stainer; wherein are contained,

1. A Table to the Visitation of London made in 1634, remaining in the Office of Armes.

2. Descents without Armes in the Visitation-book of London 1633, & 1634. remaining in the Office of Armes.

3. Table containing the Names of the Descents entered in this Booke, being the Visitation of London made Anno 1633 & 1634.

4. After the Tables above mentioned, & some Paper left blank, as I suppose, in order to the tricking thereon the Armes of the London-Gentry, comes the Visitation-book of London, according as the same was made & taken in the Years 1633 & 1634. by Sir Henry St. George Clarencieux, for Sir Richard St. George Clarencieux, & Sir John Burrough Norroy. 20.

Some of the Arms at the beginning are coloured.

5. There are also some few Continuations & Additions, done by the same Mr. Withie, Mr. Saunders, &c.

6. Herein is left as much blank Paper, as will hold the Visitation of London, taken A.D. 1664.

1477.

An Heraldical Book in fol. wherein are contained,

1. The Coats & Crests of almost all the Baronets, according to the seniority of their Creations) from Sir Nicholas Bacon, to Sir Roger Martin, who was created 28 March 1667. tricked and painted with Colors. 1.

2. The Coat & Crest of Sir George Walker, who was created a Baronet 28 January 1679. tricked, as it seemeth, by Mr. John Spicer. 98. b.

3. Alphabetical Table of the Surnames of those Baronets whose Arms or Crests are to be found in this Book. At the end.

Num. 1478.

1478.

An Heraldical Book in fol. wherein are contained,
 1. The Coats, Crests, & Supporters of the several Viscounts of England, painted as it seemeth, in few years after the Return of K. Charles II. 1.
 2. The Coats, Crests, & Supporters of most of the Barons of England, either painted or tricked, about A.D. 1665. 5.

Among these, I find,

3. The Style of George Berkeley, Earl of Berkeley, in Print; inserted after fol. 6.
 4. The Style of Francis Lord Willoughby of Parham, written in Latin; & inserted after fol. 12.

Toward the end, I find divers Funeral Trophies (as the Heralds call them) besitting those of almost all Degrees, painted in the following order; vizt.
 5. The Great Banner, & Six Bannerols, all adorned with the Armes of Hencage Finch Earl of Winchelsea, empanying those of his third Lady, Catherine the daughter of Sir Thomas Northclyffe & widow of Sir John Westworth. 41. b.

6. Trophies prepared for the Funeral of Gilbert Sheldon Arch-Bishop of Canterbury, who had before been Bishop of London, viz. Eight Bannerols with various Empalements; the Mitre, Crose, Crofier, Keys, &c. the great Banner (remarkable for its Chief) Six Escudocheons with his Arms & Empalements; & lastly, his Achievement. 42. b.

7. Trophies, upon occasion of the Death or Funeral of Thomas Howard Duke of Norfolk, as it seemeth, he died in Italy, A.D. 1678. being unmarried. They are, Eight Bannerols without Impalement; Coronet upon a Velvet Cushion; Surcoat of Armes, with Helmet, Mantle, & Crest; and a Great Banner, with a Chief. 43. b.

8. Trophies at the Funeral of Henry Pierpoint Marquis of Dorchester, being Six Bannerols without Impalement; Sword, Target, & Coronet; Surcoat of Armes, with Helmet, Mantle, & Crest; the Great Banner, with a Chief; the Coronet upon a Cushion. 44. b.

9. Trophies provided as it seemeth, for the funeral of Arthur Annelley Earl of Anglesey; being, a Coronet on a Cushion; a Great Coronet; a Standard with the Arms of St. George; his Crest & Motto; Six Bannerols, 3 without, & as many with Empalement; Gantlets & Spurs; Surcoat of Armes, Helmet, Mantle, & Crest, Sword & Buckler with a Coronet; Great Banner with a Chief; Six Escudocheons, without, & with Empalements; lastly, his Achievement. 45. b.

10. Trophies, as it seemeth, for Baptiste Noel Vilcoun Campden; being, a Great Coronet; Standard; four Bannerols with & without Empalements; Gantlets & Spurs; Surcoat of Armes (in the Middle whereof is an Inescudocheon of Pretence) with Helmet, Mantle, & Crest; Sword, Buckler, & Coronet; Great Banner, with a Chief; Coronet upon a Cushion. The Achievement is omitted. 46. b.

11. Trophies for . . . Grevile Baron Brooke of Beauchamps-Court; being a Coronet upon a Cushion; a Guidhome with his Crest; a Standard; four Bannerols with, & without Impalements; Spurs & Gantlets; Surcoat of Armes with Helmet, Mantle & Crest; Great Banner with a Chief; Sword & Buckler with a Coronet; lastly, his Achievement. 47. b.

12. Trophies for Brian Duppa Bishop of Winchester; being a Great Banner; for Bannerols, wherein his own Arms are impaled by those of the Sees of Winchester, Sar. & Chichester; one Escudocheon; Miter, & Crofier. 48. b.

13. Trophies for . . . Backhouse, Baronet; being, a Bannerol; a Standard; two Penons; with his Armes

Num. 1478—1480.

& Quarterings; a Guidhome; Sword & Target; Surcoat of Armes with Helmet Mantle & Crest; Spurs & Gantlet. 49. b.

14. Trophies for . . . Hynson alias Powel (of which family, & of the reason of the alias) vid. 82 C. 4. fol. 35. (as also the Visitation-book of Middlesex, of A.D. 1664.) they are Two Penons; two Escudocheons; Surcoats of Armes, with Helmet Mantle & Crest, and an Achievement. 50. b.

15. Trophies for . . . Vyner? being a Standard, which should have been made with a slit at the end; two Penons; Surcoat, with Helmet, Mantle, & Crest. 51. b.

16. Representation of the other sides of the two Penons last mentioned. 52.

An Heraldical Book in fol. wherein are contained, painted in Colours,

1. The Arms, Garter, Crown, & Supporters; as also the Crest of King Charles II. Sovereign of the most Noble Order of the Garter. 1.

2. The Arms of 23 Knights of the Garter, the last whereof are those of the late Duke of Monmouth, as I guess (vid. N° 1481. fol. 198.) All of them have their Garters & Crests; the Knights of Great-Britain have their Supporters, as also hath his late Royal Highness Prince George of Denmark; but the Supporters of other foreign Princes are omitted, as perhaps being unknown. Some of our English Knights have their Stiles written at length; and many of them have Escudocheons of their Armes with their Quarterings, on the other side of the Leaves. 2.

3. Armes of Charles Seymour sonne & heire of Francis Lord Seymour of Trowbridge, with all his Quarterings; tricked by Mr. John Witnie, and unfily inserted at fol. 26. 27.

4. Arms of James Scott Duke of Monmouth, as Knight of the Garter; in Trick. 27.

5. Arms of the Dukes, Marquises, & of most of the Earls of England (the last being those of the late William Earl of Craven) living about A.D. 1665. who were not Knights of the Garter; painted, with their Crests, Coronets, & Supporters. 28.

Then follow,

6. A Catalogue of the Peers of the Kingdom of England, according to their Birth & Creations: London printed by D. Maxwell, 1660. (in single sheet, with some written Continuations.) 59.

7. A Catalogue of the Nobility of England, according to their respective Precedencies, as it was presented to his Majesty by John Dugdale Esq; Windsor-Herald, Deputy to Sir William Dugdale Knight Garter principal King of Armes, on New-years-day, 1684. to which is added the Blazon of their paternal Coats of Armes respectively; and a List of the present Bishops. Printed at London A.D. 1685. on a single Sheet by the Appointment of Henry Howard Duke of Norfolk & Earl Marshall of England. 60.

An Heraldical Book in fol. wherein are contained,
 1. Alphabetical Table containing the Surnames of those Families whose Descents are entered in the ensuing Treatise.

2. A Copie of the Visitation-book of Oxfordshire, as the same was made & taken A.D. 1631. by John Phillipot Somerset-Herald, & William Ryley Blew-mantle, for Sir Richard St. George Clarencieux, & Sir John Borough, Norroy, who visited jointly.

In this Copie, excepting the Achievement of the City of Oxford; all public Arms & Seals are omitted; nor are there any Transcripts of Evidences, Tricks of private Seals, or Church-Notes.

Codex

Num 1481-1483.

1481.

Codex chartaceus in fol. ab Angustino Withio, ut videtur (cum patris sui Johannis auxilio) affabre Scriptus, vividiq; Coloribus depictus. In illo connectuntur,

1. De Origine, Antiquitate, et Differentijs Armorum five Insigniorum, Roberti Gloveri alias Somerset, Fecialis Regij, Observationes aliquot.

2. Tractatui præmittitur, Cognominum Familiarum, quarum allegantur, Arma simul et exhibentur, Tabula alphabetico Ordine digesta.

3. Post fol. 89. inseruntur folia nonnulla, in quibus comparent Exempla Differentiarum jam olim per plures Nobiles gestarum, alienâ manu scripta et delineata.

4. Stemma Dominorum Comitum Penbrochie, Comitum de Clara, nec non Dominorum de la Bisse, ab antiquis Normanniæ Ducibus deductum; manu Johannis Withij: insertum post folium 109.

1482.

An Heraldical Book in fol. written, tricked, & painted by divers hands; wherein I find,

1. The Arms of King James vi. and of the Nobility of Scotland, done in colors A.D. 1602. with some Declaration of most of their Births, Possessions, & Alliances.

2. The Names and Armes in colors, of the Earles, Viscounts, & Barons of Ireland.

Then followeth a Tract with this incoherent Title,
3. A Collection of the Names, Armes, & Matches of the Nobility of England, whose Families do at this present 1572. continue, and in what King's time they had their Dignities & several Styles of Honour, especially from the beginning of K. H. 8. K. E. 6. Q. M. & Q. Eliz. with our most gracious Sovereigne Lord K. James of England France & Ireland the First, & of Scotland the Sixth, Anno 1604.

This Tract containeth the Armes, & Crests of many of our English Nobility, with their Quarterings, & the several Families to whom the Arms so quartered, did or do still belong: done in Colours by the same hand with the former, in Colours.

4. The Arms of divers other honourable & antient English Families, with their Crests, painted by the same hand: but without any Names.

Turning up the other end of the Book, I find of another hand,

5. Armes of the Gentry & Corporate Towns of Wiltshire; hastily tricked, as it seemeth, from the Visitation-book of that County, made A.D. 1623.

6. Armes of the Cornish Gentry, hastily tricked, by the same hand, from the Book of the Visitation of Cornwall, taken 1620.

7. Alphabetical Table of Families, intended to refer to the Cornish Armes; but wanting the Numbers of the folios.

8. Armes of the Gentry of the Counties of Devon, Somerset, & Dorset, hastily tricked by the same hand, from the Visitation-books of those Shires, made A.D. 1620. 1623, & 1624. as it seemeth.

9. Armes of the Buckinghamshire Gentry, taken from the Visitation-book of that County made A.D. 1634. Hastily tricked by the same hand.

In this Tract some few short Descents are also noted.

1483.

An Heraldical Book in fol. for the most part written & tricked by Mr. John Saunders the Painter-Stainer; wherein are contained,

1. An alphabetical Table of Surnames of English Families; referring to the Treatise next ensuing.

Num. 1483.

2. Arms & Crests born by many English Families.

This Tract is doubly paged on the right-hand Margin; & the abovementioned Table referreth unto it accordingly. Among them, are divers Arms born by different Families of the same Name.

3. A Collection of different Armes (with some Crests) born by several Families of the same Surname.

4. An original Letter of Mrs. Grace Saunders, wife of Mr. John Saunders. Inserted at fol. 61.

5. A Memorandum of Mr. John Saunders, intimating some hard Usage he had received of Mr. Elias Affmole, in not requiring his pains taken in the Visitation of Berkshire. A.D. 1664. &c.

6. A Copie of the Visitation-book of the County of Berks, as the same was made & taken by Elias Affmole Windsor-Herald A.D. 1664. &c. for Sir Edward Byshe Clarencieux.

By the present Memorandum, it should seem as if Mr. Saunders (of whose hand this Treatise is) rode Painter at this Visitation. If it was so, he might have done well to have inserted the Extracts from old Deeds, Tricks of Seals, & Church-Notes, into this Copie, wherewith the original Booke in the College of Armes aboundeth: All things of that kind being omitted herein excepting two Notes, relating to some of his own Surname.

7. In this Treatise I find a large Pedegree of Backhouse, written by inserted at fol. 63.

The remaining part of this Visitation-book is presently to be mentioned, at N° 13.

8. Alphabetical Table of the Surnames of Families, whereof the beginning of each Letter referreth to some other Treatise; but the latter part of the same Letters plainly referreth to Mr. John Saunders's Copie of the Visitation of Berkshire, before & after mentioned.

9. Quartered Coats of many Families of our English Gentry, with their Crests.

10. Paternal Coats & Crests of the English Viscounts & Barons, temp. Caroli i.

11. Arms & Crests of K. Charles II. the Dukes, Marquises & Earls of England.

12. A Collection of Arms born by different families of the same Surname.

13. The latter part of Mr. John Saunders his Copie of the Visitation-book of Berkshire, belonging to that abovementioned, at N° 6.

14. Armes of many English Families, tricked promiscuously, without Crests.

15. Another Collection of Arms borne by different Families of the same Surname.

Then followeth,

16. John Saunders's Copie of the Visitation-book of the County of Southampton, as the same was made & taken A.D. 1575 or 1576. by Robert Cooke Clarencieux.

Herein I find,
17. The Armes, Crest, & Supporters of the Towne of Southampton.

18. The Armes of the City of Winchester.

19. Some few Additions.

Then follow,
20. Another Collection of Arms borne by different Families of the same Surname.

21. An alphabetical Table of Surnames, referring to the last, & other Tracts.

22. Armes of many of the Hampshire Gentry, with some Crests.

23. The Armes belonging to the Gentry of Scotland; putt down by way of Alphabet.

24. Armes of the German Electors; of some few German Nobility; & of some Cities in Germany and Italy.

25. Another

Num. 1483—1485.

25. Another Collection of Armes belonging to different Families of the same Surname. 237.

26. Another alphabetical Table, of little use as it seemeth to me: since one good Table to this Book, taking it from beginning to end, would be of much more Convenience. 256.

An Heraldical Book in fol. for the most part written & tricked by Ralfe Brooke Yorke Herald? wherein are contained,

1. An alphabetical Table to the Traſt next ensuing. 1. b.
2. The Deſcent & Armes of Skinner of Lincolnſhire, by a more modern hand (Edward Cole?) 3.

6. Copie of a Book of the Viſitation of Suffolke. 41.

Moſt of the Deſcents in this Traſt are A.D. 1585, but whether that County was then viſited, or who took the fame, I cannot as yet certainly learn. In this Traſt are alſo ſome few Continuations, and the labour'd Pedigree of Baſſingbourne is deduced to A.D. 1608.

7. Alphabetical Table to the abovementioned Viſitation of Suffolke. 51.

8. The Veſitation of the County of Eſſex, by William Harry Elquire alias Clarenceux King of Armes; begone at Sir Peter Meantys howſe the 10 day of Auguſt Anno 1558. 52.

Herein I find, beſides ſome modern Additions, by Edward Cole the Painter-Stainer? 55.

9. The Armes of the Towne of Colcheſter. 55.

10. Alphabetical Table to the abovementioned Viſitation-book of Eſſex. 59.

11. Copie of the Viſitation-books of the Counties of Kent & Suffex; perhaps as the fame were made & taken A.D. 1574. by Robert Cooke Clarenceux. 60. b.

The Deſcents of theſe Counties are jumbled together; & there are ſome few modern Additions by the hand of . . . 70.

12. Alphabetical Table to the preceding Traſt. 70.

13. Deſcent of Moultſho from Nevell & Nowers; by the firſt hand. 71.

14. Armes of Maſs of London, A.D. 1634. 72.

15. Armes & Quarterings of Sir William Winter of Gloceſterſhire; done, as the former, perhaps by the ſame Edward Cole. Toward the end.

16. At the other End of the book are ſome Family Accompts, written by another hand, and of no great value.

1485.

An Heraldical Book in fol. written & tricked by divers hands; wherein are contained,

1. Grant of Armes & Creſt, with differences, unto Thomas Wood of Hackney in Com. Midd. Eſq; by Sir Richard St. George Clarenceux. dat. 28 June, A.D. 1634. At the Beginning.

Then followeth,

17. Alphabetical Table to the Arms tricked in this Book. 159.

1486.

An Heraldical Book in fol. wherein I find contained,

1. A Copie of the Viſitation-book of Worceſterſhire, as the fame was made and taken A.D. 1569. by Robert Cooke Clarenceux. 1.

Mr. John Withie erroneouſly entituled this Part of the Book, Worceſterſhire 1571. induced therunto, as I ſuppoſe as caſting his Eye at the bottom of Talbots Deſcent, fol. 21. whereas that is not the Date of the Viſitation, but of that Addition. And there are many more Additions to other Deſcents in this Copie.

There are no Proofs, and but few Arms in this Copie; thoſe Arms that are here, are almoſt all in Blazon.

The Deſcents of Families are entered here, by way of Alphabet, and not according to their reſpective Habitations.

2. Alphabetical Table to the Deſcents, in this Viſitation-book of Worceſterſhire. 22. b.

Then followeth,

3. A Copie of the Viſitation-book of the County of Derby, as the fame was made & taken A.D. 1611. by Richard St. George Norroy; & in his company, Nicholas Charles Lancaſter-Herald, & Henry St. George Rouge-Roſe. 23.

This Viſitation was grounded upon the old one taken A.D. 1569. by William Flower Norroy, & Robert Glover Portcullis; and aboundeth with Extracts & Tranſcripts of private Deeds, Tricks of Seals, private & public; alſo with Church-Notes; among all which, for as much as the Copies of his Viſitation do greatly differ from one another, in order to the Readers conceiving a truer Idea of this, I ſhall particularly mention,

4. The Common Seale of the Burrough & Shire-Town of Darby. 23.

5. The Common Seale of the Burrough & Towne of Cheſterfield. 20.

6. Succellio Comitum Ceſtriae; cum inſignibus eorum. 20.

 12. Notes taken in the Church of Sutton in the Dale. 47.
 13. Notes taken in Tiddeswall-Church. 52.
 14. Notes taken in Longefidon-Church. 54.
 15. Notes taken in Barley-Church, neere Chesterfeild, 27 Aug. 1611. 58.
 16. Arms in the Windowes at the Howle at Barlev. ibid.

1487.

A thick Heraldical Book in fol. at the beginning thus entitled,

1. The Visitation of Yorkshire made by Robert Glover Somerset-Herald, Marshall & Deputie to William Flower Norroy King of Armes A.D. 1584 & 1585. Together with the Visitation of the same Countie made by Richard St. George Esq; alias Norroy King of Armes, Anno Dñi 1612. And enlarged with the Visitation of the same Countie made by Thomas Tong alias Norroy King of Armes, in the tyme of King Henry the viii. A.D. 1530. all written & tricked by John Withie, who hath also made Additions unto many of the Descents, &c.

Observables in this valuable book besides the Visitations, & Mr. Withie's Continuations of Descents above-mentioned; may be,

2. Trick of Six Pictures of Knights in Mail, with Surcoats of their Arms, &c. of a very antient Fashion, taken from a Window in the metropolitical Church of York, 22 Oct. 1640. by Mr. John Withie. At the beginning.

3. Trick of an old Tomb in the same Church, of such another antient Knight, with the Arms carved thereon; done the same day by Mr. Withie.

4. Letter of the Earls of Northampton, Suffolke, & Worcester, Commissioners for executing the Office of Earl-Marshall of England, directed to the Knights & Gentlemen of the Counties of Nottingham, Yorke, Bishoprick of Durham, & the rest of the Counties from Trent, Northward; requiring them to forward Richard St. George Esq; Norroy, in his Visitation of his Province. dat. 15th July, 1612. 6.

5. Letter of the same Lords Commissioners to Baron Altham & Baron Bromley Justices of Assise of the County of Yorke, &c. requiring them to cause Mr. Norroy's Commission to be read in the face of the County, and publike Notice thereof to be taken, as hath been formerly accustomed; in order to the same Visitation. dat. 15 July, 1612. ibid.

6. Armes or Seale of the Town of Pontefract. 8. b.

7. Armes or Seale of the Citie of Yorke. 10. b.

8. List of the Mayors & Bayliffs, & Mayors & Sheriffs of the City of Yorke, from A.D. 1273. to A.D. 1495. both inclusive. Inserted before fol. 11.

9. Blank-Paper, excepting only printed Efocheons, with space allotted for Crests & Titles; wherein Mr. Withie, probably intended to trick the Arms & Crests of the Yorkshire-Gentry. 11.

10. Kalendarium omnium Justiciariorum Pacis, Coronatorum, Ballivorum Libertatum, et Wapentagiorum ad Assisas et Gaolæ Deliberationem, apud Castrum Ebor. . . die Augusti, A.D. 1583. 31.

CAT. HARL. VOL. II.

Num. 1487—1495.

11. Nomina Libere Tenentium infra Comitatum Ebor. A.D. 1584. 32.

Forms of Warrants, &c. used by Robert Glover Somerset-Herald at his Visitation of this Countie. vizt.

12. A Warant to the cheife Bayliff of the Wapentake of . . . in the County of Yorke, to summon all Knights, Elquires, & Gentlemen within the Wapentake to appeare before Norroy Kinge of Armes, or his Marshall, &c. 35. b.

13. A Letter to be seene together with the said Warant unto the said Bayliff. 36.

14. A Precept for appeareance before the Earle Marshall of England, vpon Contempt. 36.

15. A Proclamation of such as are to be denounced ignoble, with notice to the Shrieff, Clarkes of the Assizes, and of the Peace, thenceforth to forbears to wright or call them by the Names or Titles of Elquires or Gentlemen. 36. b.

16. The Names and Armes in Blazon, of such Knights & Gentlemen of the Countie of Yorke, as served Kinge Edward the First in Scotland, and elsewhere. 37. b.

17. Notes taken in the Church of Shoredich, 5 March 1639. by John Withie. 50.

18. Some few Proofs from Evidences, Tricks of private Seals, &c. sparim.

19. Arms of some Yorkshire Families; perhaps given to, or born by such, whose Descent, or Relation to others of the same Names might have been somewhat doubtful. 488. b.

20. Alphabetical Table of Surnames; referring to the preceding Descents, &c. 489.

NB. Although Mr. Withie, as is mentioned by him, did use the Visitation book of Thomas Tong Norroy of A.D. 1530. he took no more from thence than the Descents & Arms of Families.

He hath also omitted the numerous Church Notes, Sir Wm. Fairfaxes Book of Armes of the Yorkshire-Gentry, found in divers Copies of Mr. Robert Glover's Visitation-book of this County.

Num. 1496-1498.

1496 et 1497.

Two large folios intitled, Register of Accounts and papers brought in to the Commissioners appointed by Act of Parliament to state the Accounts of the Kingdome.

1498.

A Book in fol. given by Sir Thomas Hoby of Bytham in the County of Hertford, Baronet.

The Cover of it of crimson Velvet, edged with crimson Silk & Gold-Thread, and with Tassels of the same at each corner; lined in the inside with crimson Damask.

Upon each side of the Cover are five Bosses, made of Silver wrought & gilt. Those in the middle have the Arms of K. Henry vii. with his Crown & Supporters made of Silver, gilt, coulered, & enameled in their proper Places. In the others at each Corner, are so many Portcullices, being one of his Badges, gilded on the Field Party per Pale Argent & Vert, made of Enamel.

It is to be made fast by two Halps which are fastened to two thick Labels coming out of the edge of the Cover on the one side of the Book, & put over two short Pins of Silver gilt on the other side. These Halps are of Silver gilt, each with the red Rose of Lancaster, partly gilt, & partly enameled of a crimson Color, with a Demy-Angel proceeding out of a Cloud, the top of whose Head is fastened to a Ring of Silver gilt as the Angel; to which are fasted two Strings of white & green Silk & of Silver & Gold Thread all platted together, in order to open & shut the Book with the more ease.

The Book consisteth of Four Indentures all fairly written on Velum, with many principal Letters illuminated; besides those hereafter to be mentioned; which said Indentures being the Originals, the Leaves are all indented at the Top, & the Cover also, conformably to them.

1. The first Page of the first Deed, is illuminated in this manner; a Bordure is putt on all the Margins thereof; at the top are the Arms of K. Henry vii. with his Crown & Supporters painted on a golden Plan; on each hand are the Portcullices & Chains in a Plan of fine blew spotted with Gold. Below them on each side, are Sprigs of the red Rose Tree, with like Portcullices & Sprigs painted interchangeably, so as in the whole, to render the same rich & agreeable to the eye.

2. In the first or principal Letter, which is large, is a Picture wherein is represented King Henry vii. with his Royal Robes, Crown & Scepter, sitting on his Throne, giving this Book to John Illipp Abbot of Westminster, who kneels before him, holding his Crosier in his left Arm; (Westminster being a Mitred Abbey;) he stretcheth out both his hands to receive the Book; and is attended by divers of his Monks, kneeling behind him.

3. "This Indenture" sheweth, that it was "made between the moost Cristen & moost Excellent Prince King Henry the Seventh, & John Illippe Abbot of the Monastery of Saynt Petre of Westminster, & the Priour & Convent of the same Monastery, binding their Successours. Dated the 16th day of July, the nyntene Yere of his most Excellent Majesty."

NB. This his Style of most Christian, is no new thing; for I can find the same given to many of our Kings since the Conquest; and also to sundry of our Saxon Kings before the Conqueror's time. This and the following Deeds declaring & reciting many particular Covenants between the Parties; in order to make them better understood, I take leave to collect the Heads of the same, as they are written in the margins.

175. This noble Book is adorned with five broad Seals of K. Henry the Seventh, all preserved in Silver Boxes parcel-Gilt, adorned with the said King's Badges above-mentioned; and the Velvet cometh far enough from the Book to cover them. Such being the fashion of Covers to Books of importance, at, & before that time.

Num. 1498, 1499.

176. But forasmuch as the said Silver Boxes were found to be thin, and therefore liable to be bruised, and to press hard upon the Seals within them; by my Lord's Order, Mr. John Kemp made the Box which now holdeth them all, in such manner, as none of the Boxes do any farther Damage to the said Seals; nor to one another.

177. Lastly it is to be noted, that although there be but four Deeds contained in the Book, there be five Seals; every Deed having its Strings & Seal peculiar to its self, and the the Strings belonging to the Fifth, annexing them all together, as is divers times mentioned, especially at the latter end.

A Book in fol. well written by divers Hands; wherein are contained,

1. A complete Translation of the Cavaliero Domenico Fontana's Book, entituled of the Transportation of the Vatican Obelisk; and of the Buildings of Pope Sixtus v. Printed at Rome A.D. 1590.

None of the printed Cutts are annexed to this Translation.

This is followed by a French Book engraven on Copper-Plates, and thus entituled,

2. Representations Geometrales de plusieurs parties de Bâtimens, faites par les Règles de l'Architecture Antique; et de qui les Mesures sont reduites en Piedz, Poulces, & Lignes, a fin de s'accommoder a la Maniere de Mesurer la plus en uzage parmy le Commun des Oeuvriers, par A. Boffe. A Paris, chez l'Auteur, A.D. 1659.

This Traët is also translated into English, and the Translation is bound up along with it, foliatim.

Num. 1503-1505.

1503.

An old Heraldical Book in fol. wherein is contained,

1. A large Collection of Armes, painted about the time of K. Edward vi. or the latter end of his Father's Reign.

2. Although some of these Armes be fabulous, and are to be found in other Books of the same Age; this Collection is nevertheless very useful, upon sundry Accounts.

3. Some of these Arms are also expressed in Blazon; some are disposed in way of Ordinary; others according to their Counties; and the most, promiscuously, in no method at all.

4. Among them is a sprinkling of Foreign Armes, as French, Scotch, Irish, Welsh, &c.

5. Here & there, occur some Notes & Emendations by some modern Hand.

6. At the end is an alphabetical Table referring to the abovementioned Armes; drawn up by Henry Parker and others of late times.

At the beginning, are the Armes of Herbert with Quarterings; to which Familie this Book once belonged, as may appear by the Names written upon the same Page.

An Heraldical Book in fol. written & tricked by divers hands; wherein are contained,

1. The Visitation of Hertfordshire, taken by Anno Domini 1579.

This is the Title of the first Traët; and many of the Descents are so dated; but yet whether this County was then visited I cannot say. It was certainly visited ten years before (viz. A.D. 1569.) by Robert Cooke Clarenceux, as appeareth by the Book N° 615. and it is affirmed that it was again visited A.D. 1572. at which the same Robert Cooke continued to be Clarenceux; and it would have been a burthen upon the Gentry of any County to be visited three times in ten years.

At the end of this Traët which hath many Continuations & Additions, both of the first Hand, and also of Mr. Henry Parker the Painter-Stayer; I find,

2. A Collection of the Descents, with Tricks of the Armes, of many eminent Citizens of London sett down by the first Hand in such manner as to look like the latter part of the precedent Traët.

Here are also some few Additions & Continuations of the same Henry Parker.

3. The Visitation of Hertfordshire taken by Sir Henry St. George Richmond-Herauld Anno 1634. being Deputy to Sir John Borough Garter & Sir Richard St. George Clarenceux, Kings of Armes.

Herein are also some additions & continuations of Henry Parker & others.

4. An alphabetical Table to the Descents contained in this Book; made by those who entered the Descents therein. At the end.

An Heraldical Book in fol. wherein is contained a Copie of that Visitation-book which was made for the County-Palatine of Chester A.D. 1580. by Robert Glover Somerset-Herald, Marshall and Deputy to William Flower Norroy his father in law.

This Copie was made by that person who made the Book N° 1424. and perhaps from it. The Arms are better tricked in N° 1424. than in this, which hath also more faults than that.

There being nothing to be said by me touching the Contents of this Copy, but what hath been mentioned of the other already; I shall forbear to repeat the same here; making only this Remark, that since both these Books were written, some few Additions have been entered entred into each of them, by their respective Owners, unknown to one another; which are therefore wanting in the one Copie, though inferted in the other.

Num. 1505, 1506.

1506.

A Book in fol. confifling of divers Tracts bound up together, in the Order following,

1. The Armes of Brute, Albanact, Camber, Bellinus, Uterpendragon, Arthur, Cadwallader, Egbert, Swanus the Dane, Edward the Confessor, & William the Conqueror, &c. painted, or tricked perhaps by Sylvanus Morgan, the Painter-Stainer; with a written account of the fame.

2. Short Notes touching the Creations & Acts of the English Nobility from the Conquest to the beginning of the Reign of Q. Elizabeth.

3. A Fragment of the Book of Advice of the Emperor Charles v. to his son K. Philip II. Translated from the Spanish by Henry Howard (afterwards Earl of Northampton, & Lord Privy Seal) and by him dedicated to Qu. Elizabeth.

4. Remarque de la Genealogie de tres-excellent Seigneur Henry de Bourbon, Premier Prince et Premier Pair de France; et de quelques Heroïques Actions de ses Ancêtres, depuis Saint Louis: par Frere Joseph Texeira Portugaiz Conseiller du Roy Tres-Chrestien, Aumonier & autrefois Predicateur du Tres-Serenissime Anthoine Roy de Portugal.

This Tract wanteth the first Leaf, containing the beginning of the Author's Dedication.

5. Libellus vocatus de Officio Militari, scriptus per Baddesworth, Anno Dñi 1458. Transcripts per R. Gloverum, alias Somersett. Heraldum Armorum serenissime Elizabethæ Angliæ, Franciæ, et Hiberniæ Regi-næ, Anno Dñi 1572.

Apographum istud (pluribus in locis mancum atq; mutilatum) videtur Libri cujusdam Johannis de Bado-Aureo nuncupati, quem Publici Juris fecit D. Edwardus Biffius.

6. Part of an old Ordinary of Armes; tricked rudely, & with confusion.

7. Arms of some German (& other) Princes, Provinces, Nobles, & Cities.

8. A Copy of Mr. Walter Mountagues Letter to his Father: and the Earl of Manchester's Answer to it, 20th November, 1635.

This Walter was second son to Henry Montagu Earl of Manchester: His Letter was to acquaint his Father that he had reconciled himself to the Church of Rome, without consulting him, & what reasons had induced him to do so. The Earls Answer is a noble Piece, and sheweth him to have been Master of great Reason & Learning in that Controversie; and also a truly loving Father. I know not whether I may add, that this Walter Montagu not being to be brought back by any Arguments, was made an Abbot in France.

9. The Sentence pronounced by against Sir Robert Peyton when he was expelled from the House of Commons, as having been concerned in the Popish Plot. By the Bookbinders error, inferted at fol. 157.

10. A List of Books formerly belonging to Mr. Edward Barwick the Painter-Stainer: and of some other Books which Augustin Withe had received of his father.

11. Descent & Arms of Hutton of Goldesborough in Com. Ebor. as also of Hutton of Penrith in Cumberland. dat. A.D. 1612.

12. Copie of Queen Elizabeth's Charter, whereby she erected the Free-Men of the Mytery of Painters-Stainers into a Body Corporate. Imperfect at the latter end.

Num. 1506, 1507.

13. Copie of an Order of the Privy-Council, dated 15 July 1640. for preventing of false Musters in his Majesties Army.

14. Copie of part of a dunning Letter to Sir Richard 1507.

An Heraldical Book in fol. written & tricked by divers hands; wherein are contained,

1. Divers Arms & Crests of different Families, tricked promiscuously.

2. Among these is a Receipt for money paid by Mr. Robert Fifther the Painter-Stainer, for writing this Book, to one Thomas Pitt, who was another Painter, as I suppose.

3. The Blazon of Sir Edward Thurlandes Achievement (i. e. of the Arms quartered by him.)

Then followeth a very large Collection of Extracts, Docquets, & Titles of Grants & Confirmations of Arms & Crests, some of which are represented in Trick, & the others omitted. Among them all these that follow are transcribed intirely, vizt.

4. Grant of Armes & Crest unto William Crooke, alias (Crockhay) alias Johnson, by Xpofor Carlyle Norroy. dat. 4 June, 1486.

This Patent labours under more difficulties than the Errors of the Copie, which are many: To whom I am willing to impute the Antichronism of making the 16th Year of K. Edw. III. fall in the year of our Lord 1376. For the Tenor or Form of the Patent is the same with that used about the times of K. Henry VIII. & K. Edward VI. Moreover, I cannot find that any man named Thomas Troute was ever Norroy. I can produce more Arguments against this Patent; but think what is already said, may suffice.

A Book in large fol. lately given by Mr. Anstis, & on the outside entituled,

“The Proceedings of the Rt. Hon^{ble} His Ma^{ties} principal Commissioners for Prizes, from January 1664.”

The many particulars contained in this Office-Book, not being to be understood from the foregoing general Title; and indeed the accounting for them all being too tedious & unnecessary; I have thought it best to chuse the middle way, & make mention of some of them, vizt. these that follow.

1. An alphabetical Table of the matters registred in this Volume. At the beginning.

2. Minute taken at the first Meeting of the principal Commissioners for Prizes, January 11. 1664. 5. when their Commission was read, and persons appointed to prepare Instructions & a Draught of a Commission, for Officers to be subordinate unto them.

3. His Majesties Commission to the principal Commissioners for Prizes, being Prince Rupert Duke of Cumberland; George Duke of Buckingham; George Duke of Albemarle, Master of the Horses; James Duke of Ormonde, Steward of the Household; Henry Earl of St. Albans; Edward Earle of Sandwich; Arthur Earle of Anglesey, John Earle of Lauderdale; John Lord Berkeley; Denzill Lord Hollis; Anthony Lord Ashley, Chancellor & Under-Treasurer of the Exchequer; Sir George Carteret Kt. & Baronet, Vice-chambelaine of the Household; Sir William Morice, & Sir Henry Bennet, principal Secretaries of State; & Sir Edward Nicholas Knight; bearing Teste the 6th day of January, anno Regni Caroli II. 1660.

4. His Majesties Instructions, under this Title, “Instructions for Our principall Commissioners for Prizes, or to any four or more of them, in pursuance of, & for better execution of Our Commission under Our Broad Seale; dated the 6th day of January in the 16 Year of Our Raigne.” 3.

5. A additional Instruction for Our principall Commissioners for Prizes, &c. dated the . . . day of January, the same year. 7.

6. Another additional Instruction. ibid.

7. List of the Sub-Commissioners for Prizes, nominated by his Majesty. 9.

8. The List of the several Districts, wherein the Sub-Commissioners were to act. 12.

9. Instruction to the Sub-Commissioners of Prizes, by the principal Commissioners. 13.

10. The Store-keepers Instructions. 25.

11. Instructions for the Ware-house-Keeper of Plymouth. 27.

12. Instructions for the Solicitor Mr. Henry Dethick. 29.

13. Commissions unto divers of the Officers acting under the Commission for Prizes. 31.

Num. 1509.

14. Minute wherein the principal Commissioners say that out of respect to the Clerks of the Council, they thought it convenient to elect one of their number, Robert Southwell, to be their Secretary. 18 January 1664. 54.

15. Minute of 21 Jan. 1664. requiring Mr. Williamfon to correspond with some Merchants at Bilbao; there being a Report that certain Dutch Shippes which loaded Wooll & Iron at Bilbao, & bound for Holland, had dismissed their Shippes Company, who were Dutch men, & manned their Ships with Biscayners, and also passed over their Ships & Goods to Merchants of Bilbao, on whole account they were to come to Holland. 58.

16. Minute of 23 Jan. 1664. appointing the Commissioners of London & the other Ports, to repair to the Court of Admiralty, & there to examine all the Papers taken in Dutch Vessels; and in case they finde any Papers concerning matters of State, that they select them, & lay them apart to be transmitted, close sealed, unto the principal Commissioners. 60.

17. Minute appointing Mr. Southwell Secretary to the Commission, to signe References to the Court of Admiralty. 61.

18. Minute appointing Mr. Southwell to informe the Lords of Bufines by his owne Lettre. 25 January 1664. 63.

19. Sir William Turner appointed to be of Council for the King in the Admiralty Court. 27 January, 1664. 65.

20. Stop to some Proceedings in the Court of Admiralty for a time. 6 Febr. 1664. 76.

21. The Court of Admiralty to give Dispatch to all French Claimers. ibid.

22. Order to hinder one Captain Johnson & others from seizing Papers, &c. in the Dutch Ships. 77.

23. Sir Robert Wileman and others to compile such a Body of Rules & Maritime Ordenances, by which the Judge of the Admiralty may be directed in the adjudication of Prizes taken in the present Warre with the Dutch. 78.

24. Mr. Dethick to prepare a perfect List of all such Prize-Ships, and the Goods respectively contain, which at any time, have been brought for Tryall into the Court of the Admiralty, since the 16th of December last. 10 Febr. 1664. 80.

25. Order to the Lord Culpepper Governor of the Isle of Wight, to examine into the practices of one John Lifle of Cowes a pretended publicke Notary, who was reported to have issued out certaine Attestations by way of Passes, to secure thereby Hamburgers & other Shippes from the Seizure of his Majesties Frigats, & if culpable to punish him severely, 13 Febr. 1664. 83.

26. Order to Sir Edward Mansell Bart. Vice-Admiral of South-Wales, to deliver up immediately the Care & Charge of the Prizes brought into the Port of Milford Haven, to his Majesties Commissioners for the Port of Bristol & its District, of which South-Wales was part. 21 Febr. 1664. 91.

27. Order to the Judge of the Admiralty, to repud Ships belonging to Embden & Ameland, as belonging to Holland. 22 Febr. 1664. 92.

28. Order to the Judge of the Court of Admiralty, now to proceed upon the Hearing & Adjudication of Claimes. 25 Febr. 1664. 96.

29. The Judge of the Admiralty to empower the Commissioners of London to swear Persons. 28 Febr. 1664. 101. & 164.

30. A Letter of the principal Commissioners to his Royal Highness the Duke of York, Lord High Admirall complaining of the horrid miscarriages of our Seamen, who since his Majesties Declaration for their encouragement, had plundered & rancked many Prize-Ships, as well such as were only taken upon Suspicion & belonged to Friends, as those that were plain Enemies: and proposing posing what to them seemed necessary to be done in this Cafe. 102.

Num. 1507.

31. Order requiring the Commissioners of Plymouth to cause the Duty of Prifage & Butlerage of Wynes, to be paid in the accustomed manner, by all Shippes laden with Wyne, & brought into the Port of Plymouth, or any other Port within the Duchy of Cornwall, unto John Martine Esq; Deputy-Collector of that Duty. 6 March 1664. 111.

32. Minute about Capt. Waltham's brother, suppoled to be accessory to the Escape of four Dutchmen out of Prison: and about a Method of doing the Business of this Commission at Plymouth. 8 March 1664. 112.

33. Order to secure a Scots Vessell, drove by streis of Weather into New-castle; it being laden with Wyne from Holland. ibid.

34. Letter of the principal Commissioners to his Royal Highness, upon his Answer to their former Letter mentioned above at N^o 30. 14 March 1664. 121.

35. Order that Prize-Ships should pay no Duty for Light & Peerage. 16 March 1664. 127.

37. Additional Instructions & Directions for Sir Thomas Clifford Kt. one of the Commissioners for the Port of London, in relation to the Manage of his Business attending on the Fleete. 23 March 1664. 144.

38. Memorial presented to the King of England by Monfr. le Comte de Comenge Embassador Extraordinary from the King of France. 145.

Herein he insolently complaineth of want & failure of Justice in his Majesty, and in the Lords Commissioners: and demandeth the immediate Restitution of all French Vessels, & others laden on their accompt in Dutch Bottoms. He censurcth his Majesties Declaration of War against the Dutch as couched under captious & equivocal Terms & Expressions with regard to the French that the French Ordennance Robe d'Ennemy confisque celle d'Army, hath been for many Years abolished in France as odious & unjustifiable, and therefore exhorteth the King to lay by all thoughts of establishing any such Law, &c. dat. 26 March 1664. 145.

39. The Lords Commissioners Answer to the preceding Memorial. 148.

Herein, like Men of solid Wisdom & Honor, they easily wipe off the Imputations cast on his Majesty & themselves in Mr. Comenge's Memorial; shewing wherein, on divers occasions he did forget himself; that they had made an Order, whereby in the Court of Admiralty, the French claymers were preferable to all others. That the French Merchants this Year, appeared to claime & colour more Goods in Dutch Vessells, than they have ever ventured in many Yeares before; pretending that all is laden on their proper Risque & Accompt: soe that the Dutch in one Year have forgott to be Merchants, & left their Shippes to the French; who have soe much engrossed Trade, as to be enforced to hire the whole Dutch Fleete, though upon the disadvantage of paying extraordinary Duties in their owne Countrey. That this appeared in all the Prizes his Majesty had taken: where, though the Shipp be condemned, & confessed Dutch, yet all her Lading was almost universally pretended French. That as to the French Law, Robe d'Ennemy confisque celle d'Amie, the Year 1645. according to his belief, & 1650. according to his avowment was the first time that ever it was dispensed with; and that not obtained without a Treaty, and afforded only to the Dutch & Hanse-Towns. That the same is, & has been the Law of England, by Act of Parliament some hundreds of Years past; and is to this day both the Law of Spaine & Portugal.

Num. 1507.

40. The State of the French Claimes & Pretensions in the Court of Admiralty, and of the Courts Proceeding thereupon, annexed by the Lords Commissioners to the Answer to the French Memorial. 150.

Herein Sir Robert Wifeman his Majesties Advocate who drew it up (under whose view and observation, all those matters passed) affirmeth, that if all the great Quantity of Goods claimed in the Court of Admiralty by Hamburgers, Swedes, Flemings, English, French, &c. were to be divided into ten Parts, Nynne of them will be found to be French. And though generally these soe pretended French Goods are all laden in Dutch Bottoms, and going to or from Dutch Ports, and the Ship sailed by Dutch Masters & Mariners; yett constantly, both forward & backward, to the astonishment of all Men that know the Dutch were the great Traders at Sea before, the whole Lading is avowed in the Court of Admiralty & sworn also, to belong to Frenchmen, and to run upon their Accompt & Adventure only, and that noe Dutch person had any share or interest therein, &c. This bore date 22 March 1665. 150.

41. Order for the Commissioners for sick & wounded Men, to receive Dutch Prisoners at their Landing, & take due care of them. 164.

42. Order that for the future the Quorum of the Commissioners of Prizes for the Port of London, shall be Three, and in extraordinary Occasions Two. 173.

44. Order to the Commissioners for sick & wounded Men to sett at Liberty divers Danes taken in the Ship Reynard, and detained in Chelsea Colledge as Dutch men. 14 Apr. 1665. 155.

45. The Commissioners of sick & wounded Men to permit Prisoners to be sent to the Court of Admiralty for Witnesses. 196.

46. The Commissioners of Prizes for London, with the Resident of Denmark, to contrive a way to distinguish Danish Ships from Dutch. 19 April 1665. 206.

47. Letter of the Lords Commissioners to the Earl of Sandwich, shewing the Reasons why they had ordered 80 Butts of Brandy found in the Ship Freeland (between the Decks as was alleaged, and consequently belonging to the Seamen who took her) to be sold at the rate of 26lb. the Tun, and the Money to be saved for them. 24 April 1665. 208.

48. Order to the Commissioners of sick & wounded Men to release three Swedes, who suflering wreck on the Coast of France, were saved by another Ship, since taken as Prize & brought into Portsmouth; the said men being claimed by the Swedish Resident, after they had been detained Prisoners 6 Weeks at Winchester. 211.

49. The Farmers of the Customes not to permit Brandy to be landed without Notice be given to the Commissioners. 215.

50. Memorial of the French Ambassadors Extraordinary Henry Duc de Verneville, Comenge, & Courtin, to the King; desiring, among other things, 1. That when Dutch Commodities are found aboard French Ships, that the Dutch Men & Goods should be only seized; and the French Ships, Men & Goods to be let go. 2. That nothing but Armes & their Furniture, and other things and Implements serving to the use of War shall be deemed to be contraband Goods: and by no means to comprehend under that Title, Corne, Wyne, Salt, or any thing that appertaines to the nourishing or support of Life. dat. 22d April 1665. 220.

Num. 1509.

54. Order to the Commissioners of the Port of Plymouth to enquire into the Truth of the Allegations of the Corporation of that Place, who pretend Right to certain small Customs and Duties upon Goods imported there, as granted to them by Statute in King Henry the Sixth's reign; that they ever since enjoyed the same; and received like Duties of Prize-Goods brought thither in the time of the late Dutch Warre. Ibid.

55. Order of the Lords Commissioners to the Commissioners at Portsmouth, that whereas their Lordships had ordered the Money taken out of the Ship Hope of Hamborough, should be deposited in the hands of the Treasurer of Prizes in that Port; and that they had nevertheless put the same into the hands of Sir Philip Honywood one of their own number, as Governor & best able to secure it: directing them, and particularly Sir Philip, to deliver that and all other the King's Money in their hands, to the said Treasurer, forthwith. 8th May 1665. 235.

56. Letter of the Lords Commissioners to Sir Philip Honywood, requiring him to deliver the Brandy in his Custody to the Merchants who had contracted (as will be hereafter mentioned) with his Majesty for all Brandies taken as Prize. 10th May 1665. 247.

57. Letter of the Lords Commissioners to the Judges of the Court of Admiralty, requiring them to proceed, according to his Majesties Declaration, in declaring contraband Goods; which their Lordships take to be all sorts of Naval Stores, Warlike Utensils, & Provisions for support of Life. 17th May 1665. 256.

58. Letter of the Lords Commissioners to Sir Thomas Clifford, thanking him for his whole Conduct & Care in taking 13 Prizes, & effectually securing them & their intire lading to his Majesties use. They also acquaint him that his Majesty is willing that the Seamen shall have all the Goods fairly found between the Decks. 19th May 1665. 259.

59. Warrants of the Lords Commissioners to the Keepers of Newgate & of the Gate-house; to receive into their Custody certain persons, who had contemptuously refused to declare their Knowledge touching Imbeziments of Prize Goods at Dover. Ibid.

ted of these Ships, through Imbezelment, should be diminished, to his Majesties disappointment. 21st Sept. 1665. 352. et vid. 356. 357.

77. Letter of the Lords Commissioners to the Commissioners of the several Ports, about their monthly Acco'mpts. 4th July 1665. 354.

78. Letter of the Lords Commissioners to the Commissioners of Portsmouth, authorizing them to proceed to the finishing of the Contract with the Farmers of the Customs, for all the King's Prize-Wines & Cask. 18th October 1665. 359.

79. Instructions of the Lords Commissioners to the Commissioners & others, who are at present employed to take care of the East India & other Prizes, lately brought in. 21st Octob. 1665. 360.

80. A Remonstrance of the Lords Commissioners to his Majestie, wherein they vindicate their Proceedings from some Imputation laid upon them; since the Dutch East-India and other Prize-Ships had not answered expectation, as to their Value, by reason of the exorbitant Imbezelment of the Goods; and their Lordships considering the great loss accruing to his Majestie, by giving all the Goods between Decks & the Orlopp (being the most valuable sort of the Lading) to the Seamen, as also the great Scandal thrown upon the Nation thereby, since many Ships seized only upon suspicion, were always plundered between Decks (if no worse used) and being afterwards cleared as plainly belonging to Friends, neither the Goods taken away nor the Plunderers were to be found. They propose therefore, that now upon the above-mentioned horrid Imbezements, his Majestie would only give them for the future a sixth or a fifth Part of the whole clear Profit, whereby the Officers may be obliged to preserve the Prizes from being plundered, the Seamen kept in better discipline, and the Shares to the Commanders and Seamen better preserved, & more equally divided. 361.

81. Proposal of the Lords Commissioners to his Majesty, that in order to put a stop to the notorious collusion of Dutch & French, which last openly owned the Dutchmens Goods to be theirs, whereby the Dutch were supplied, the War prolonged, and his Majesty impudently cheated; that he would offer unto the French King, his consent, that his Subjects the French might carry into Dunkirk or Ostend, double the Proportions of Wyne, Brandy, and Salt, that in any former years has been ever imported into those Places. 23d October 1665. 363.

82. Proposal to his Majestie, by the Lords Commissioners, that a Proclamation doe issue out for the better discovery of the Goods imbezzled out of the East India Ships & other Prizes. ibid.

83. Order of the Lords Commissioners about keeping the Prize-Goods in the Port of Dover, untill Mr. Carlisle the Store-keeper shall clear himself of the accusation laid upon him of imbezzling the same. 24th October 1665. 364.

84. Letter of some of the Lords Commissioners to the Duke of Albemarle, thanking his Grace for not concluding any thing with the East India Company, touching the Sale of the Goods in the two East India Ships above-mentioned, without their participation. 26th Octob. 1665. 366.

85. The East India Company's First Articles about the two Prizes. 26th Octob. 1665. 367.

86. The Answer of the Lords Commissioners for Prizes to the said Articles. ibid.

87. Articles agreed on between his Grace George Duke of Albemarle and the rest of his Majesties Commissioners of Prizes, of the one Part; and the Governor & Company of Merchants of London trading to the East-Indies, of the other Part. 31st October, 1665. 370.

Num. 1509.

88. Order of the Lords Commissioners, to the Commissioners of the Port of London, empowering them to deliver unto the East-India Company, the Goods remaining in the East India Prizes, except Copper and Salt Petre. 30th Oct. 1665. 371.

89. Letter of divers of the Lords Commissioners to the Duke of Albemarle, about their Answer to the First Articles of the East-India Company; & desiring his Grace to sign the Agreement lately made with the said Company, upon the Foundation laid by his Grace. ibid.

90. The Second Articles presented by the East India Company. 372.

91. Observations made by the Lords Commissioners of Prizes, on the second Draught of Articles offered by the Committee of the East India Company, November 1. 1665. 373.

92. Letter of some of the Lords Commissioners to the Duke of Albemarle, accompanying the second Article, with their Observations upon the same. They also advise his Grace to make a full conclusion of the Bargain in what Terms he should think fit, to which they would give their Assent; as being somewhat suspicious of a Design to bring the Affair into private hands, and out of the hands of Company, wherein they believe the King's best security lay. 5th Nov. 1665. ibid.

93. Letter of some of the Lords Commissioners to Sir George Carteret, desiring him to go on, with the Duke of Albemarle to finish the Bargain with the East-India Company, in the best manner he could, although it should be contrary to what they had before advised. For his Majesties Occasions for ready Money being pressing, he had given full assurances of his approbation of such Bargain, & had therefore ordered them to bring the same to a conclusion. 374.

94. Letter of the Lords Commissioners to the Commissioners at Plymouth; requiring them to reassume the Sale of certain Goods which they had before sold at too low a Rate; that they should not deliver out any Goods unto the Buyers, until payment be first made; that they do speedily send up their Acco'mpts, in doing which they have been too remiss. 1st Nov. 1665. 375.

95. Commission of the Lords Commissioners, empowering and authorizing the Duke of Albemarle to conclude the Treaty with the East India Company, which they consent unto, ratifie, & confirme. 2d November 1665. 378.

96. Letter of the Lords Commissioners to the Duke of Albemarle, shewing their Satisfaction as to the Bargain he had made with the East-India Company, and with the Notice he had given them, that he hoped his Majesties Goods in the Prize East-India Ships might be esteemed at about 2,000 l. and they desire that Care may be taken in separating the best Goods from the worst: for the Seamen when they plundered and threw about the Bales to finde out the richest Goods, tore many of the Baggs, and mixed many of the Baggs, one with the other. 14th Nov. 1665. 383.

97. Order of the Lords Commissioners, to the Commissioners of Plymouth, not to sell any naval Stores, without previously acquainting the Commissioners of the Navy, with the Quantities & Qualities of the same. 16th Nov. 1665. 385.

98. Commission for Mr. George Clifford to be Store-keeper of the Port of London, in the room of Mr. George Paul (turned out for Misdemeanors?) 2d November 1665. ibid.

99. Instructions to the Commissioners of Bristol, about their going to Plymouth, & joining themselves to the Commissioners there, in the business & disposal of all Prizes not yet disposed of. 18th November 1665. 387. et vid. 389.

100. Order

100. Order of the Lords Commissioners, requiring that Mr. John Carlisle Storekeeper at Dover, should be admitted to repair unto & attend his Employment; he having cleared himself of the Imputation laid upon him. 4th Dec. 1665. 392.

101. Letter of some of the Lords Commissioners to the Duke of Albemarle, upon his Grace's desiring them to appoint two Men to appraise the Goods delivered to the East India Company out of the two Prizes. They seem to believe that they have not authority to do so, as seeming to apprehend (contrary to an assurance given them by Sir George Carteret the Vice Chamberlain) that the Great Seal is passed for separating the Concern of those Prizes from their Commission. They therefore desire that his Grace would direct the Company to return them the Instrument under hand & seal designed to be left with them. 9th October 1665. 394.

102. Power given to the Lord Ashley to treat with Alderman Edward Backwell, or others, & conclude a Sale of the Silver found in the two Ships called the County de la Mark & the Hartop van Clave: as to which, the Alderman had already laded 58. 4d per oz. Troy Weight, for that in Barres, & 58. 1d. per oz. for that in Ryals. 26th December 1665. 393. et vid. ant. 1516.

103. Order of the Lords Commissioners, to the Commissioners of the several Ports, requiring them to make up their Accounts of all Prize Ships & Goods brought into their Ports since the beginning of the Dutch War, and to perfect the same before the 2d day of February next ensuing. 26th December 1665. 399. et vid. ant. 414. 416. 468.

104. Letter of the Lords Commissioners, to the Commissioners of London, about making up their Accounts, and selling of Goods rifled but not taken away by the Claimants. 13th January 1665. 401.

105. Order of the Lords Commissioners, requiring Dr. Leoline Jenkyns to make a Report of such Fees as may be allowed to Interpreters & Translators in the Court of Admiralty. 20th January 1665. 406.

106. Instructions for Mr. John Shales appointed Agent of Prizes at Portsmouth; an. Sir John Knight at Bristol. 12th February 1665. 417.

107. Memorandum of Mr. Walter Clavel's being appointed by the Lords Commissioners to examine the Accounts of the Out-Ports, and to represent the state of them to their Lordships. 16th February 1665. 419.

108. Order for the Appearance of Alderman Hooker of London, Alderman Daffwood Silkman in Cheapside, Mr. Luthileir of London Merchant, Mr. Locke of Greenewiche, Mr. Sands of Walbroke London, & Mr. Nicholas Dawes before the Lords Commissioners, to satisfy their Lordships in such Particulars, as would be demanded of them; it being informed, that several Particulars of Prize Goods belonging to his Majesty, had indirectly come into their Custody, or had been disposed of by them. 21st February 1665. 423.

109. Order of the Lords Commissioners, for seizing all French Ships & Goods being found within the Harbours, Ports, Creeks, & Rivers of this Kingdom; his Majesty having declared a War against the French King & his Subjects. 23d Febr. 1665. 424.

110. Instructions to Sir Edmund Pooley, Mr. Browne & Mr. Clifford about the Charitie and other Prizes at Yarmouth, &c. 425.

111. Mr. Robert Clifton, & Mr. Richard Bowers appointed by the Lords Commissioners to seize upon all Goods embarked from his Majesties Prizes, at Yarmouth, Harwich, and other places thereabouts. 26th Febr. 1665. 427.

A Book in fol. given by Mr. Anstis, and on the outside entitled,

1. "The Proceedings of the Right Hon^{ble} his Majesties Principal Commissioners for Prizes, from March 1665-6."

Here it may be noted, that the Prize Office being found too chargeable to the King, it was altered & settled upon a cheaper Establishment, and many of the Sub-Commissioners and inferior Officers were discharged.

The Proceedings being many, I shall omit the mentioning of ordinary Matters relating to the condemnation of Ships, the appraising of Goods, the Sale, Delivery & Assignment of the same; the Payment of Officers, &c. and only specify the particulars following.

2. An alphabetical Table of Matters contained in this Book; at the beginning.

3. Instructions to Charles Bennet Esq. Deputy to the Right Honble. the Lord Arlington, his Majesties Comptroller of Prizes; Richard Kingdon Esq. Deputy to the Rt Honble. the Lord Ashley his Majesties Treasurer of Prizes; Henry Rumbald & George Clifford Esqrs. his Majesties Storekeepers of Prizes in the Port of London; or to any two or more of them, Commissioners of Prizes for the said Port, whereof the said Deputy of his Majesties said Comptroller, or the said Deputy of his Majesties Treasurer to be one: for the better Execution of the Powers to them given as Sub-Commissioners for the Port of London. 437.

(This book following the list, as to the Pages.)

The like Instructions were sent to the Commissioners at Southampton, Plymouth, & Hull.

4. Commission to the new Commissioners of London, & the District thereof. dat. 1st March 1665. 443.

ances he did not produce, to vouch the same; but on the contrary, they had applied themselves unto their Lordships, complaining for want of Satisfaction of the Money he was alleged to have paid. 664.

93. Order for referring the Examination of Captain Grant (accused of Embezzlements) & his Defence, to Sir Edward Pooley, Colonel Wyndham, & Dr. Lionel Jenkins. 665.

94. Letter of the Lords Commissioners to the Magistrates of Southampton, to which Place they had determined to remove the Prize-Office from Cowes: exhorting them to waive their pretensions to any Immunities or Privileges, which might induce their Lordships to alter their Resolutions touching the Removal of the said Office. 14 Dec. 1666. 666.

95. Letter of the Lords Commissioners, to Mr. Ash at Plymouth, who refused to make Entry of the Kings Goods in the Whale-Ships there, otherwise than as foreign & subject to double Duties; which Case though often stirred up, had been as often over-ruled, even with the allowance of the Farmers. They therefore blame his Impertinency; wherein if he shall persist, a Serjeant of Armes will bring him up, to acknowledge his Error. ibid.

96. Letter of the Lords Commissioners to the Embassador of Sweden for the Release of a great Dutch Fly-boat laden with Corne, which (after a brisk Chase, even to her being not only deserted, but in part fired by her own Mariners) was taken by his Majesties Ship Pearle & carried to Gottenburgh, where the same was detained by the Governor. 24 December 1666. 668.

97. Letter of the Lords Commissioners, to Sir William Coventry, desiring him to move his Royal Highness to give strict Orders to the Officers & Commanders of his Majesties Ships to deliver their Prizes in such Places, & to such Officers of Prizes as they shall first come at. And that he would punish the Captains of two Fireships, who refused to deliver up their Prizes, under colour of Orders to carry them for London, or some other Port; but in Truth, with Intent & Designe of gaining the better Opportunities to embezel their Ladings, & dispose of those Embezzlements. 4 January 1666-7. 660.

98. Order for the delivery of Armes & Ammunition found in Prize-Ships to the Officers of his Majesties Ordnance. 16 January 1666. 662.

Many such Orders for delivery of Ships, Armes, Boards, Wynes, & other Goods & Necessaries proper for the Kings Offices, are scattered up & down in these Books; which I have forborne to mention, because it is obvious, that the Government would rather make use of those things to be found in Prizes, rather than buy the same with fresh Charge.

99. Warrant for bringing up Nine Persons living in or near Colchester, who were active & instrumental in the Embezzlement of his Majesties Prize-Goods, & disposing of such Embezzlements. 664. 670.

1525.

A thin Book in large fol. bought of me; and entitled, An Harmonie of the Bible, with a diligent Registre of the Times; by Hugh Broughton.

This is the original (I have lately procured a Print of Hugh's Effigies; did fasten it at the beginning of the Book.)

1526 & 1527.

Two Velum-Books in fol. which being formerly bound up together in one Volume, shall now be considered by me, as such.

The first of these consisteth of 28 Leaves: the latter beginneth with fol. 29. & endeth with fol. 178.

That, relating only to the two Books of the Macca-bees; this is to the New Testament.

The New Testament is taken as Four Tracts, namely the Gospels as one Harmony; the Acts of the Apostles; the Epistles; and the Apocalypse.

The Method observed in these Books, in this. First to begin with a Text of the Scripture, according to the vulgar Latin; and over against it, to represent the subject thereof in Painting, in a pretty large Circle. Underneath the said Text of Scripture, is put down in Latin, the meaning of the same, according to the Sense & Judgment of the Author, who generally draweth the several Texts to shew & declare the Benefits accruing to such who live a good Life, and the Punishments attending a bad one: and he especially & frequently inveigleth against those evil Prelates & Clergymen, who neglecting & forsaking the Work of God (having obtained their Dignities by corrupt means) continued, out of Ambition, to make their Court to great Men, and at length abandoned themselves to Pride, Covetousness, Luxury, and all manner of worldly vanities. These Explications are also represented in Circles under the other; all columnatim. So that on each Page there is four Columns one of Writing a Text & its Allegory lower; then four Circles exhibiting the same by way of Illumination: then another like Column of Writing; and lastly another Column of four like Circles; which with proper illuminated Ornaments fill the Page.

From these Pictures, many good Notices & Hints may be had, touching the Habits of Princes, Clergy, & lastly, meaner Men & Women; Machines, Instruments of War, musical, & domestic, &c. as also for the explaining divers Usages & Customs, sacred & civil. Among which, one I will here take notice of, touching the variation of the more modern Popery from the more ancient. Every body, almost, knoweth that in the Primers, Breviaries, Missals, secundum Usum Sar. &c. one of the ways of representing the ever-blessed Trinity, is by a Body with a Head consisting of three faces. Now in this Book, Antichrist is represented after that manner, as may be seen at fol. 26. 95. 152-153. Here it may be remembered, that the Numbers are written on the Blank side of each Leaf.

This Book (taking both Volumes for one Book) seemeth to have been made in France, about 500 Years ago; and is painted & gilded after the best manner used in that time. Here & there, also, are some directions, in a French Hand of that time, & in the French Language, for the Workmen to alter some things done amiss.

Among the faults; the Shield fol. 137. exhibiting a Plain-Cross Vert, on a Field Gules, is not noted; although it hath been found guilty of false Heraldry, by an eminent Officer of Armes to whom I lately shewed it; there being Color upon Color, which their Rules will not allow. But, in my Opinion, the Book-painter was not to blame, his Work being older than, I believe, the Heralds can prove their Rules of Branching to be; and would have been the same in the original.

Moreover,

Num. 1527, 1528.

Moreover, other Arms, more antient, labor under the same defect, if it was any; as, the antient Arms said to have belonged to the Kingdom of France, vizt. Three Toads Sable; on a Field Vert; which is Color upon Color. I need not add, that the Arms born by Godfrey of Bullen after his being King of Jerusalem, were Metal upon Metal, & yet allowed as good.

This Book without doubt, was formerly one Volume, of that gloriously illuminated Biblical Manuscript, the first Volume of which, beginning with Genesis, & ending with Job, was given unto the Bodleyan Library by Sir Christopher Heydon the elder, where it still remaineth marked ARCH. A. 154.

Num. 1535-1537.

1535.

An Heraldical Book in fol. written, tricked, & coloured (as it seemeth) by the hand of Mr. Jacob Chaloner the Armes-Painter; wherein are containd,

1. The Pedegree of Harewell, with Armes. 1.
2. Armes of the old Earls of Chester; viz. of Hugh Lupus, &c. to John le Scot, in Colours. 2. b.
3. Juliticiarij Comitatus Cestrensis, Anno 1601. 3.
4. Armes of the severall Justices of Chester, from Gerardus filius Walteri in the time of Hugh Lupus, to Sir James Whitlock A.D. 1620. for the most part in Colours. 4. b.

These are very imperfect, & Leaves transposed.

5. An imperfect Alphabet of the Armes of the Cheshire Gentry; in Colours. 7.
6. An imperfect Collection, designed for the Armes of Cheshire Families, in Trick only; to be put down in alphabetical order. 29.

Hitherto (excepting fol. 1.) the Armes are all sett forth in printed Elicochens.

Then followeth,

7. A Copy of the Visitation-book of the County-Palatine of Cheshire, as the same was made and taken by Richard St. George Norroy, & in his Company Mr. Henry St. George Rouge-Rose. A.D. 1612. & 1613. 35.

Observables in this particular Copie, may be,

8. Some Notes touching the Succession of the old Earls of Chester, with their Genealogies & Descents. ibid.

9. Proofs from Evidences & Seals, touching the Descent & Arms of many Families.
10. Divers Descents intirely added by Mr. Richard Mundy; not to mention the many Additions & Continuations made to Pedegrees, both by him & others.

An Heraldical Book in fol. almost wholly written & tricked by Mr. Richard Mundy; & containing,

1. The Visitation of the County of Essex, made by George Owen York-Herald, & Henry Lilly Rouge-Rose, in Anno 1634. for Sir Richard St. George Clarenceux, & Sir John Borough Norroy; who by Agreement visited jointly in each others Province. Copied by the Originall.

This Mr. Mundy styled the Visitation; although it be little better than a Collection of the Descents & Armes from the Visitation-book abovementioned. For he omitted almost all the Church-Notes; Proofs from private Evidences & Seals; public Armes & Seales of Corporations, with the Lists of their respective Officers; & the Subscriptions of those who gave the Information to the Visitors. However, this is pretty well recompensed by,

2. Many Additions made by Mr. Mundy both in red & black Ink.

3. Some few Notes of Mr. Latton, Mr. Dale, &c.

4. Armes of Coo of Walden; in Trick. 236. b.

5. Pedegree of Peres; with Armes. 237.

2. The Visitation of Hampshire, made by Thomas Benolt Clarenceux in Anno 1530.

3. Enlarged with the Visitation of the same County made by Robert Cooke Clarenceux, A. D. 1575.

4. Both which are continued with the Visitation made by John Phillipot Somerset in Anno 1622. Most part then don, and finished in Anno 1634.

Observables in this Book may be,

5. Armes of many of the Hampshire Gentry, in Trick. 1.

6. Many Additions & Enlargements made to the Descents by Mr. Mundy the Collector thereof; as also, by Mr. Latton of Grayes Inne, & Mr. Dale Suffolk-Herald (both whom have diligently perused Mr. Mundy's Books) and by others whose hands I do not as yet know.

7. Here is a Pedegree of Fyther of Chilton Condover, said to be made, registred, & allowed, and is also subscribed by Robert Cooke Clarenceux, 10th May A.D. 1573, according to the true Evidences & Charters of John Fyther Esq. wherein he is made to be the Heir of Walter de Merton, and of several other Families, whose Armes he quartered, with two or three Quotations, about that great Man. But Mr. Munday hath sett down the Armes of the said Walter de Merton, as they remained in his College at Oxford (which are plainly different from those in the Quarterings) and the Note following, "This John Fyther was disclaymed Anno 1575. But since, this Pedegree was sett out for him by Clar. Cooke. 58.

8. At the Descent of Fafhin, Mr. Mundy wrote this Note, "Hee paid the Fee of 20s. and promised to make Profile of his Armes at Michelmas-Terne; but he was disclaymed the 4th of June 1576.

Qu. Whether Mr. Clarenceux Cooke gave the Man his 20s. back again?

4. That many of the Descents are enlarged & continued by Mr. Mundy.

5. A Stamp of the Seal of Latton, amended by Mr. Latton of Grayes Inne, with a Note of his Hand. 5. b.

The Visitation is followed by,

6. A Collection of the Pedegrees of divers Herefordshire Families, not entered into the Visitations of this County; made as Opportunities happened by Mr. Mundy. 33.

Among these I find,

7. Some Extracts of Deeds, & Tricks of old Seals belonging to the Family of De la Bere. 62.

8. Armes of the Herefordshire Gentry; hastily tricked in printed Escutcheons. 78.

Num. 1545-1548.

9. The Pedegree of Harley, from about the time of the Conquest, to Sir Edward Hawley, Father to my most honoured Lord Robert Harley, Earl of Oxford & Earl Morimer, Baron of Wigmore, Lord High Treasurer of Great Britain, the Collector of this noble Library. 96. b.

In this Pedegree, besides the Armes, & some of the Quarterings; are divers Prooves from antient Evidences (although not so antient as what I have seen elsewhere) with Tricks of old Seals belonging to this antient & noble Family: with others of the like sort illustrating the Descent of Brampton, whose eldest daughter & co-heiress was married to Sir Robert Harley, &c. R. Edw. 1.

10. Descendants from Sir Thomas Cornwall of Berlington; with Arms; by another hand. 125.

11. Stamps of two Seals of the Family of Latton; beneath which, I have fastened a Trick of another which I found loose in a Book which Mr. Latton of Grayes Inne had perused. At the end.

1568.

A Velum Book in fol. written in old English, containing,

The Chronicle called Brute of England, concluding with the Siege of Roan, which was surrendered anno 6 R. Henr. v. This seems to be mostly, a Translation from the Chronicle in French (no. 200.) which Sr. Simonds D'Ewes called Fructus Temporum.

This Book agreeth very well with that, in this Library, marked no. 24. excepting the Prologues, which are here wanting.

This Copie is also more remarkably illuminated than most of the others that I have seen.

In making some comparison between this Book & that inscribed no. 266. I find that to have been such a Chronicle as this, although that be brought down lower, and containeth more matter than this, in the later times. But it seemeth a little extraordinary to me, that Sir Simonds D'Ewes should (as he hath done with his own hands) take his old Book, and cutt off the first leaf or leaves; rafe off the 3 first lines in another place wherein were the conclusion of a former Chapter, & the Title of the next; write thereon a new Title for the Book; that he should rafe off the remaining Numbers of the Chapters, & set new Numbers thereon, successively following what he had thus made the first Chapter; that he should do the same by the Numbers of the leaves; that he should rafe out the first Words of the first Chapter now remaining (except the principal Letter) and write other Words in the room thereof, and that he should, to crown the matter, prefix a new Frontispiece or Title of his own Invention thereunto, to make the World believe that this was not to be deemed a book of that Kind that it proveth to be.

Q. Whether it be fair for any Gentleman to do these things by an old History, although the Book be his own Property.

A Paper Book in fol. and another Copie of the same

(in this Library inscribed No. 1225.) thus entitled, The Parsons Law; collected out of the whole body of the Law, & late Reports.

1570.

An heraldical Book in fol. written & tricked by divers Hands; more especially by Mr. Nicholas Charles, and Mr. Richard Mundy; wherein I find,

1. An alphabetical Table of Surnames; directing to the Arms & Descents following. At the beginning. Then followeth.

2. A very good Copie of the Visitation Book of the County of Stafford; as the same was made & taken A.D. 1583. by Robert Glover Somerset-Herald, for William Flower Norroy.

Hereby I find,

3. Forme of Mr. Somerset's Warrant, to appear before the Earl-Marshall, upon Contempt.

4. List

Num. 1570, 1571.

4. List of those Usurpers of Gentility, who were disclaimed A.D. 1583, during this Visitation. ibid
 5. Arma Nobilium de Comitatu Stafford; ex Libro antiquo in Officio Armorum. 1.
 6. The Dubtful Armes of Staffordshire. 2. b.
 7. Names of some of the ancient Staffordshire-Gentry; with some few of their Armes. 3. b. & 6. b.
 8. Nomina e. Arma Nobilium et Equitum Auratorum in Com. Stafford. qui cum Edwardo I. Rege Stipendia mercabant in Scotia, et alibi. 4. b.
- All the Armes above-mentioned, are hastily tricked within printed Escucheons.
9. Trick of the Common Seal of the Towne of Stafford. 7.
 10. The Armes of the Seay of the Bishopp of Lichfield. 7. b.
 11. The Common Seal of the City of Lichfield. ibid.
 12. The Armes of the City of Lichfield. ibid.
 13. The Common Seal of the Borough & Towne of Newcastle under Lyme. 8.
- Scattered among the Descents, there are,
14. Very many Enlargements & Continuations, by Mr Richard Mundy & others.
 15. Very many Transcripts of, & Extracts from private Evidences; with very many Tricks of private Seals.
 16. Some Notes written by William Latton Esq; with Stamps of two of his Familie-Seals; which, after all, I cannot but think to be modern. 43. b. & 75. b.
 17. A Note inserted by me, touching the tearing part of the Descent of Unwyn out of this Book, and likewise out of another Book in the Office of Armes. 70.
 18. Arms & Crests of divers particular Staffordshire Families. 80. b. 81.
 19. Some Descents entred by Mr. Mundy, which were either not at all registred at the Visitation of this County A.D. 1583, or at least not in so ample a manner. 81.

1571.

An heraldical Book in fol. for the most part written & tricked by Mr. Richard Mundy; containing,

1. An alphabetical Table of Sur-Names, directing to the Armes & Descents following.
 2. Extracts from Domeldi-book, relating to the County of York.
 3. Armes & Crest of John Turnor of Kirke-Leatham in Com. Ebor. Esq; as entred in the Visitation of this County A.D. 1666. by William Dugdale Norroy.
 4. Some Leaves marked with printed Escucheons, intended to contain the Armes of the Yorkshire Gentry; but none are tricked therein, save only those of Hoppy.
- Then followeth at a Distance,
5. Richard Mundy's Copy of the Descents registred at the Visitation of this County A.D. 1584. & 1585, by Mr. Robert Glover Somerfet-Herald, Marshall & Deputy unto his father in law, William Flower Norroy.

Herein I find,

6. Two Seals of the City of York, the largest of which is stiled SIGILLVM SECREIVM.
7. The Seal, as it may seem, of the Metropolitcal Church of York. ibid.
8. The Armes & Seals belonging to the Towne of Beverley.
9. The Seal belonging to the Borough of Headon, &c.
10. The Armes & Seal belonging to the Towne of Kingston upon Hull.
11. The Armes & Seal of the Towne of Pontefract.
12. The Seals belonging to the Towne of Doncaster.
13. Many Transcripts of & Extracts from private Evidences; & tricks of private Seals, illustrating the Descents & Armes of Families.

Num. 1571—1573.

14. Very considerable Enlargements, and perhaps intire additional Pedegrees, added hereunto by Mr. Mundy, from the Visitation-book of this County made A.D. 1575, by William Flower Norroy: which Visitation-book, as I have been informed, is not now to be found in the Library belonging to the College of Armes.

15. Very many Continuations of Descents, made principally by Mr. Mundy; as also other Continuations by Mr. Latton, Mr. Dale, and others. parfim. (vid. fol. 15. b.)

16. Among the private Evidences, I take leave to mention particularly that transcribed in fol. 14. & relating to the Family of Reresby; which, I hope, hath still the Possession of others of better Authority to support its Antiquity.

17. Seven Descents (viz. of Swyft, Skelton, Eaglesfeld, Escot, Danyell, Adlakeby & Thorpe) said by Mr. Mundy, to be taken out of an old Visitation of Yorkshire, made by William Harvey alias Norroy, in the Reigne of King Henry the ninth. Which Booke was sometimes in the Custody of Raphe Brooke Esq; Yorkshire-Herald. 224.

Here seemeth to be some Mistake in this Account; for I cannot find that William Harvey was Norroy before Edw. vi. or that he ever made any Visitation of the Northern Province.

18. Additional Armes & Descents, entered into this Book by some Painter. 240.

1572.

A Book in fol. and containing a large Treatise, beginning from pag. 1. and yet wanteth the first Chapter. The Titles of the other Chapters are,

2. That late Forraigne Writers may easilie bee Mistaken in the Antiquity of the Lawes of England.

3. That our owne Countrey Writers, not being Lawyers, are very ignorant in matters of the Common Law; and consequently, their Writings concerning the same, not to be credited. 51.

4. That our owne Countrey Writers are fitter, and better able to describe our Actions and Lawes than Forraigners, &c. 193.

5. That sometimes the deniers of the Antiquity of the Common Law, affirm that to have bin used in the Common Law in the time of the Conqueror, which began long after the Conquest, which is influenced in the first institution of Justices of Peace, &c. 273.

6. Of the Antiquity & Lawfulness of Wardes. 321.

7. Authors refuted that hold, the Court of Common Pleas, first erected in 9th Ed. iii. That Glanvill the Chief Justice of England, wrote the Treatise of the Common Law. And that the Chief Justice of England and the Chief Justice of the Kinges Bench were all one Officer. 421.

9. The adverse Reasons produced and answered, that the Common Law was here established by William the Conqueror. 525. to 735.

By this turning over the Book, I am somewhat apt to believe, that this may be a Volume of the excellent Work of Sir Roger Owen, concerning the Antiquity, Ampleness, & Excellency of the Common Law of England.

(It is so; and the MS. 3 C. 13? supplyeth the first Chapter, wanting herein: as this Book seemeth to supply that and the other two Volumes with four Chapters; they wanting all from the 7th Chapter to the 15th).

Non ists dico, quæ prisca Secula apud Ethnicos Poetas et Philosophos in usu fuerunt; quarum etiamnum nonnullæ restant quasi e Naufragio Tabulæ: sed alterius plane formæ, quas ante plurima Secula introductas adhuc retinet hodierna Græcorum Ecclesia.

Rubricæ sive Tituli hujusce præclari Codicis, hæc ordine sequuntur.

Num. 1613.

1. Κυριαρχία ψαλλόμενα εἰς τὰς ἐπισήμους ἑρτάς ἐν τῷ κατιδ. θήτω. — ἤχος α'.
Κυριαρχίαν Exclamatorium, dicitur Pſalmus 141. qui ab his Verbis incipit: — Κύριε ἐλεησάτω πρὸς σὺ.
2. Κατιδ. θήτω ὁ πρὸς ἐξή μου. κ. τ. λ. ejusdem Pſalmi Versus est secundus.

In margine scribitur* (Ψ) i. e. ni fallor, ἤχος τρίτος. ἤχος in Cantu Græco Ecclesiastico, idem est quod Tonus in Latino. Habent autem Græci suos Octo Tonos, à quibus Libellus (etiam præfatus Tractatus) Ὀκτώηχος dicitur. Quatuor Toni priores simplicem appellationem sunt pacifi, ἤχος α' primus; ἤχος β' secundus; ἤχος γ' tertius; ἤχος δ' quartus. Quatuor posteriores differant fortiturn denominationem. Quintus enim est ἤχος πάλιν πρῶτου Tonus obliquus primus; Sextus est ἤχος πλ. β'. Tonus obliquus secundus; Tertius dicitur ἤχος βαρὺς Tonus gravis, propter moram et Vocis gravitatem inter illum canendum. Ultimus est ἤχος πλ. δ' Tonus obliquus quartus. Goar. Singuli suo Ordine recensendi. (Subnexis è codice notis eorumdem notis, five abbreviationibus. N.B. Stellæ frequentes notarum in codice repetitionem designant)

3. Στιχηροὶ ἀναστάσιμοι ἰωάννη ἀπὸ τῶν δαμασκηνῶν. ἤχος α'.
1 b.

Στιχηροὶ ἀναστάσιμοι, sunt Versus, five Canticiones Refræctioni Dominicæ consecrati.

Discrimen non modicum est, inquit Goar, inter στίχους et στιχηροὺς: ille est Verficulus e Scriptura, et maxime à Davidicis Pſalmis depromptus: hic Versus est ab Hymnographo Ecclesiastico, licet prolixiori Sententia, ad longiularum etiam periodorum Normam, compositus. Et discrimini huius annotandi gratia, στίχους Verficulum, στιχηροὺς Versum, ubique sum interpretatus.

4. Alius τοῦ αὐτοῦ. ἤχος α'.
5. Ἀνατολικά. ἤχος α'. ejusdem Joannæ Damasceni, ibid.

Ἀνατολικά sunt Troparia Ὀρθόδοξοι, scilicet. hæc quæ ἀναστάσιμον Refræctionem Christi commemorantes: &c.

6. Δέξαι καὶ νῦν. θ. ἤχος α'.
Hic δέξαι videtur fere eadem ac δόξα. Δόξα ὁμοίως verò duplex est, μεγάλη ac μικρά. Illa est Hymnus Angelicus "Gloria in excelsis Deo." Hæc repetita sæpius in Pſalmorum fine, Trinitatis glorificatione, Gloria Patri et Filio, &c. Goar. καὶ νῦν. i. e. Secunda pars ejusdem Doxologiæ καὶ αὐτὴ εἰς τὰς αἰῶνας τῶν αἰώνων.

7. Ἀποστόλῃς τοῦ αὐτοῦ. ἤχος α'.
Ἀποστόλῃς, ἀποστολῇ, Tridionum. Du Cang.

Τρίδιον, est Liber Græcorum Ecclesiasticus; in quo Officium in Ecclesijs eorum recitari solum a Septuagesima, quam ipsi vocant Dominicam Publicani et Pharisei, ad Sabbatum Sandum continetur. Cùm Canones et Hymni in Solemnitatibus Domini nostri Jesu Christi, B. Virginis, et aliorum Sanctorum ix. habent Strophas, ut ita dicam, Odas nuncupatas, quasi Cantiones; Liber hic Canones hujusmodi, ut plurimum, qui ternas Odas non excedunt, completitur. Suicer.

8. Ἀνατολικά τῷ αὐτῷ ἰτα. ἤχος α'. ibid. 5. & 5. b.

9. Δέξαι καὶ νῦν θ' (ἵνατον) ἰωάννου ἀρχιεπισκόπου. Quare, fortè Chrysostomi.

10. Εἰς τὴν ἑβδόμη. i. e. Ad Laudes. Goar. 5. b.

11. Εἰς τοὺς αἰῶνας. ibid.

Pſalmi 148, 149, & 150, propter repetitam in ijs vocem ἀνιτά, αὐτοὶ ἀπὸ Græcos audiunt. Goar.

Hic incipit ἤχος β'. five secundus. * (Ψ)

12. Τὸ σάββατον, ἐπίκαιρον, κυριαρχίαν τῷ αὐτῷ, i. e. ἤχος β'.

13. Ἰεσημιαν στίχους i, καὶ ψαλλόμενα στιχηροὺς ἀναστάσιμον. ἰωάννου ἀπὸ ἀρχιεπισκόπου. ἤχος β'.

Nichtas ἀγίας, diclae Græcis κατ' ἔξοχον Dies Quadragesimæ. Hinc apud Scylitzem in Constant. Porphyrog. πρῆμῃ ἰδομένη τῶν ἀγίων νεκρῶν, quæ Latinis Quarta est.
Nam Græci Jejunium Quadragesimæ auspicantur die Lunæ post Dominicam τῆς ἀποκριῆς seu Quinquagesimæ, aliter ac Latini, qui hanc Mercurij die incipiunt, quæ ipsæ Græcis πρώτη τῶν ἀγίων νεκρῶν appellatur: at Latini, Prima Quadragesimæ Hebdomas, ea est quæ hanc subsequitur. Aliæ præterea sunt apud Græcos νεκρῶν seu Jejunia, sc. νεκρῶν τῶν ἀποκριῶν, seu ante Festum Apollolorum Petri et Pauli: νεκρῶν τῶν προδρόμων, Jejunium (octo dierum) ante Festum S. Johannis Baptistæ: νεκρῶν τῆς θεοτόκου κοίτης, Jejunium ante Assumptionem B. V. M. quod a primo Augusti initium ducit, νεκρῶν πρὸς τὴν ὕψους, Jejunium, ante Exaltationem Sanctæ Crucis dierum octo, non tamen ex necessitate: νεκρῶν τῶν τα Χριστοῦ γενέσεως, de quo in voce Τεσσαρακοστήμερου. De Cang.

Magnus Canon, cujus Auctor fuit Andreas Hierofolymitanus ex Damasco oriundus, Cretæ Archiepiscopus, qui collecta universa Veteris et Novi Fœderis Historiâ, Canticum composuit; cohortans omnes, ut quæ videntur in Historiâ esse bona et laudabilia, pro Viribus que valeant, mala fugiant et execrentur. Leo Allat.

Ὁ ὕμνος Hymni genus est, in Dei vel Sancti alius laudem illa constructum, ut quasi compagem, edificium, edificium, fabricam; virtutum eius et gloriæ videatur componere; et idco κοτακτικὸν opponitur, ut eo amplius diffunditur. Itali quoque sua Poëmata habent, Stanze ἀπὸ Linguâ, id est Domus five Habitacula, dicit. Goar.
Ἀλληλουῖαν, forte idem ac Alleluiaicum Malcom vel Alleluatica Anthōna apud Latinos, quæ talis essebatur voce Alleluia.
Ἀλληλουῖαν. In Officijs Quadragesimalibus Cantium Alleluia frequentant sæpius et iterant Græci, quæ decantando facilius indulgent, quo tempus illud luctuosiores divinas Laudes requirere agnoscunt: item

Συναπτή. In Ecclesia Orientali, ut cl. Meursius docet, variae erant precationum Formulæ à Diacono pronunciari solitæ: quæ, quia Connexebantur, et simul pronunciabantur, συνεπταί simpliciter vocabantur.
Erant autem, 1. ἡ μεγάλη Συναπτή τῶν Ἐκκλησιαστικῶν, major Connexio Irenicorum; in quâ ad finem singulorum Versuum Populus respondebat Κύριε ἰδοῦμεν; ad pe-nultimum τοῦ κύριε; ad ultimum αὐδὸν. 2. μικρὰ Συναπτή τῶν Ἐκκλησιαστικῶν, minor Connexio Irenicorum: ab ejus Initio, alias dicta Ἐπὶ καὶ ἔτι. 3. Συναπτή τῶν αἰτισιῶν, Connexio Petitionum; ad ejus singulos Versus respondebat Populus; παρασχοῦ κύριε: exceptis penul-timo et ultimo, ubi eadem erat Responso quæ τῶν Ἐκκλησιαστικῶν. Suicer.

428. Τρισάγιος.
Τρισάγιος, Trisagium, Hymni gertus, cujus hæc erant
Verba Ἄγιος ὁ Θεὸς ὁ ἄγιος ἰσχυρὸς, ἄγιος ἀθάνατος, ἱσχυρὸς ἡμῶν: in quo, ἄγιος ὁ Θεὸς referebatur ad Deum Patrem; ὁ ἄγιος ἰσχυρὸς ad Deum Filium; ἄγιος ἀθάνατος; ad Spiritum Sanctum. Vocatur etiam τρισάγιος ὁ ἁγιογραφὸς, χερουβικός ἡμῶν ὁ ἄγιος ὁ ἁγιογραφὸς, τρισάγιος ὁ ἁγιογραφὸς . . . ὁ ἁγιογραφὸς. Anno enim Theodosij Junioris quinto (vel trigesimo secundum Cedrenum, &c.) magno ex-istente Terræ Motu, et Muris corruentibus, quia Ama-lechite intra Urbem inhabitarent, et adversus Hymnum hunc Blasphemias proloquerentur: Preces et Supplicationes in Campo Tribunalis, Theodosius cum Proclo Patriarcha infiruit. Cum vero Κύριε ἰδοῦμεν clamarent Horis aliquot continuas, Adolescentulus qui-dam in conspectu omnium in aërem subleatus esset, audi-vitque; Angelos clamantes, Ἄγιος ὁ Θεὸς, ἄγιος ἰσχυρὸς, ἄγιος ἀθάνατος, ἰδοῦμεν ἡμᾶς. Quod cum mox demissus narrasset, omnes eodem modo Trisagium canere coeperunt, et cessavit Terræ Motus. Huic Hymno Imperator Anastasius post illa ἄγιος ἀθάνατος addi voluit ὁ σωτηρίας ὑπὲρ ἡμῶν, verum id cum magno Malo et furore Constantinopolitanorum.—Oblervandum tamdem discernim quod est inter τὸ Τρισάγιον et Ἑμνιον Epinicion, in quo similiter Ἄγιος canebatur, hunc in modum, Ἄγιος, ἄγιος, ἄγιος κύριε σωτήρ. Ergo τρिसάγιον initio Liturgiæ ante Epistolæ Lectionem canebantur. Hymnus vero Cherubicus et Epinicion, post Catechumenorum et Poenitentium dimissionem. Τρισάγιον quoque usurpabant pro Sacrosancta Trinitate. Suicer.
Deinde sequuntur,

Codex membranaceus et optimæ Notæ in fol. cui præfigitur Titulus his verbis litteris minimis scriptus.

1. "Incipit Prologus in Librum qui Flores Historiarum intitulatur." Superius etiam, hæc Verba vetustâ manu scripta cernuntur, "Flores Ystoriarum est omnium Primus Liber" (in eâ scilicet Bibliotheca ubi tunc reponebatur) quia Fructus omnium Ystoriarum hic inveniuntur: et paulo inferius aliena ac longe recentiore manu (f. D. Joannis? Dec) "Matheus Florigerus." Hinc etiam in Catalogo Codd. MSS. in Angliæ Bibliothecis adscriptorum, edit, Oxon. A. D. 1697. 212. no. 6862, diversis verbis Matthæo Monacho Westmonasteriensis tributis legitur. Verum vel primo intuitu appareat Codicem præsentem longe antiquiorem esse temporibus Matthæi Westmonasteriensis, qui claruit circa A. D. 1377. regnante Rege Anglorum Edwardo 11. si non potius nepote suo Richardo 11.

In eo habentur Annales rerum gestarum ab Origine Mundi, usq; ad Mortem Regis Henrici 11. qui diem suum clausit extremum, Anno Salutis 1189.

In evolvendo Codice, priorem partem A. D. 1065. aut 1066. præcedentem, impresso Matthæi Westmonasteriensis Libro omnino fere convenientem comperi: posteriorem vero partem, ab Angliæ nempe conquestione, usq; ad prædictam mortem R. Henrici 11. Matthæum Parisiensem de S. Albano monachum planissime referre: atqui Matthæum Westmonasteriensem "Flores Historiarum" five Majorem Parisiensem Historiam destituisse; immo quoad ejusdem magnam partem descripsisse; et pro Floribus suis proprijs palam dividendis; nemo nunc inficias ibit.

Inter quamplurimos hujus rei testes, audi ipsos Westmonasteriensis Editorem, in Præfatione sic differentem. — "Matthæus Paris Cœnobij Albanensis Monachus, circa A. D. 1246. Historiam binam, Majorem unam, alteram Minorem, sedulo conscripsit. Major, ut vocatur, quæ nunc sub prælo est, et Deo favente, propediem in publicum prodibit, ab Adamo originem trahens, ad Gulielmi Neutrij Victoriam, et hinc ad Henrici tertij annum 1287. est exposita. Hanc Historiam ad Gulielmum usq; prædictum ita prope expressit et sequutus est Florigerus, ut parum aut nihil ab ejus scribendi methodo declinaverit; atq; hæc eadem est prior pars Matthæi Westmonasteriensis dicta Historia, qui claruit circa A. D. 1375. — et ipse Author Florigerus appellatur. Sane hanc priorem partem Historiæ Albanensem Monachum conscripsisse, etiam si aliæ deessent Demonstrationes, ex Scriptis

" quibusdam Exemplaribus non obscure colligitur: quod tam multus est in describendo Albanum Brionum Protho-martyrem, et primum Cœnobij sui patrem, ut in anno gratiæ 303. et quod de Fundatore illius Cœnobij Oſſa ſolliciti et de translatione dicti Albani tam officioſe commemorat, ut in anno 794. ubi de fundatione Cœnobij Weſtmonaſterienſis fere nihil acceperit; vel in Vita Regis Æthelberti, cujus ſuſu primo fundatam eſſe illam Eccleſiam per civam quen- dam Londinenſem, et ornatus factam, et quaſi de novo ædificatam. per Edvardum Confeſſorem ſcribunt quidam Hiſtoriographi, quam certe Occaſionem, illam Eccleſiam extollendi, non omiſſiſſet Matthæus Weſtmonaſterienſis, ſi veriſimile eſſet eum fuiſſe idius Hiſtoriæ primum Authorem."

D. Watſi Nota de Pariſienſi. " Triplices, quantum video, conſcripſit Annales, Hiſtorias vulgo dictas Mat- thæus hic. Primi ab Origine Rerum in poſteriora Henrici tercij tempora deducti ſunt. Unde et meminit Balæus Hiſtoriæ ejus ab origine Mundi.—Pars prior Primo- rum, totidem ferme verbis exſcripta habetur in priore parte Florilegij Matthæi Weſtmonaſterienſis non ſemel typis editi. Flores Hiſtoriarum Opera ſua hæc vocavit Monachus uterque."

Ex allegatis liquido conſtat hunc Codicem in ſe continere primam Partem Maioris Hiſtoriæ Matthæi Pariſienſis, ab Orbe ſcilicet condito, uſque ad A. D. 1189. cum Auctoris titulo "Flores Hiſtoriarum." Ejusmodi Codicis uſu fruebatur Matthæi noſtri Pariſienſis Editor primarius, qui ſic de eo præſatus eſt, "Nonnulla etiam petita ſunt à veſtito quodam Codice Edovardi Agli- onby de Baſſil-Temple Armigeri, quantum ad priorem partem hujus integræ Hiſtoriæ Magnæ, quæ continua- tur ab Exordio Mundi uſq; ad Annum Domini 1129."

Agilnibianum Codicem ab hoc diverſum eſſe, docet nos doctiſſimus Watſius in præſatione. — "Transcrip- tum Papyraceum—exemplificatum utpote ex Codicibus Agilnibiano, Cecilianoq; qui jam adhuc in Archivis Collegij S. Benedicti ſive Corporis Chriſti celeberrimi reconduntur," a reverendiſſimo Antiſtite de eodem Collegio, de Academia Cantabrigienſi, de Eccleſia Angli- cana optime merito Mattheo Parkero, unâ cum quam- plurimis alijs veſtuſtioris ævi reliquijs pretioſiſſimis in Æternitatem duraturis.

Quinetiam, in Codice quodam Seldeniano manu Jo- annis Balæi ſcripto, ac a D. Watſio citato, habebatur hæc quæ ſequitur Adnotatio. "Ex Bibliotheca Dni Regis, in alio Volumine habetur Hiſtoria (ſc. Matthæi Pariſienſis) ab Origine Mundi uſq; ad Annum Dni 1189. in quo ſequitur Continuatio ab eo anno." Talis Codex in Bibliotheca Regis hodie non comparere; hic autem Harleyanus ab eo anno Continuationem exhibet, ab illa fortasſis Bibliotheca in Cecilianam caſu quodam trans- ſatus: cum in tegmine D. Gulielmi Cœcilij Inſignia Gentilitia Auro impreſſa etiamnum obſerventur. Denique, de eximia raritate Exemplariorum Hiſtorici noſtri, audi- endus idem Primarius, quiſquis fuerit Editor,—"neque volebant (Romanenſes) perſuadere hanc Hiſtoriam per ora et manus hominum volitare, et liberè pervul- gari: quod vel ex eo fatiſ conſtat et comprobatur, quod rara ſint et pauciſſima hujus Hiſtoriæ Exemplaria quæ hodie extant; quum paſſim plura ſint et nume- roſa Exemplaria Gaufridi Monumetenſis, Henrici Huntingdonenſis, Gulielmi Parviſ, Gulielmi de Mal- melbery, Ranulphi Ceſtrenſis, Florilegi, et ſimillium, quanvis manca, mutilata; et in multis locis miſcere et turpiter depravata, quod ex varijs collatis Codicibus maniſeſte deprehenditur."

Deinde ſequuntur, ut ſuprà dixi, manu aliena atq; longe recentiore, atalogue of MSS. printed at Oxford A.D. 1697. no. 6938. entitled Wycliff's Wicket, but it is plainly different from the little Treatise upon these Words, "Hoc est Corpus meum," entitled "Wycklyff's Wycket;" "whyche he made in Kyng Rychards days the second, in the yere 1395. and said to be (together with Mr. Tracies Will, & Tindale's Comment upon it) in- printed at Norenburch 1546." (Which must be a false Date, since Wycliffe died, ult. Decemb. 1387.)

Num. 1666.

The Design of this present MS. is a sort of Summary of the several Books of the Old Testament, with certain Declarations of their Authority, & Use to Christian Men. Whether this Tract took in the Books of the New Testament, doth not now appear. Nor can I now tell whether this Tract be that Prologue to the Bible ascribed to John Wycliff & printed at London A.D. 1550. because that Book hath been lately taken away from a private Collection, & is too scarce to be gotten again in haf.

That this Treatise was written originally by an Englishman & a Lollard, may plainly appear by fol. 89. b. where mention is made of London: and by fol. 74. b. where are these words, "Now in Engeland it is a comyn Proteccion azens Persecucion of Prelatis & of summe Lordis, if a man is custumable to fwerre nededes, & fals, & unavifid, by the Boonys, Nalles, & Sids & othere Membris of Crist; and to be Proud and Leccherous; & speke not of Godds Lawe; and repreve not Synne aboute him. And to absteyne fro Oothis nededes, & unleevefull; and to elchewe Pride; & speke Onour of God, & of his Lawe; and repreve Synne bi weie of Charite: is Matir & Cause now, whi Prelatis & summe Lordis sclaudren Men & clepen hem Lollardis, Eretykis, & Riferis of Debate & of Trefoun azens the King."

When the Term Lollards was first used in England, I find not: but by Fox's Martyrology it should seem to have been used by Henry Crompe a Cistercian Monke & Regent in Divinity, in his Lectures at Oxford, before or about the 14 July 1382. at which very time & place, the Persecution ragged most violently against John Wycliffe and his adherents. I will not affirm that these & former Troubles there, provoked him to lay some horrid Imputations on that University & the Clergy there, worse than Perjury & Simony, and in terms beyond the Truth; the Places may be found fol. 100. b. & 101. as to locking up the Holy Scriptures; and especially fol. 101. b. & 102. where he saith that "the second Orrible Synne is — & strong mayntenance thereof; as it is known to many Persones of the Reume, & at the last Parliament." I have taken some pains to inquire into this foul matter, but could not find ground sufficient for such a Charge.

Moreover, the Author declaims against Transubstantiation, fol. 91. b. Image-Worship, fol. 76. Simony fol. 68. 102. and divers other public Scandals, with reference to Religion. Among others, that of Public setting the Pardons of Sins to Sale, did not escape, for at fol. 67. b. he saith — "Summe Cristen Lordis senden general Lettris to alle her Mynistris & Leegemen either Tenautes, that the Pardouns of the Bischopis of Rome (that ben opyn Leefings, for the igtraunten many hundred zeeris of Pardoun after Domes day) he prechid generally in her Rewmes & Lordschipis: and if eny wijfe man azen-feith the opyn Errours of Antecrist; and teche men to do her Almes to pore nedey men, to ascape the peynes of Helle, and to win the blisse of Hevene; he be prefonted, as a man out of Cristen Bileve, and Traytour of God, & of Cristen Kings & Lordis."

One thing more as to the Author of this Treatise, fol. 3. b. he writeth thus: "And therefore Y translate it not the Thridde, neither the Fourth Book of Esdre, that ben Apocripha: but only the First, & of Neemye, that ben rikened for Twey Bookis anentis Grekis & Latyns"

All these Citations seem to agree well enough with the Person & Opinions of Wycliffe; who is also commonly said to have translated the Bible out of Latin into English; though I could never yet see such a Book with his Name written therein by the first Hand. (Not to mention what Sir Thomas More wrote, that there were then divers Translations of Scripture into English, allowed by Authority; & that the Wyclivites were only charged with keeping certain Prefaces to Biblical Books of Wycliffes compofure).

Not having the printed Prologue now by me, I will not affirm that this MS. is the same with that, which Mr. Wharton in his Appendix to Dr. Cave's Hist. Litt. describeth in these Words.

"Prologus ad integram Bibliorum Versionem Anglicanæ, ab ipso adornatum, Anglice, Lond. 1550." 8vo.

Nor will I affirm (though it may be likely) that it is the same with what he calls "prolixa admodum Introductio de Autoritate atq; Usu S. Scripturæ" (at the beginning of a MS. New Testament in English, in the University-Library of Cambridge, class 3. no. 4.) "Sub cuius initium, enumeratis, ex Judæorum ac Reformatorum sententia, libris Scripturæ Canonice, reliquos omnes Apocryphos esse, et Autoritate Fidei carere asserit."

I believe this Tract may be found entire in certain old English Bibles, in Her Majesty's Royal Library; & in that in the Ld. Bp. of Ely.

"Materia hujus Libri est Theorica & Practica. Intencio sua est ostendere Passiones et Significationes earum. Utilitas dandi congrua Medicamina unicuique; Passioni. Cui parti Philosophiae supponatur principaliter Phisice.

Ille Liber a G. (Galeno?) compositus Glauco Nepoti suo misus, apud Latinos male ordinatus erat; Incipium enim a Febre habebat: Quem Garipotus a Capite incipium faciens composuit; adiciens ei multa Pauli (Aegineta) Alexandri (Tralliani) Theodori Prisciani (Medici a Prisciano Grammatico plane diversi) in Passionibus tangens Theoricam, scil. res naturales, et nonnaturales, et quae sunt contra Naturam; in Curis Practicam tangit, scilicet Chirurgiam, Farmatiam, et similia."

Num. 1685—1687.

Aliud hujusce Operis exemplar videtur exstare in Bibliotheca Domus five Collegij S. Petri apud Cantabrigienses, no. 107. inscriptum; cum hæc, quæ sequitur, adnotatione. vid. Catal. MSS. Impr. 207. Galenus in Passionario.

“Nota. Liber iste merito Passionarius vocatur, quia de Passionibus agit; quem quidam Galenum composuisse asserunt, sed non est verum; quia hujus Libri diversi fuerunt auctores: scil. Alexander, Galenus, Paulus, atq; Priscianus; et non simul, neque uno consensu: sed semotim de Passionibus Corporis, et prout cuique visum est tractaverunt. Sed Theodorus Priscianus collegit, et a femetipso, et a quibusdam additis, aliter quam nunc sit, ordinavit. Febres enim, utpote Universales in Tractatu præmisit, deinde cætera quasi Particularia subjunxit; id est, de Cephalia, et alijs hujusmodi. Secundum quosdam vero, non prædicti plures Unum Librum composuerunt; sed Unus, scilicet Paulus, composuit. Sed si hæc si five alij composuerunt, Warimipus (annon legend. Warimipus?), quidam Medicus Salernitanus, videns eum in multis esse falsum, in pluribus verum, utpote in omnibus inordinatum, cum quibusdam Clericis optimis sibi adhibitis, hunc Librum, in quantum ejus et eorum Scientia diligens posuit, emendavit; et ordinem Tractatus prædictum transmutavit; et Errata diluendo, superflua resecando, Ambigua; referendo, prout nunc ordinavit, a Particularibus incipiens ad similitudinem totius Integri.”

Codex partim chartaceus, partim membranaceus, in fol. min. ex diversis Tractatibus simul compacturis conflans; in quo continentur, Senio Membranea, cui Titulus, Leges que vocantur Leges Edwardi, quia cum diu essent dimisse, ipsas fecit reparare: et de Legibus Willelmi. Me autem iudice, hæc Leges sunt,

1. Leges Regis Canuti, binis ad calcem Capitibus, et Præfatione; quam imprefia, auctiores. 4.
 2. Leges R. Eadwardi Confessoris, prout a R. Willelmo Primo confirmatae. 7. b.
 3. Adnotatio de Anglo-Saxonum Mancusæ, et Mancæ, valore. 6.

Sequitur pars Codicis chartacei, sed tamen vetulsi, in quo,

4. A Fragment of a Comment upon the vii Penitential Psalms; in Old English Verse. 13.
 5. An apocryphal, or rather fabulous Tract (beginning & ending with Scripture) about the Creation of Adam & Eve, their Penitence & Sufferings, as also about their Death and Interment, &c. 18.

This Tract was translated out of Latin; and part of the Latin Original remaineth in MS. 40. B. 1. When it was invented (I mean the fabulous part thereof) or composed, I cannot tell: But this may be remembered, that whereas the Master of Stories vizt. Petrus Comestor is herein cited, at fol. 26. lin. 6. there is no mention of him in the Latin Original. 49. lin. 16. & 17.

If this be some of the Hereticks spawn during the primitive Times of the Church; perhaps that Prayer ascribed to Noah, & extant in the Workes of Mr. Gregory of Christ-church (where the Sorrows of Adam (I think) are remembered) might have been grounded upon it.

6. A Poem to Christ; whose Rubric is, Do Mercy to fore-thy Judgement. 27.

7. A Poem entituled Alma Redemptoris Mater, 28. 'Tis a Legend upon the Story of the Jewes murthering a young Boy, who had learned to sing that Anthem in Honor of the Virgin Mary.

CAT. HARL. VOL. II.

Num. 1704, 1705.

8. Another, on this Saying, In thy most Helth, wisely be ware. 31.

9. An Allegorical Tretis of the Abbey of the Heli Goost. 32. b.

In the Library of Corpus-Christi-College in Oxford, is another Copie of this Treatise, acknowledging John Alcock for the Author. This John Alcock during the last 30 Years of his Life, was Bishop of Rochester, Worcester, & Ely, successively: He was also Master of the Rolls; and died with the Reputation of a Saint, A. D. 1500.

10. Divine & Moral Counsels; but striking at some general Points of Religion then most in Vogue; as, "Forbere a Wicked Word fro thyn euen Critten; & it schalle like me better than thou bete thyself with alle fo monye Roddis as growen in an Acre of Londe.

"Visite the Pore & the Sike, spekyng all Goodnesse; and it schalle like me better than thou goo barefoote, and the waye renne Blod after thy fete," &c. 48. b.

11. Legend or fabulous History of the Three Wise Men, or Kings of Cullen. Imperf. 49. b.

Then follow, by much later Hands

12. Mr Secretary Nauntons? Fragmenta Regalia, or Observations on Queene Elizabeth, her Tymes, and Favorites. 76. b.

13. A Copie-Book, done (as it seems) by some Boy, about A. D. 1650. 144.

Some of the principal Letters, are copied from the large Text-Letters in ule about the Time of K. Henry viii. the others are of more modern & less curious Invention. The Leaf beginning with the Letter E is wanting; but perhaps it may be no great loss.

1706.

An Old English Book in fol. written by different Hands, partly in Verse, & partly in Prose, wherein are contained,

1. Divers Medicinal Receipts. 1. b.
2. A Kalandre in Englyshe, made in Balade (i. e. in Verse) by Danna John Lydgate Monke off Bury. 3. b.
3. A lytell Tretysse, de Cantico Amoris, in Verse; by the same Author. 9.
4. A Prayer to Christ, that the Merits of His Passion may redound unto us; in Verse, perhaps by the same Dan John Lydgate. 10. b.
5. The Nine Lessons of the Dirige, which Job made in hys Trybulacion, lying on the Donghyll; and ben declared more openly to Lawde mennes Understanyng by a solemne worthy and dyscrete Clerke Rycharde Hampole; aud is clepyd Pety Job, and ys full profytable to sterc Synners to Compunction. ibid.
6. A Tretysse of Parce michi Domine. 15. b.
- This is an Allegorical Poem upon the Vanity & Incertainty of Youth, Beauty, Strength, & Riches; compoed, perhaps, by the above-mentioned Richard Rolle Hermit of Hampole.
7. A Poem entituled The Sevyen Dedely Synne. 17. b.

This seemeth also to be of the same Richard Hampole's composition.

8. A Poem (perhaps of the same Author) on the Sex observanda omni Cristiano in extremis; scil. Solutio Debiti, Compositio Testamenti, Confessio Peccati, Extrema Unctio, Virgini Susceptio, Lamentatio Supplicatio. 18. b.
9. A Descriptiō off Feythe, Hope, and Charyte. 19.

10. How a Man may knowe whether he be meke or not. 19. b.
11. Upon the Image, or Picture of Death, who is here represented as holding a Spear in one hand, and a Bell in the other. ibid.
12. Another divine Poem or Ballade, taken owte off the Book of the Golden Legend. ibid.
13. The Fyfte Chaptyle of a Tretysse called Ortiū Salutis; in manner of a Tretysse; and containeth we knowe howe to live. 27.
14. Tract was compoed by the abovementioned Richard Hampole.
15. A Chapbook taken owte of a Boke clepyd Toure of alle Toures; and teacheth a Man how to dye. 24. b.

Num. 1706.

15. Richard Hampoles Treatise of the Craft of Dying, in Six Chapters. 24. b.
16. A Tretysse of Gostly Batayle; by the same Richard Hampole. 36. b.
17. A Tract intituled A Ladder off 4 Rowgis, by the whyche Ladder men mowen welle clymbre to Hevyn. 47. b.

This seemeth also to be another of Hampole's Compositions; to whom I find a Scala Mundi attributed by Pits.

18. How to recuee the Sacrament. 54.
- In the Table anon to be mentioned, this is ascribed to Seynt Alberte the Bysschop.
19. Aromata que emit Maria Magdalena, secundum Magistrum Adamum Carthusiensem. 54. b.
20. A lyttle shorte Tretysse that telleth how there were fix Masters assembled togedere, and yche on asked other what Thynges they myght best speke of that myght best please God, and were most profytable to the people; and alle they were accordede to speke off Trybulacion. ibid.
21. De Patientia. 55.
22. The 12 Profetes and Evangelistes of Trybulacion. 55. b.

I look upon the Words [and Evangelistes] to have been no part of the Original Title of this Tract, which was "Duodecim Utilitates Tribulationis," &c. translated by Richard Hampole, as I suppose, out of the Latin of Petrus Blesensis.

23. L'ebellus Ricardi Heremite de Hampole de Emendatione Peccatoris; qui obiit A. D. 1349. apud Sandimoniales de Hampole; with this farther Rubric, Here bene 12. Chapires whiche Rycharde Hampole the Heremyte made; how that a Man shulde lyve in Contemplacion, & in Meditacion, and in other vertuous Lyvinge, and after this Lyfe to come to the Lyfe everlastinge, and dwell with God in the Blyss of Heuylene. 67.
24. A Devoute Medytacion of Seynt Austyne. (by Richard Hampole) 81.
25. How a Man or Woman or sympyl Connyng shal make hys Prayer to God Almighty. 83.
26. A Confessiō whiche ys also a Prayer that Seynt Brandon made; and hit ys ryghte nedefulle to a Chrysten Man to sey, and to wyrche thereafter. 84.
27. A Confessiō of Sins, drawn from the Ten Commandementys. 85.
28. Another, upon Consideration of the Five Senses. 86. b.

29. Another, upon the Septem Opera Misericordie Corporalia. 87.
30. Another, upon the Septem Opera Misericordie Spiritualia. 87. b.
31. Carta celestis Hereditatis; an allegorical Tract. 88.

Qu. if this be the Diploma Cali, ascribed to John Wychite by Mr. Wharton?

32. Consideracion of Man hymselfe. 90.
33. Arytotes A. B. C. made by Mayster Bennett. 94.

These are Moral Sentences, with a Letter of the Alphabet put before them, and a double Crofs (almost like the Herald's Escaruncle) over all; that it might be what was antiently called the Christ's-Crofs Row.

34. Of the Sevyen Degrees of Humylite, according to Seynt Anselme. 94. b.
35. Of the 7 Degrees of Pryde. ibid.
36. An imperfect Table of the Tracts contained in the Book, thus far. 95.
37. The Lamentacion of the Dying Creature; perhaps by Richard Hampole. 96.
38. The Myrrour of Synners; by Richard Hampole. 106.

Num. 1706.

39. A Tretye of 3 Arowes, that schullen be schot at Domesday to hem that there schullen be dampned. 110. b.

Mr. Wharton in his Appendix to Dr. Caves Historia Literaria, pag. 54. ascribeth a Track entitled Tres Sagittæ, to John Wycliffe; but whether this be the fame, or rather written by Richard Hampole, I cannot now determine.

40. Four profitable Thinges to have in mynde, wyche ben taken oute of the thrydde Chapitele of a deuoute Tretye, and a Forme of Luyunge that Rychard Ampol wrote to a deuoute Perfon. 114. b.

41. A Souvereyn & a notabye Sentence, to comforte a Perfon that is in Tentacyon. 115. b.

This is a pretty large Treatise, consisting of 11 Chapters; perhaps by the same Author.

42. The gadered Counseilles of Seynt Ildre; to conferme a Man, howe he schall fle Vyces, and folowe Vertues. 140.

43. Augulinus de Contemptu Mundi, in English. 149. b.

44. Sentences collected from the Works of Seynte Aulneye. 150.

45. The Maters of Nynce Poyntys, that muste be bytylve studyed in hys Herte, that wylneth for to profyze in the Wey of Perfecceyon, and seuerelynly to plesse God. 151.

46. A Devout Treatise, concerning the Love of God: divided into above 24 Chapters, each marked with a particular Letter, according to the Order of the Alphabet. These Chapters have also their several Titles, of which there is a Table prefixed, with a sort of Prologue before all. 154. b.

After this Treatise (wherein besides the Holy Scriptures, many of the Old Fathers of the Church, & other Doctors, are cited) follow several short Poems in English, with these Titles.

47. Decem Mandata. 205.

48. Septem Vicia capitalia. 205. b.

49. Septem Virtutes, contra Septem Vicia. 206.

50. Septem Opera Misericordie. 206. b.

52. Quinque Sensus corporaliter. 207. b.

53. Quinque Sensus spiritualiter. ibid.

54. Tres Virtutes theologice. 208.

55. Quatuor Virtutes Cardinales. ibid.

56. Octo Beatitudines. 207. b.

57. This Lesson a vertuose Chylde schuld often fey to hys Soueraynes. 209. b.

58. Upon the Passi-on of our Lord, especially upon the 5475 open Woundes which he received for us, as Clerkes seyne, and speevally Seynt Anselme. 210.

59. A large Rubrick or Remark, of the Use & Profit to be had by Books in our Devotions, for Formys of Prayfynge and Preyning to God. 212. b.

60. Upon the Inconmodities of Old Age, & the Patience necessary for those in that State. ibid.

61. Some few Medicinal Receipts. 215.

62. Collecta una atq; altera ad Sanctam Ethelburgam. 215.

From these short Collects a Question is started (in the Account given of this Book in the Great Catalogue of MSS. Printed at Oxford, pag. 212.) Whether this Book did not belong to Ely-Abbey? To which an Answer may, with probability enough, be returned in the negative; for as much as our Ethelburga was not the Ely-Saint (but St. Etheldrith wife to Ecgrid King of the Northumbrians) & it appears, that St. Ethelburg was much about the same Time sett over the New Monastery of Nuns, which her brother Erkenwald Bishop of London had built at Barking; to which place if this Book had been given, in all likelihood it would have staid there till after the Dissolution thereof. But before the Dissolution 'tis certain that it was the proper goods of a very great Lady, who was first the wife of William Viscount Beaumont (who died the 28 December 24 Hen. viii.) in which capacity she wrote her Name herein (Elyfabeth Beaumont) twice, as may be seen at fol. 11. & 216. in the former place writing thus, "Thys is my Boke." She was afterward married to John Vere Earl of Oxford, and as such (or at least as his widow, for she survived him many years) She entered her Name four times more, to be seen at fol. 3. 93. b. 95. & 214. b. in which last Page, at the top thereof, are these words, "Thys yes my Boke; quod Elyfabeth Oxynforde."

Codex membranaceus in fol. min. quo continetur,

Opus quoddam Historicum, e locis nonnullis Giraldo Cambrensis inibi citatis, et male intellectis; in dorso, eidem Giraldo perperam adjudicatum: in Catalogo autem Codicum MSS. in Oxonia A. D. 1697. exculo, simul ac in uno foliorum rejectaneorum fronti Codicis præpositorum, Ranulpho Hygdeno Moracho Cestrensi tribuitur; eo quod in fol. ejusdem 26 hæc leguntur verba, "Eil et alia Urbs Legionum ejusdem Noninis (i. e. Caerlioni) ubi et presens Cronica fuit elaborata. Urbs quidem in confinio Angliæ ad prospectum Cambrie, inter duo Marina brachia five duo flumina Dee et Merise situata, que tempore Britonum capud fuit & Metropolis Venedocie, i. e. Norwallie; sicut alia Urbs Legionum quondam capud fuit Demecie. Urbs alia jacet desolata; ista sublat reformata." Adde, quia initium Polychronici Hygdenis (scil. "Post preclaros arcium Scriptores," &c.) in summitate pagine prioris scriptum legitur.

Atqui, pace eorum qui hujus Chronici auctorem Ranulphum Statuunt Hygdenum; rationes quibus inducunt ut credam potius Rogerum Monachum Cestrensem (Ranulpho illo priorem) doctissimum illius Operis pariterq; laboriosissimum Compilatorem fuisse, in medium proferam.

1. Joannes Piffeus (e Balæo, ut arbitror) de Rogero nostro, hæc habet inter alia. "Rogerus Cestrensis, vel de Cestria, ordinis S. Benedicti Monachus Anglus ad S. Werburgam, in ipsa urbe Cestrensi. 2. In Catalogo Auctorum qui scripserunt Historiam Angliæ, quorum opera ad manus Joannis Josselyni pervenerunt, et ubi extant, MS. Bibl. Cotton. Nero. C. 3. sic inveni, "Rogerus Cestrensis Polyeratica temporum edidit; opus elegans et rotundum, a Mundi initio usq; ad annum Domini 1327. (f. leg. 1324.) quod incipit Intrabo in agros præcorum subleq. Composuit etiam additiones Quindecim Annorum, quæ incipiunt, Septimo anno Regis Edwardi secundi. Polyeraticorum vero primus Liber post Præfationem incipit, Julius Cæsar divinis humaniq; rebus, &c. Claruit hic Cestrensis anno a Christi nativitate 1339. quo ultimum opus finivit, sub Edwardo 1111. Scit Joannes Twynus ubi habetur."

Num. 1707.

Talis Codex etiamnum servatur in Bibliotheca Collegij Corporis Christi quod est Cantabrigiæ, ubi inter Codices Parkerianos locum obtinuit 6tum.

3. Hæc in Bibliotheca habetur Codex vetustus (nondum proprijs Litteris aut Cifris notatus) cujus Præfatio ab his verbis incipit, "Intrabo in Agros Præcorum Subsequens, et Liber Primus ejusdem sic, Julius Cæsar divinis humaniq; rebus," in cujus primæ paginæ summitate, Titulus manu Joannis Balæi scriptus potest legi, Polycratia temporum Rogeri Cestrensis; et interiore Tegminis facie, idem Balæus scripsit taliter, Rogerus Cestrensis, alius a Ranulpho, Polycratia temporum edidit, Libris VII. Denique neotericus alius nescio quis in primo folio vacuo alium Titulum Codici præmisit, Rogeri Cestrensis Polychronicon. Et hic quidem Codex, cum Codice præfati no. 1707. (excepta sola Præfationis parte) convenit omnino.

4. Quinetiam in Bibliotheca Cottoniana, alius habetur Codex, scilicet ejusdem Operis Exemplar vetustum, fronte tamen valde imperfectum; incipit enim A. Num. 1708, 1709.

Ranulphus, eundem quem supra citavi locum (pag. 77) deturpavit, Nomenq; simul et Patram, cum Religione (ut aiunt) perfecit. Locum exhibet Codex notatus no. 1320. fol. 31. ubi hæc habentur verba. "B. Est etiam alia Urbs Legionum ejusdem Nominis, ubi prefens Cronica fuit elaborata, sicut Per Capiteles Hujus Primi Libri Apices Clarius Pater. Urbs quidem in confinio Anglie, ad prospectum Cambrie inter duo inarina brachia, Dee, & Merse." &c. Eadem Verba leguntur in Codice MS. Cottoniano Otho. D. r. in libro per D. Tho. Galium typis edito, nec non Anglicè, in Versione Joannis Trevisa.

10. Quinetiam, haud contentus depravandâ (ne dicam furandâ) Historia Ranulphus iste; neque pro suo venditando Rogeri Auctorum Syllabo; ulterius progressus, ipsum Rogeri Nomen, ipsius doctissima atq; curiosissima Observata (ut Pama ejus ac Memoria æternæ traderetur Oblivioni) contra Jus Fidemq; Scriptorum, nec non Injuria summa usurpare non erubuit. Cujus rei Testis locupletissimus est, hic locus Præfationis Rogeri. — "Si quid vero a Fide diffonum, aur a Moribus alienum hic reperiatur, hoc Tempori potius quam Viro ascribatur. Quomobrem, in hac asserctione Historica, periculum veri statuendi per omnia michi non facio: sed que apud diversos Auctores legi, sine invidia communico. Et quamvis alienum sit quod assumo, meum tamen facio, quod meis aliquando verbis, antiquorum semper Sententijs, profero; adeo ut quos Auctores in capite libri perscripsero; illis utar pro Clipco contra fuggillantes. Quando verò Compiler loquitor, sub hac figuratone præscribitur. Sunt autem hæc auctorum Nomina, de quibus potissime extracta est Cronica, Josephus Judeorum Historiographus," &c. que quidem Verba ipsissima (non tamen sine ulla interpolatione) in Ranulphi desolatoris præfatione retinentur, uti cuius utranq; conferenti facile pateat.

11. Denique, si quis nobis objecerit, præfationem Codicis præsentis, nec non eorum qui inscribuntur no. 655. multum ab altero discrepare Codice, quem olim in Balei manibus fuisse (et forte Joannes Josselyn) superius innuimus: Respondebo, ij de codice quem solum (ut videtur) habuerunt, mentionem fecerunt; et si alij integrioraq; Codices exinde et tenebris erui, jam nunc in Bibliothecis conspiciuntur, id solum Curiositati, Felicitatiq; recentioris ævi (in quo plures Viri clarissimi indagandis Codicibus vetustis, præsertim Historicis, nullos pepercerunt sumptus, maxime deberi videatur.

A Paper-Book in fol. written by ſeveral Hands, wherein are contained,

1. A Kalendar, or Alphabetical Table to the following Collection,
 2. Reports of Pleading* had in the Courts at Weſtmiſter; extracted from the Plea-Rolls of King Henry viii. and reduced under certain & ſtared Heads, by ſome diligent Student of our Common Law.

1716.

A thin Book in fol. wherein is written,

A Treatiſe concerning the Inſtitution of the High Court of Chancery; the Practice thereof; and the ſeveral Officers thereunto pertaining.

1717.

A Parchment-Book in fol. well written in very old French Verſe. It containeth,

1. A Chronicle of the Dukes of Normandy from the beginning to the Death of Henry the Firſt King of England.

Herein are cited Iſidorus Hiſpalenſis, Pliny, & Auguſtin. Notwithſtanding which, I take the main part of the Work to be a Tranſlation of ſome Copie of the Hiſtory of Dudo Canon of St. Quſtin's, to which Continuations or Additaments were made by other Hands.

Num. 1717—1719.

That the Translators Name was Benedict or Beneit, appeareth from fol. 85. & 192.

And that it was done by the command of K. Henry 11. may be gathered from fol. 163. & 236.

But who this Beneit was; or whether this Work hath ever been published, I cannot now say; not having necessary Helps at Hand.

Then follow,

2. A Prophesie in English Verse; seeming to refer to the Wars between the Houses of York & Lancaster.

250.

3. Imperfect Prophecies in Latin Prose; perhaps of Merlin, or some such Dreamer.

250. b.

Lastly comes, after a vacant Page, by another Hand,

4. A very old & godly French Balad, consisting of several Stanzas, and set to Music, in those Square Notes, commonly called Gregorian.

251. b.

(The Tune would go best if struck upon Bells, according to the Custom of those Times)

1718.

A Book in fol. (seeming to have been the Original Register) as containing,

Copies or Entrances of all Warrants passing under the Signet of Charles Prince of Wales; from the 16th of September 1617. to the 21st of March 1624-5. who within four? days after, by his Fathers decease, became King of England, &c.

In this Book much curious matter may be found.

Num. 1730—1732.

1730.

A Book in 4to, (somewhat imperfect at the end) written in Old English, upon parchment; wherein is contained,

1. A Treatise, by a modern hand, entituled Wickliffe Postills; but is really a Collection of Sermons de Tempore, for the whole Year: which is here almost complete, as beginning with Advent-Sunday, and ending in the 22 Sunday after Trinity.

This Work being ascribed to John Wycliffe (as many others are, which do not appear to have been written by that great Man) I cursorily turned it over, and upon the whole do believe it may be of his compiling. For,

1. The Author was an English man.

2. The Author complains of the Schifin then in being between Pope Urban & another. Now Pope Urban vi. at Rome, & Pope Clement vii. at Avignon, were Anti-Popes to one another A. D. 1378 at which time John Wycliffe publicly set forth his Doctrines.

3. The Doctrines here taught are agreeable to the Holy Scriptures, and to that held by the Church of England at this day. He preacheth against Transubstantiation, Image-Worship, Indulgences: the inordinate Lives of the Popes, Cardinals, Bishops; & generally of the Whole Clergy: and above all, he exclaimeth against the Pride, Hypocrisy, & Frauds of the four Menicant Orders, namely the Augustinians, Carmelites, Dominicans. & Franciscans.

4. I am not unensible that some of our late & present Divines, have charged John Wycliffe with the holding of divers unwarrantable, absurd, & heterodox, if not heretical Tenets. I see none such in this Book, nor do believe that all that which was alledged against him by Wydford & others his sworn enemies was true. If his Trialogus could be retrieved (which was his chiefest Work) this matter might soon be sett in a true Light.

I hear there is a Copy of the Trialogus now remaining; being found some years since, in an old Monastery. Moreover, my Lord Weymouth hath lately bought the Trialogus (or at least a great part of it) of a very old Print: perhaps sett forth by the Hussites in Bohemia.

An Old English-book in 4to, written upon paper, wherein are contained,

1. A Theological Poem entituled, at the end, Pryke of Conscience: composed, as I find in Pitts, by Richard the Hermit of Hampole. 1.

This seemeth to want a Lease or two at the beginning

2. An old English Poem grounded on Alcuin's Epistle de Virtutibus & Vitijs ad Guidonem Comitem, here called (as is also seen in some of the more modern Latin Manuscript Copies) Guy Earl of Warwick; which can by no means be true, even supposing that there was such a man, by reason of an Anachronism of above an hundred years. 134.

This is imperfect at the end.

By a Note at the End, it appeareth, that on the 5th of July 1473. one Richard Ryder of Petyrsfelde, delivered up to the Commissary-General of the Diocese of Winchester three Books; there severally described (according to the antient manner) by specifying the first Words in the Second Lease of each of them. By which it is plain, that this Book was one of the Three; the owner being perhaps suspected of Lollardism.

1732.

Codex chartaceus in 4to, a festinante calamo exaratus; in quo reperiuntur,

1. Locis Communes Theologici, ex Operibus Petri Martyris selecti. 1. & 181.

Num. 1732—1734.

2. Theological Collections, from the Writings of Dr. Dowdham. 173.
- At the other end of the Book, I find
3. An Answer to certain Popish Demands; with a Preface. 1.
4. A Breife recitall of certain Untruhs scattered in the Pamphlets & Libels of the Papists, concerning Conferences in the Tower betwixt Edmund Campion; Goad, & Dr Walker; with an Answer to the same. by Alexander Nowell, & C. Dayes. 32.
5. A Remembrance of the Conference had in the Tower with Edmund Campion Jesuit, by William Fulke & Roger Goad, Doctors in Divinity, 16 September 1581; with an Epistle to the Reader by John Feild Student of Divinity. 38.
- This is called the Second Dayes Conference.
6. A Remembrance of the Conference had in the Tower, with Edmund Campion Jesuite, by William Fulke & Roger Goade, Doctors in Divinity, September 23. 1581. 70.
- This tract seemeth not be perfect, for want of room: but rather referreth to another book for the remaining Part.

1733.

A Book in 4to, consisting of certain loose Tracts to be bound up together; namely,

1. A Treatise of Gods purposes towards his Reasonable Creatures. 1.

1735.

An old English book in 4to, written partly upon Parchment & partly on Paper; wherein are contained,

1. An imperfect & idle Tract in Verse, predicting Good or Bad Luck to People & their Buifness, from the Consideration of the Moons Age. 1.
 2. An imperfect Tract in Prose, of somewhat better use: as containing some Receipts in Cookery. 16. b.
- Each of these Tracts have some rude delineations in the Margin.

Thus far is written on Parchment; what follows is on Paper.

3. An Imperfect Tract written by some antient Student in Phisic & Astrology, unfolding the Mysteries of his Art, as to the Good & Bad Days; the Planets Signs, & Elements; the Complexions of Mans Body, Phlebotomy & Urin: concluding with a Master-piece of Art, namely a Tretys or Chapter of "Calculacion, to know what you wilt;" and this by Observation of Persons Names.

The Writer of these wonderful Secretes was John Crophill (not that Great Sir John Crophull Knight, whose blood runs still in the Veins of many Personages of our highest Nobility, but) a Cunning-man, who practised in Suffolk, in the reign of K. Henry IV, & perhaps before.

4. John Crophill's private Register of the Names of Persons cured by him, in Neylond, & other adjacent Towns: with accompt of the Money due to him from some of them. 36. b.

5. The Names of the 12 Signs; with such Marks as shew that this John Crophill was a dabler in Geomancy. 39. b.

6. A Charm to ease or mitigate the Pains of Women in Travel as I suppose; not of plenary exemption; written in the Latin Tongue, SYCUT ELIZABET PEP'IT JOH'NN BAPTISTAM. & SC'A ANNA PEP'IT MARI & SICUT MARIA PEP'IT D'NM PHEM X'PM EX S'PU SC'O N'O EX VIRILI SIMINE P. AN'USVACIONE SC'E GABRIELYS ARCHANGELI SINE DOLORE SIT P'eat HEC ANCELLA DEI + &c. 40.

This sheweth that John had added Learning to the Occult Sciences.

7. John Crophills Rewle of the 12 Synnis; or Regimen to be observed as to Diet, Phlebotomy, &c. during the 12 Months of the Year. 41.

8. John Crophills more regular & masterly observations upon Urin. 43.

9. Oracular Answers prepared before hand by this great Doctor, for those of both Sexes who should come to consult him in the momentous affair of Matrimony; according to the severall Months of the year wherein they should apply themselves. 44. b.

10. Some of John's Expences; & Medicinal Receipts. 46. b.

11. Some of John's Poetry or Rhymes (without doubt all extempore) at the Entertainment of Frere Thomas & five Ladies of Quality whose names are here mentioned; when the two great Bowls or Cups called Mercy & Charity, were briskly putt about. 48.

12. The Vertu of Rose-marry; & other secrets. 52.

1758.

A velom-Book in fol. given by the Very-Reverend & learned Dr. Francis Atterbury, now Dean of Chriftchurch; being a very antient & fair Copie of Geoffrey Chaucers Canterbury-Tales; of which it may be worth while to give the following particular account, because the Manuscript books of this Treatise differ not a little from one another.

1. The General Prologue under this Title, "Here begynneth the Book of Tales of Caunterburye; compiled by Geffraie Chaucers of Brytayne chef Poete."

Herein Chaucer saith that they were 29 in company, beside the Host; but in the Characters he describeth more. The agreement also was, by Order of the Host, that every Person should tell two Tales in the way to Canterbury, & Two more in the way back; now here, no Person (but Chaucer himself) telleth more than one Tale; which seemeth as if the Work was not finished. More-over, among the Tales that remain, here are none of Two of the Prioresses Chaplains, the Haberdasher, Carpynter, Webbe, Dyer, Tapicer, Ploughman, & Hooft, who are all particularly mentioned; but there is of the Chanouns Yeman, of whom I find no particular Character.

This Prologue is imperfect at the end.

2. The Knights Tale. 10.
This is imperfect at the beginning; perhaps the leaf wanting had the Picture of the Knight on Horseback, and was therefore cut out.

3. The Millers Prologue, & Tale. 23.
Here space is left for his Picture, which was not filled up; and another Leaf wanting, wherein were written, the latter end of the Prologue, & the beginning of the Tale.

4. The Reeves Tale & Prologue. 40.
5. The Cokes Tale & Prologue, both imperfect; a Leaf being cutt or torn out. 45. b.
Here room is left for his Picture, which was not inserted.

I am of Mr. Urry's opinion, that the Story about Gamelyn doth not tally with the former part thereof; and perhaps it might have been what he judges it. The Tale of the Squires Yeoman, or Part of it.

6. The Prologue & Tale of the Man of Lawe. 55. b.
7. The Squyers Tale & Prologue. 68.

Every body knows that the Squyer's Tale could never be found perfect in any Book of Chaucers Works; for which reason, divers have endeavoured to supply what they thought wanting, particularly Edmund Spenser, & John Lane; whose book now remaineth in the Ashmolean Museum at Oxford, No. 53. with this Title, "Chaucers Pillar, or the Squires Tale found out."

8. The Prolog & Tale of the Marchaunt. 76.
9. The Prolog & Tale of the Wif of Bathe; with room for her Picture. 89.

Between the Prolog & the Tale are The Words of the Frere,

10. The Prolog & Tale of the Frere; with room for his Picture. 102.

11. The Prolog & Tale of the Somnour; with room for his Picture. 106. b.

12. The Prolog & Tale of the Clerke of Oxenford; with room for his Picture. 114.

This is clefted with L'Envoye de Chaucer, in English.

13. The Prolog & Tale of the Frankeleyn; with room for his Picture. 127.

14. The Prolog & Tale of the secunde Nonne; with room for her Picture. 137.

15. The Prolog & Tale of the Chanounys Yeman; with room for his Picture. 142.

This

Num. 1758, 1759.

This is imperfect at the end, & by reason of the loss of divers Leaves, there remaineth but

16. Part of the Doctor of Phisick's Tale. 150.
17. The Prolog & Tale of the Pardoner; (with room for his Picture.) 150. b.
18. The Prolog & Tale of the Schipman; (with room for his Picture.) 158.
19. The Prolog & Tale of the Prioreſſe. (with room for her Picture.) 161.
20. The Prolog & Tale of Chaucer of Sir Thopas; (with room for his Picture.) 166.
21. Chaucer's Tale of Melibe & Prudence, in Proſe: Imperfect at the beginning. 169.
22. The Prolog & Tale of the Monke. 183.
23. The Prolog & Tale of the Nonnes Preſt, (with room for his Picture.) 192. b.
24. The Prolog & Tale of the Manciple; (with room for his Picture.) 200.
25. The Prolog & Tale of the Perſon; before which, was room for his Picture. 204. b.

26. Geffray Chaucer's Requeſt to his Readers, that they would pray for him, that he might be forgiven for compoſing or tranſlating ſuch of his lighter Tracts as might have given Offence; among which this preſent Work of the Canterbury-Tales is more eſpecially remembered; but as to his other Works of Morality & Devotion, he craves no Pardon. 230. b.

This Book in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, belonged to the Family of Foxe of Pitchford, and hath divers Entrances relating to the ſaid family; as may be perceived at the beginning & end. fol. 126. b. 127. 204. &c.

Made by a Knight for the more particular & immediate Use of his three Daughters: in this manner, Y parted (saith he) and yede oute of the Gardein, and fonde in my Way two Prefies & two Clerkes that Y had; and Y saide to hem that Y wolde make Boke of Ensaumples for to teche my Daughters that thei might vnderstonde how thei shulde governe hem, and knowe good from evelle, And so Y made hem extraie me Ensaumples of the Bible, and other Bokes that Y had; as the Gestis of Kinges, the Cronicles of Fraunce, Grece, of Inglonde; and of mani other straunge Londres; and Y made hem rede me everi boke, and ther that Y fonde a good Ensaumple, Y made extraie it oute; and thanne Y made this Boke. But Y wolde not fette it in Ryme, but in Prose, for to abregge it, and that it might be beter & more plainly to be vnderstonde. And Y made this Boke for the gret loue that Y had for my said Daughters; the whiche Y loued as Fader ought to loue his Childre. Having hertely Joye to finde Wayes to lere & turne hem to goodnesse & worshippe; and to loue & serue her Creatoure; & to haue Loue of her Neighboures and of the Worlde, &c.

Num. 1764, 1765.

Hereby, it appeareth that the design of the book was good; but the Legendary Stories are so numerous & idle, as much to impair the Reputation of the Performance. However, one Use may be made even of them; they serving to make one laugh at the extreme ridiculousness of grois Popery: and the book may be also farther consulted about Habits & Fashions; and the Significations of certain Words now obsolete & not easily understood.

The Title of the Work doth not now appear at the beginning. The end is wanting; as also some leaves after 24. & 32.

The Author or Compiler's Name is not expressed. but it appeareth that he was a Knight (as is abovementioned) that he had served in the Wars in Poicrou; and that he began his Work A. D. 1371. so that in that Progreffe thereof he might well write (fol. 50. b. col. 1.) "fin the Tyme & Journey of Crecy the whiche is 26 Wynter agone;" the Battle of Crecy being foughten A. D. 1346. But his Effigies, with those of his Three daughters, in their Habits, were painted in the Principal Letter of the Book, but now (through the Neglect of former Owners) very much dammified.

His Countrey Iemeth to have been France; which he preferreth before England not only in the place above cited from fol. 1. b. but also in fol. 53. col. 2. The Persons also of either Sex named by him with honor, are French; as "the Noble Princeffe Johanne now late Queene of Fraunce," fol. 50. col. 2. — "This good Lady was the Baronesse D'artus," fol. 50. b. col. 1. — "Two Knights that were in that Tyme, which were called Sir Raoul de Luge, & Sir Pierre de Luge; and they were bothe bretheren & Knights of gret Worthipe, the whiche as in tho dayes desire to do Armes & foughi Worship in straunge Countreies; and they hadde gret Renouue, as Charnylour, Cicault, or Sarmitre;" which (with divers French words occurring here & there) make me of Opinion, that this Book was not originally written in English, but rather translated from French.

An Office-book in fol. on the cut-side thus entituled, Bille Signate, et Privata Sigilla de Annis 36. 37. & 38 Henrici Octavi: i. e. a Kalender or Short Registre of the said Bills & Privy Seals. But this Title being not so particularly adapted to the MS. I crave leave to be somewhat more particular, in enumerating the following Titles.

1. Privata Sigilla anno R. R. Henrici viii. 36to. 1.
2. Bille Signate, anno 36to (Pars 1. 2. 3.) 11.
3. Bille Signate anno 37mo Henrici viii. 26.
4. Privata Sigilla, anno 37mo Henrici viii. 35.
5. Bille Signate, anno 38vo Henrici viii. 41.
6. Privata Sigilla, anno 38vo Henrici viii. 49.
7. Licencie alienacionum de anno 34to Henrici viii. (Paten. Pars 3. 4. 5. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. & 12.) 56.
8. Licencie alienandi, anno 36to Henrici viii. (Paten. Pars 1. 2. 3. 4. 7. 8. 13. 15. 17. 18. 19. 20. & 21.) 62.
9. Licencie alienandi, anno 35to Henrici viii. (Paten. Pars 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 10. 11. 13. 16. & 17.) 73.

1766.

A parchment Book in fol. all written in Old English, wherein are contained,

1. A Table of the Contents to the following Work. 1.
2. Dan John Lidgate's Translation (or Paraphrase) of John Boccace de Casu Principum, in English Verse; done by the Command of Duke Humfrey about the beginning of the Reign of King Henry the Sixth. fol. 5. to the end, i. e. 265. b. Although

Num. 1766—1768.

Although the written Copies of this Book be pretty numerous; this is nevertheless more remarkable than any of them that I have yet seen. And that for two respects, First, among the impertinent Scribbles at the end, I find these words, "Thy sy pe boke callyd Bokas, translated owth of Latyn in to Ynglysch, Amen q. D I Lydgate Mownke off Seynt Edmundys Bury. Antch." Which must have been written either by Dan John himself, or by somebody that personated him, because the word q (i. e. quod or quoti) in these Notes, generally signifies a Person speaking or writing of himself, and perhaps Lydgate might put this Note modestly at the end, if this Book was his Present. In the Second Place, this Copy is more than ordinarily remarkable for the Pictures painted therein, in order to illustrate the whole work. Which (notwithstanding the Workmans Ignorance, and absurd representation of Old Histories in the Modes & Fashions used at the Time then present, that is of K. Henry vi.) may nevertheless be useful & instructive to those who have Occasion to search for the Habits, Instruments, &c. which then obtained. Such in my Opinion, may be

4. Those (among divers others) at fol. 18. 54 b. 53. 63. b. 64. b. 65. 76. -6. b. 107. 111. 132. 141. b. where is a Gallows whimsical enough: 175. 230. b. 235. 259. b. which I mention for the sake of the English Banner.

Ejusd. Præf. in Evang. “Si enim Latinis Exemplaribus Fides est adhibenda, respondeant quibus;
tot enim Exemplaria penè quot Codices. Sin autem
Veritas est quaerenda de pluribus, cur non ad
Græcam originem revertentes, ea quæ vel a vi-

Aug. de Doct. Chr. Lib. 11. Cap. 11. “Qui enim Scripturas ex Hebræa lingua in Græcam verterunt numerari possunt; Latini autem Interpretes nullo modo. Ut enim cuique primis Fidei temporibus, in manus venit Codex Græcus, et aliquantulum facilitatis sibi utriusque Lingue habere videbatur, ausus est interpretari. Quæ quidem res plus adjuvit Intelligentiam quam impedit, si modo legentes non sint negligentes. Nam nonnullos obscuriores Sententias plurimum Codicum sæpe manifestavit inspectio.”

Codex membranaceus et mirandæ vetustatis in 4to, quem (ingenti dato pretio) e D. Joanne Aymone in Hollandia redemit Illustrissimus Dominus meus. Constat folijs tantum 4. e præclarissimo Regis Francorum Codice CLAROMONTANO nefariâ manu excissis, ante jam paucos annos. Descriptionem Codicis habes in doctissimi Joan. Milij Prolegomenis Græco suo Testamento præmissis, Oxoniæq; editis A. D. 1707, scil. pag. 134.

“Jam ad alterum Codicem devenimus, quo usus est Beza, repertum in Claromontano apud Bellovacos Cœnobio, adeoque Claromontanum ab ipso dictum.—Epistolas D. Pauli continet Græce et Latine, mutilatas duntaxat primo folio, sive Epistolæ ad Rom. textus Græci Capituli primi versiculis primis sex, cum septimi parte, usque ad verba καὶ οὕτως; duobusq; insuper folijs Epj; 1. ad Cor. cap. 14. sive omnibus; in versu 12 ad 22^{æm}. (quæ tamen haud inelegerat supplevit recentior calanus) et Latinis extremæ partis Epistolæ ad Hebræos, a media parte versus 21^m. Cap. 13. ad finem Epistolæ, scilicet ultimo Codicis folio. E custodia Bezae, sive etiam Monachorum supra-dicti Cenobij, elapsus forte hic liber, in manus devenit Fratrum Puteanorum, qui lectiones ejus variantes cum cl. Armachano, uti omnino videtur, communicarunt, ipsûmq; utendum Morino mutuo dederunt; unde post mortem ejus, nescio quo casu locum sortitus est inter Mos. Codices bibliothecæ Regiæ Parisijs, numero 2245. lectiones ejus variantes ab Usserio acceptas reposuit Waltonus noster in Appendice suorum Bibliorum. Ipse Codex, pariter ac Cantabrigiæ, cujus pars altera a Beza alijsq; dicitur, majoribus literis descriptus, et quidem a Latino Scriba (id enim vel ex eo manifestum est, quod interjecta post Epistolam ad Philemonem, utriusq; Testamenti Librorum Stichometria, distemeretur in hoc Codice Epistola ad Hebræos a reliquis Scripturis, quia scilicet nondum apud Latinos auctoritatem Canoniceam obtinuerit) Græca ad paginam dextram collocat, ad sinistram Hæc observatis addo, quod Codex Claromontanus eandem præ se ferat Armachan. speciem ac Bezanus Codex Bibliothecæ Publicæ Cantabrigiæ: uterque forsitan Alexandrino (pretiosissimo illo bibliothecæ Regiæ thesauro) haud facile locum cedens. Uterque (perinde ac Alexandrinus) scriptus literis, ut aiunt, Uncialibus, sine interlitijs vocum, sine punctis, nec non sine Accentibus & Spiritibus in Græcis. Duos Emendatores jam olim (ut recentiores taceam) nactus est Codex noster Claromontanus; quorum prior, cujus manus videre est. 2. b. lin. 14.—4. b. lin. 15.—12. b. lin. ult.—17. b. lin. 12.—20. b. lin. 9.—23. b. ubi titulum opposuit TIPOC TITON, sicut et in fine Epistolæ scriptum AMHN longe fuit modelior. Posterior autem, octingentis abhinc, ut videtur, annis, Codicem per totum (super-additis Accentibus ac Spiritibus) ad normam sui temporis Exemplarium emendavit, Sacrum textum in qualibet fere pagina delendo aut in replendo. Hæc ut, ut in conferenda Codicibus, ea quæ inseruit aut immutavit Emendator, pro nullis habebantur a Domino Bernardo Montfaucon, quæ lectiones ejusdem variantes ad Claris. Porro de Græcis hujus Codicis præstantissimi; aliquam inveni discrepantiam inter eundem et Græcum Testamentum a doctissimo Millio elaboratum, ubi stupendum plane variantium Lectionum multitudinem e præstantissimis fere totius Europæ exemplaribus descriptam, et speciatim e Codice Claromontano, non possum, non mirari. In quibus tamen congerendis, si aliquæ Amicorum fugerint oculos, id facile acutissimo Millio condonandum, cui singulos a se memoratos Codices inspicendi defuit facultas. Codex membranaceus in 4to, crassiore, quem unâ cum alijs nonnullis, (ingenti dato pretio) a D. Joanne Aymone in Hollandia redemit Illustrissimus Dominus meus. Complectit in se Quatuor Evangelia Versionis Hieronymianæ, cum apparatu necessario; In Italia, Mille et Centum abhinc Annis (ut ex manu conjicere licet) Litteris, quod aiunt, Uncialibus, illâque, qui sequitur Ordine elegantèr fatis exaratus.

1. Fragmentum, sive Pars posterior Præfationis D. Hieronymi, seu Proemij Commentariorum quos scripsit in D. Matthæi Evangelium (Incip. "Plures fuisse qui Evangelia scriperunt.") 1.

NB. in Codice dicitur, PRÆFATIO IN CANONES. 2. Prologus in Matthæum (Incip. "Matthæus ex Judea, sicut in Ordine primus.") 3.

3. Canones Evangelici x. ad singulas SS. Evangeliorum pericopas indigentes; consonantiam Evangelistarum, ac loca singulis Propria seu peculiaria demonstrantes. 5.

De his Canonibus, sic in Præfatione ad Damasum Papam, D. Hieronymus, "Canones quos Eusebius Episcopus Cæsariensis Alexandrinum secutus Ammonium, in Decem Numeros ordinavit, sicut in Græco habentur expressimus." Quin et de Usu eorundem, consulas eandem Præfationem, Eusebij Epistolam ad Carpianum, et Joannis Milij Prolegomena. 15.

4. Evangelium secundum D. Matthæum. 159.

5. PRÆFATIO EVANGELII MARCI. 223.

10. Evangelium secundum D. Johannem (ultimo folio vetustate consumpto, definit in versu 20. Capitis 21.) 371.

Prologi supra-memorati, sive Præfationes, habentur et in alijs Exemplaribus vetustis; puta, in præclaro illo hujusce Bibliothecæ Codice, qui inscribitur 34 B. 16.

Ex regione Textus Sacri, comparant Numeri et Capitula cujusque Evangelij, cum alijs Notis Numericis ad Canones præcedentes respondentibus.

Num. 1775.

Quod ad Versionem Evangeliorum attinet Hieronymianam; ipsum Hieronymum audi in Præfatione ad Damasum Papam sic differentem, "Igitur hæc præfens præfatiuncula pollicetur quatuor tantum Evangelia, quorum Ordo est iste, Matthæus, Marcus, Lucas, Johannes: Codicum Græcorum emendata Collatione, sed et Veterum: quæ ne multum a Lectionis Latinæ consuetudine discrepant, ita Calamo tempeparimus, ut his tantum quæ sensum videbantur mutare correctis, reliqua manere pateremur ut fuerant." Num verò fidem suam liberaverit doctissimus ille inter Latinos Pater, Theologis præsertim Criticis ipse Laicus adjudicandum cenfeo. Hoc, interim, ab omnibus fere qui hac infudarunt palæstrâ, pro confesso est, temporibus scilicet Gregorii Magni Papæ (ut etiam multis ceterioribus Seculis) exemplaria Versionis Hieronymianæ in Scrijs Ecclesiarum ac Monasteriorum ubique fere reperiri, in quibus quamplurimæ Veteris Itale Versionis ante D. Hieronymum ab Ecclesia Latina usitæ, tunc retinebantur. E quibus forte (si Sententiam nostram qualem qualem, in medium proferre fas sit) super-additis Correctionibus Alcuini Presbyteri Angli, * Lanfranci Archiepiscopi Cantuariensis, † Senati dicti Bravonij, Prioris Ecclesiæ Wigorniensis, regnante Rege Henrico II. (qui in corrigendis Biblijs usus est Exemplari vetustissimo quod Officium Merciorum Regi misit Pontifex Romanus, sicuti in Præfatione ad Matthæum testatur) et alijs nonnullis, permixta ista Latinorum Bibliorum Editio, quæ hodie VULGATA nuncupatur, emanavit.

* Elogium Lanfranci, quod citat Cl. Millius (Proleg. pag. 104.) ex Anonymo Vitæ ejusdem auctore per Lucam D'acherium edito; ipsiusque verbis extat in Sigeberti Gemblacensis Chronico, ad Ann. MLXXXIX.

† Ipsum forsitan Senati avriſpaſos jam ante 14 annos in instructissima Collegij Corporis Christi apud Cantabrigienses, Bibliotheca, vidi inter Codices Parkerianos conservatum; et si nec a diligentissimo Millio, nec ab alijs de SS. Bibliorum Latinorum Correctione scribentibus (quod sciam) memoretur.

Sed, ut ad præsentem venerandæ vetustatis Codicem redeamus; per totum habitâ Colis et Commatibus ratione, conspicitur exaratus. Hoc modo in scribendis Evangelijs ipsum D. Hieronymum fuisse usum, haud temere dicam; licet similem in alijs miræ antiquitatis Codicibus observatus sum; insuper præfationis ejusdem ad Paulam et Eustochium in translationem Eusebij haud omnino immemor; cujus Exordium est, "Nemo cum Prophetis Verbis viderit esse descriptos, Metro eos existimet apud Hebræos ligari, et aliquid simile habere de Psalmis vel operibus Salomonis; sed quod id Demosthenes & Tullio solet fieri, ut per COLA scribantur & COMMATA, qui utique Profa et non Verbis conscriperunt." Emendatores, diuturnitate temporis, nactus est Codex binos, patriâ (ut videtur) Francos; quorum Vetustiori, Literæ quas vocant Unciales sive Majusculæ, ordinario et communi fuerunt usui: Recentior autem, ut ex manu ipsius liquet, ante septingentos annos vixit; plus laboris impensus in dividendis Syllabis, in Elemento h supra Voces quasdam addendo, et alijs ejusmodi minutijs, quam in Textu Sacro ad fidem præstantissimorum Exemplarium emendando: adeo ut Grammatici fere vices supplere possint videatur.

Qui Codicem descripsit Antiquarius, omni procul dubio fidem navavit operam, ut Exemplar suum (quoad fieri potuit) Accuratioris causâ ubique bene audiret. Verum tale fuit ei avriſpaſos ut (preter Errores omnibus ferme Librarijs communes) ingens in illo cernitur Lectionum recessus ab hodierna VULGATA discrepantium; e quibus nonnullas heic quasi, verbi gratiâ, lubens adnotabo.

Num. 1775.

Math. XXI. 31. Haftenus de Codicis præclarissimi contentis & editione; nunc de Manu Scriptoris ac Emendatorum, paucis differendum est.

Scriptor primarius, in fine Lineæ, et nonnunquam Finem-versus, iugatis L. it teris usus est, de more scilicet seculi in quo Codicem descripsit; quas inter 2, et 3 coalescentes in 3 sæpiculè videre est. Atqui ne quis inde Codicem Novitatis arguat, cum diphthongum 3, in universis fere Codicibus majusculis Litteris Latinis calamo scriptis, immo ipsis marmoribus Romanis insculptum licet invenire.

Qui prior emendavit Codicem Antiquarius, Compendijs hinc Vocum 3 & 3 in demonstrandis Sententijs vel Sententiarum membris, quas marginibus adscriptas in Textum Sacrum omnino referendas censuit, vicissim usus est. Hinc fit, ut idem Characteres quæ fol. 49. b. forsan significant hæc deficiunt, hic suppleas, aut tale quid; fol. 166. b. ut videtur, legendi hic deficit, hæc supplenda.

Porro, dum Codicem curiosus perolverem, plures mihi occurrebant ex Notis Romanorum (quæ et in alijs Codicibus cernuntur antiquissimis) tam primâ quam novissimâ manu appositæ; quarum Usus indicant Collectio in fine Inscriptionum Gruterianarum, Isidorus Hispalensis in Libro primo Etymologiarum Joannes Mabillonius Lib. v. de Re Diplomatica, Tab. Lvi. alijs. Id genus, me iudice, sunt illæ quas primâ Manu effigatas invenio, scilicet 7, 7, 7, de quibus sic Isidorus.

P PARAGRAFUS, ponitur ad separandas Res a Rebus quæ in connexu concurrunt, quemadmodum in Catalogo, Loca a Locis, Regiones a Regionibus; in Agone Proemia a Proemij, Certainia a diversis Certainibus separantur, ne Unum fiat de Duobus. Duplicem hæc Nota in Codicem obtinuit usum; primo, in monstrando numero Quaternionum sive Okenionum, uti videre licet in fine foliorum 22. 30. 38. 46. &c. nec non Caput in quæ prioribus Christianismi seculis distinguebantur Sancta Evangelia. vid. fol. 40. b. 41. &c. nonnunquam etiam ponitur, pro monstrando Initio Lectionis, ut fol. 44. b. &c.

7 DIPLE. Hanc Scriptores nostri apponunt in Libris Ecclesiasticorum Virorum, ad separanda vel demonstranda Testimonia Sanctorum Scripturarum. Hunc usum Notæ secutus est Librarius, cum aliquid de veteri Instrumento citatum esset, uti fol. 17. b. 20. 21. 24. b. &c.

3 CRISIMON. Hæc sola ex voluntate uniuscujusque; ad aliquid notandum ponitur. Hæc Nota (a Græcis forte Χρῖς ἐπιστολῶν dicta) in Codicibus Anglo-Saxonum frequentius occurrit; qui eam CRISIMON vocaverint, et duplici modo, per 3 scilicet, et K expresserint. Cæterum, in codice præsentî, taliter eam depinxerit Librarius B ut fol. 32. b. fol. 356. et R fol. 454.

Num. 1775.

7 ANCORA SUPERIOR ponitur ubi aliqua res magna omnino est. Hanc formam præfæc illius Notæ haud omnino affectus est Librarius noster, qui illam ad Loca nonnulla maximi momenti, potius Hederacei folij figurâ 7 eandem expressisse videatur, videbis folia 136. 393. b. 413. 462. Hæc interim forma haud adeo a primitiva desecit, ac hodiernus pingendi modus PARAGRAPHUM superiorem sic 7 in Biblijs et Liturgijs nostris Anglicanis; aut A in Jurisconsultorum Rotulis et Membranulis; qui quidem Juridici eandem vulgo vocant SEILICET, nullo prorsus significatu.

Superiores Hispalensis Isidori Citationes, non e Libris Impressis, non e recentioribus Codicibus desumpti; sed ex Anonymo tractatu (ubi nulla de Isidoro habetur mentio) in præclaro Cottonianæ Bibliothecæ Codice hæc præ se ferente notus CALIGVLA. A. 15. ejus potissima pars manu Gallicâ scripta fuit Anno post Christum natum 688.

Haftenus de NOTIS SENTENTIARUM quas manu primâ Codici insertas reperi: nunc de NOTIS ut dicebantur VULGARIBUS, quas invenerunt Tyro, Seneca, Cyprianus, alijs; perpaucas restant observanda. Eas adposuit Emendator Codicis posterior, cujus tempore Usus earum adhuc vigebat. Id constat ex Præfatione Claudij Presbyteri (qui Nono seculo floruerit) in edito Commentario suo in Matthæum præmissio (Cod. MS. Bibliothecæ Regiæ, no. 1048.) ubi hæc leguntur verba—

‘ Quod vero quedam minus ordinata quam decet in hoc Codice multa reperiuntur, non omnino tribus imperitiæ; sed quedam propter Paupertatem, quedam ignoscere propter Corporis Infirmitatem, et meorum Oculorum Imbecillitatem; quia non fuerunt in TABELLIS EXCEPTA, vel SCEDULIS DIGESTA; sed ut a me inveniri vel diseri potuerunt;’ i. e. si fas sit me vel sinel Paraphrasis vicem supplere, Quia non fuerunt conductio Notario a me dictata, qui confectus Notis Vulgaribus & Vocum Compendijs Excepta quam-oculosissime referret in Tabellas Cereas, eadem denuo in Schedis Membranis producte descripturus; sed ut a me raptim inveniri vel sine præmeditatione diseri potuerunt.

De hujusmodi Notarijs et eorum Notis, plurimum ex Veterum scriptis in unum quasi fasciculum jam ante multos annos coegi, quæ non tanti æstimo ut hic proferrem. Verum ne dubij aliqui oriatur de superiore Paraphrasi, Testimonium unum atque alterum supponendum arbitror.

Isidor. Hisp. Etymolog. Lib. 1. Cap. 23. De Notis Vulgaribus.—NOTARUM usus erat, ut quicquid pro Concione, aut in Judicijs diceretur, Librarij scriberent: cum plures simul stantes diversis inter se partibus, quot quisque Verba, et quo Ordine EXCIPERET, annotaret.—NOTÆ autem dictæ, eo quod Verba vel Syllabas præfixis Characteribus notent, et ad notitiam Legentium revocent. Quas qui didicerunt propriè jam NOTARIJ appellatur. Hieron. Præf. in Tobiam.—Et quia vicinum est Chaldaeorum Lingua Sermoni Hebraico, utriusque linguæ peritissimum loquacem repens, unius dici laborem arripui: et quicquid ille mihi Hebraicis verbis expressit, hoc Ego (accito NOTARIO, sermonibus Latinis exposui.

Hic videtur quadrare vetus illa Inscriptio quam in diversis exemplaribus MSS. Homiliarum B. Augustini in D. Joannem vidi: quæ quidem in Regio Codicis no. 1021. sic se habet.

Num. 1775, 1776.

Harum ſuſuper Notarum Vulgarium. Reliquiæ in diverſis antiquioribus Codicibus cernuntur; cum primis autem in exemplari Æneidos Virgilij, circa tempora Caroli Calvi Imperatoris, manu Gallica exarato, quod nunc in Bibliothecæ Bodlejana inter Codices e Muſæo defuncti D. Edwardi Bernardi Aſtronomiæ Profeſſoris Saviliani emptos, religioſiſſime conſervatur.

A thin book in 8vo, written in, and entitled,

1. Lettre de Monsieur de Gatine Intendant de Marine, a Monsieur De Vigo

September 1702.
 It gives a sort of History of the Voyage of Monfr. de Château-regnault from Brest to West Indies, and so back again to Vigo, for about a twelvemonth: and censure his conduct very much.

At the end is, A Table entitled,
 2. Liste des Vaisseaux du Roy qui composent l'Armée Navale commandée par Monsieur Le Comte de Chateaugnault, Vice-Admiral de France; avec un Abrégé des États d'Armement des Navires.

1779.

Codex chartaceus in 8vo, recenti manu scriptus, in quo continentur, Ανω-γενεαλογια: five, Disputatio unica de Distinctione Specierum Durationis. In qua, Aeternitatis Essentia, Ratio formalis Evi, et Quidditas Temporis, explicatur.

1780.

A thin Book in small 4to, wherein is contained,

A fabulous Pedigree of Oliver Cromwell; with his Arms at the end in Colors; done by an Arms-Painter.

This Pedigree is, in one respect, modelter than some other Welsh Pedigrees that I have seen; for it goes no higher than Adam.

1781.

A breif Compendium of Geography & History; written about the beginning of the Reign of K. Charles I.

1782.

A thin Parchment Book in small 4to, given (among others) by Mr Anstis: wherein is contained a Poem in the Cornish Language, with some rude Pictures at the bottom.

Of this Book the learned Mr. Edward Lhwyd deceased, in his Archæologia Britannica, pag. 265. gives the following account. Tertium Codicem ipsemet habeo munificentia V. CL. D. Joannis Anstis Ar. cui et longe plura debui; mihi, ob expertam omni occasione benevolentiam & equanimitatem, summa observantia colendi. Poema exhibet de Domini Nostri Jesu Christi Passione & Resurrectione, in membrana scriptum; at quando vel quo Authore, cum et Titulo et Fine careat, omnino incertum; quamvis hoc Exemplar seculo Decimo-quinto ex Chirographo tribuendum.

I have heard Mr. Anstis say, that he procured this Poem to be translated into English; and that he lent the same Translation to Mr. Lhwyd, who did not return it.

This Book, although perhaps not considerable for the matter, is a Rarity, because of the language; wherein few written books do now remain. I have seen no more than these, beside this.

1. Three Interludes written upon Parchment, in the Bodleyan Library. B. 40. Ar.
2. Another Interlude written upon Paper A. D. 1611. in the same Library. Arch. B. 31.
3. A Vocabulary Cornish & Latin, near 600 Years old, in the Cottonian Library, Vesp. A. 14 erroneously entitled Vocabulary Latino-Wallicum.

Num. 1782—1786.

4. A recent Copie of the Interlude abovementioned (No. 2.) collated with the Bodleyan Book by Mr. Edward Lhwyd; whereunto is added an English Version of the same by Mr. John Keigwyn, lately given by Mr. Moses Williams. No. 1867.

1783.

A Book in 4to, wherein are contained,

1. Maxims of the Lawe, written by Sir Francis Bacon; and by him inscribed to Queen Elizabeth, 8 January 1596.
2. Some other Observations relating to the Law, at the end of the Book.

1784.

A modern Book, in 4to, containing Abstracts of Four Sermons preached by Mr. (Cotton?) Mather in December 1693. & soon after. (I suppose he might be an Independant or Brownist.)

1785.

A parchment Book in 8vo, written by divers hands partly in English, & partly in Latin; wherein are contained.

1. Opusculum Calendarij ad Meridiem Universitatis Oxon. compositum a Fratre Johanne Somers Ordinis Minorum: circa A. D. 1443. 1.

Ricardus Simonius Libello suo Gallicè edito (cui Titulus BIBLIOTHECA CRITICA, Tom. 1. pag. 271.) omnino perpendere duxi necessarium. Citato itaque loco hæc inveniuntur verba, Cap. xviii.

"D'un Exemplaire Latin des quatre Evangelies écrit en vieux Caractères Saxons."

"Reflexions sur les diverses écritures des Livres Manuscrits."

"On trouve dans la Bibliothèque du Roy un beau Manuscrit Latin des quatre Evangelies écrit il y a pour le moins 800 ans en vieux Caractères Saxons. Le Copiste qui étoit un Moine Benedictin prend le nom de Dom Ælbrige, & il ajoute à la fin de son Exemplaire plusieurs Lignes en langage Saxon. Outre le Texte des Evangelies, cet exemplaire contient de petites Gloses interlineaires en Latin sur de certains mots, avec quelques Notes marginales qui composent une espèce de petite Chaîne recueillie de Saint Hilaire de saint Ambroise, de Saint Jérôme, de Saint Augustin, de Gennadius, et ce me semble de Bede, qui est indiqué par la seule lettre B. comme Saint Jerome est indiqué par la Lettre H. Ces notes, dont il y en a quelques unes fort Impertinentes, et qui sont apparemment du Compilateur, viennent de deux mains; car les unes sont en Caractères Saxons, et les autres en Caractères Latins: celles-ci sont beaucoup plus recentes."

"Après le Prologue de Saint Jerome on lit 'Matthæus ex Judæis, sicut in ordine primus,' &c. Sur le mot de Matthæus on a écrit Donatus qui est la Signification de ce nom Hebreu. On a fait la même chose sur plusieurs autres noms. Mais l'Auteur n'est pas toujours heureux dans ses explications. Par exemple, sur ex publicanis, car c'est ainsi qu'il lit au lieu de publicanis, il a mis cette glose: Id est Regalibus. comme si Publicani étoit la même chose que Royaux: puis à la marge on lit pour expliquer cette glose interlineaire: Les Puplicains tirent leur Nom du Roy Puplus, comme les Herodiens prenoient leur Nom du Roi Herode, & le Christiens, de Christ. Puplicani a Puplo Rege, ut Herodiani ab Herode, et Christiani a Christo. Les Saxons, autrement les Anglois Saxons prononçoient apparemment Puplicains, au lieu de Publicains. Néanmoins dans le texte de Saint Matthieu on lit Publicani; et on remarque en même tems, que les Publicains étoient ceux qui exigeoient les tributs publics, Publicani qui publica vestigalia exigunt. Cet ouvrage quant aux notes, est une compilation qui est bonne lorsque le Compilateur cite de bons Auteurs; mais quand il parle de son chef il dit quelque fois de grandes Impertinences."

"Quant au fond du texte des Evangelies, il diffère peu de notre Vulgate, si l'on excepte un tres petit nombre d'endroits. La principale diversité consiste dans une glose ou addition dès le commencement de Saint Matthieu dans la Genealogie de Jesus-Christ. Après ces paroles du chap. 1. v. 17. usque ad Christum generationes xiv. on a ajouté celles-ci: Omnes itaque generationes ab Abraham usque ad Christum generationes sunt xlii. Et ce qui prouve que ces Mots ont été inferez, comme s'ils étoient véritablement du Texte de la genealogie, c'est qu'on ajoute immédiatement apres, finit; c'est-à-dire que la genealogie finit en ce lieu. Les autres diversitez sont peu importantes. On remarquera seulement que cette genéalogie est séparée du Texte de Saint Matthieu ; car après la genealogie suit un petit Dictionnaire de l'explication des noms Hebreux qui sont dans le nouveau Testament ; et il a pour titre, De Interpretatione Ebr. nominum. On lit en suite les Prefaces qui ont été publiées sous le nom de Saint Jerome pour chaque Evangeliste. Et en fin, à la tete des Evangiles on explique pourquoi il y en a quatre ; parce que les Evangiles representent une seule Eglise qui devoit se repandre dans les quatre parties du monde. On ajoute encore, que les Evangiles sont comparez aux quatre liqueurs, Evangelia quatuor liquoribus comparantur. Saint Matthieu est compare au Miel, Matthæus mellis ; Saint Marc au Vin, Marcus Vini ; Saint Luc au lait, Lucas lactis ; Saint Jean à l'huile, Johannes oleo. L'on donne en suite des raisons mystiques & allegoriques de ces comparaisons.

“ Pour ce qui est des caractères Saxons, dans lesquels ces quatre Evangiles sont écrits, ils sont très beaux, et different de ceux que le Pere Mabillon a representez dans sa Diplomatique. L'Orthographe Latine est en quelques endroits differente de celle d'aujourd'hui. On y confond quelque fois les lettres o & u. On lit par exemple parabula, diabulus, &c. Les diphtongues étoient en usage dès ces tems-là parmi ces Saxons, car on trouve æ & e. Et ce qui merite encore plus d'être observé c'est que la lettre h qui est plutôt esprit, comme parlent les Grammairiens, qu'une véritable lettre, y est écrite en effet sur de certains mots au dessus des lettres, comme on marque les esprits dans la langue Grecque : par exemple au lieu de phares, on lit dans le manuscrit p'ares, au lieu d'Abraham, on lit Abrahām, au lieu de borrea, 'orrea, &c. il est certain que cette figure h est la marque de l'esprit âpre, non seulement dans plusieurs anciens manuscrits Grecs, mais aussi dans quelques livres Grecs imprimez : l'esprit doux y est marqué par cette figure j. De ces deux figures jointes ensemble h & j a été formée notre lettre n.”

So far Father Simon, whom common Fame reporteth to be the Editor of this Book, and the Author of most of the Tracts contained therein. Among them, there are indeed Two which relate more particularly to England, vizt. Capp. xvii. & xix. which together with this Cap. xviii. he saith (Pag. 270.) were found in England among Monfr. Juscel's Papers. However, the Editor not affirming that they were of Mr. Juscel's composition ; nor denying them to have been written by himself ; but judging them to be valuable Pieces, as appeareth by his Character of the whole Collection in his Advertisement at the beginning ; their Subject being in his way of Learning ; and the handling thereof like his manner : I hope he will not take it ill, if I believe what I have been assured to be true, namely that He (FATHER SIMON) did draw up the above-written account. Upon which, having the same individual Manuscript here before me, I crave leave to make some Observations, in order as the French Account leadeth me.

1. UN BEAU MANUSCRIT LATIN DES IV EVANGILES, ESCRIT IL Y A POUR LE MOINS, 800 ANS.

I will not quarrel with his Term BEAU as applied to this Manuscript, although here in England, it may not look so fair or fine as multitudes of others. But as to its being at least 800 years old, I must beg his pardon. When Mr. Toland first spake of it to me (for I had the first Notice of this & the other MSS. bought of Mr. Aymon from him) he said it was 900 years old : and upon the large account he gave of its rarity, joined to 900 years

Num. 1802.

Antiquity, I presently offered 20 Guineas for it. As I remember, Mr. Aymon's Catalogue (which was drawn up by Mr. Toland) represented it as 800 or 900 years old : but when I saw the book itself, I knew well by the Character (having before seen much of the same sort) that it could not be near so antient. In some other Conversations I had with Mr. Toland (concerning divers foreign Libraries, and the chief MSS. in them) he told me that he could prove this MS. to be 900 years old, by some Notes at the ends of the Evangelists, which shew it to have been written A. D. 805, to which I could in no wise consent, because I saw the Hand was far newer than that Time. Afterwards, when I saw Mr. Toland again, he confessed that his Memory had failed him as to the Antiquity of the book, inasmuch as Cormac Mac Carthaig (or the Smith's son) was killed A. D. 805, but A. D. 905, so that the Book was but 800 years old : but to this I could not assent, for the reason above mentioned.

Among the Reguli whose Names appear in the said Notes, I found (Jul. 60.) mention of Tairdelbach lua Briain (or Tirlough o Brian) but could not easily believe that this was that Prince, (mentioned by O'Flaherty) who died A. D. 1086. because in my old the Hand seemed yet newer. I therefore resolved to satisfy myself about its Antiquity ; because if I could ascertain the Date, it would be a Standard to judge of other Books by. The Result of this Enquiry will appear lower, and the Proofs shall be brought forth, whereupon I ground my opinion, That this Book was written in or about the year 1139.

2. “ En vieux caractères Saxons.” The Father was mistaken here : for these Old Letters are not Saxon, but IRISH. I suppose his having seen some of our Saxon Printed Books, & a few Specimens of Saxon Hands in Pere Mabillon's Diplomatique, made him take them for Saxon. For there is in what of a resemblance between the antient Irish & the Saxon writing, in many Letters ; both coming from the same Font, to wit, the Roman.

3. “ Le Copiste, qui étoit un Moine Benedictin.” It doth not appear by the Book, that the Scribe or Copist was a Benedictine Monk.

4. “ Prend le nom de Dom. Zelbrigte.” He doth doth take that Name ; but wrote himself Mael-Brigte, (about which, more in due time) but the Father not knowing how to distinguish the Irish words, thought that the Preposition do with m the first Letter of the next word, would make a very good Title, and the rest would be Zelbrigte of course ; which, by the way, was no Name amongst our English-Saxons that I knew of. And here the Father might better have remembered that 800 years ago, DOMINUS was a Title not so much appropriated to the Benedictines, as it is now ; since, at that time, & before, & after, great Personages in the State as well as in the Church, even Emperors & Popes, were saluted DOMINI.

5. “ Et il ajoute à la fin de son Exemplaire plusieurs lignes en Language Saxon.” These Lines (which are now but thirteen in Number, the rest being erased) are not in the Saxon Language, but IRISH. I suppose the Father believing the Hand to be Saxon, thought the Language so too.

6. — “ avec quelques Notes Marginales, qui composent une Espece de petite Chaîne recueillie de S. Hilaire, S. Ambroise, de S. Jerome, de S. Augustin, de Gennadius, et ce me semble de Bede.” I am afraid that if any body should come hither to search (upon the said Father's words) for material or curious quotations from any of the Genadij ; that he will go near to lose his Labour. For in the Irish or more ancient Hand, I have hitherto found nothing of any Gennadius: although in the Newer or English hand I meet with the Name Gennadius five times, viz. at foll. 28. 122. b. 130. 130. b. & 145. and perhaps some of the Notes entered by the same newer hand may have been taken from the same ignoble Writer. The best of these his notes (in my Opinion) is the first, and that is indifferent enough in all conscience. It is upon the words, Nonne duo passeres affe vaneunt; Matth. x. 29. Here, in the bottom of the Page, comes the learned Note. As nimitatus, affe genitus. GENNADIUS, Affe, nummus parvus. Idem, paulo post, hic As, bius affe, dimedia pars denarij, sc. obolus. Instead of this Gennadius (who ever he was) the Father might better have added Gregory the Great, of whom here are many Places of his Homilies, marked with the common Mark for his Name $\overline{\gamma\gamma}$. Priscian who is cited, fol. 22. b. Leo, cited fol. 22. b. & perhaps at fol. 55. Cyprian, cited fol. 21. b. Isidore, cited fol. 13. 21. 39. b. & 54. b. Eusebius, cited fol. 4. b. & perhaps, fol. 24. b. Origen, cited fol. 7. b. fol. 10. & 10. b. and above Maucanus or Manchanus, if that was his Name (for he is denoted by these Marks, \overline{m} , \overline{m} , \overline{m}) cited fol. 20. b. 44. b. & 49. in both which last pages he mixeth Irish with his Latin: fol. 47. b. 48. b. 49. 49. b. 50. 52. b. 53. 54. 55. b. 56. and perhaps elsewhere, especially in such places where the Bookbinder hath cut too close. As for St. Hilary, I can find as little of him as of Gennadius.

7. "—de Bede, qui est indiqué par la seule Lettre β . comme S. Jérôme est indiqué par la Lettre π ." If the Father wrote this to shew his Sagacity, it might have been spared for a better occasion. Because in citing Bede, the writer useth these abbreviations, besides the β , viz. β as fol. 8. b. 27. b. 37. 40. b. 61. b. 62. 63. 87. &c. β as fol. 12. b. 13. b. &c. and even his Name at length beada. fol. 26. b. 30. & I think, elsewhere. The same method is taken in expressing St. Hierom; as besides the Single letter β , we find π fol. 62. 62. b. & 64. β occurs very often as in fol. 2. 4. &c. and this because the annotator when he wrote his own words, wrote him thus at length, β π π π as appeareth by fol. 2. lin. 2.

8. As to the Impertinence of the Notes, I shall not now meddle. Nor do I understand what the Father means when he saith—"font apparemment du Compilateur, & viennent de deux mains; car les unes font en caractères Saxons, et les autres en caractères Latins." I will only observe that the Letters he again calls Saxon, are IRISH; and that those he calls Latin, are ENGLISH, or an English Hand. Nor is it unusual to find things written by Irish-men in English Hands. I have seen divers things written even in the Irish Tongue, in English Hands: and have found that in divers Ages the Welsh & Cornish have used the English Hand of the Times then present, when they wrote in their own Language.

9. "Mais l'Auteur n'est pas toujours heureux dans ses Explications." Par exemple sur ex publicanis car c'est ainsi qu'il lit au lieu de publicanis, &c." The writing of Publicani for Publicani, was according to the corrupt usage which crept in about the time of the Lower Roman Empire; some of the Relicks of which usage continue to this day. As for the Marginal note "Publicani a Pupo Rege &c." (fol. 3.) After the multitudes that I have seen in MSS. of other Nations, even of the French, which have been to the full as gross as this: I can easily forgive it, and also suspect that it was transcribed from some other Book.

Num. 1802.

10. "Les Saxons, autrement les Anglois-Saxons prononçoient apparemment publicani, au lieu de publicains. I am afraid that this is more than the learned father Simon can prove. For, in the Anglo-Saxon Gospels where we have their own words, we find Publicanur, Matth. x. 3. and Publicanum Luc. v. 27. although they for the most part rendered it by man-pul or man-pulla; and sometimes by beop-pping, as Luc. xix. 2. I think I need not mention many very ancient Copies of the Gospels written by English-Saxons in divers Centuries, wherein I have constantly found Publicanur, because here his assertion must be applied to the Irish; who with the Roman Letterers, retained the corrupt way of writing Latin, which obtained not only in the times of the Saints Palladius & Patric, but long both before & after them. Thus in Gruters Inscriptions, we find many words where p is corruptly put for a: as, for instance, pag. 150. no. 6. (vet. Edit.) in the word POPLICIO for PUBLICICO. And the word PUBLICUS for PUBLICUS is extant in so many books written in France, Italy, Germany, &c. as is needless, and indeed would be too tedious here to enumerate.

11. "Néanmoins dans le Texte de Saint Matthieu on lit publicani. — Publicani qui publica, &c." 'Tis strange that the Learned Father should be out here: for the place he speaks of, is in fol. 24. lin. 15. (i. e. Matth. ix. 10.) where any body may see the words publicam & publica. I say no more.

12. As to the comparison of the Four Evangelists to Four Liquors (at fol. 9.) I can scarce believe it to be particular to this Book, or of the Scribes Invention; although I do not think it worth the while to search whence he might have taken it; or the following Comparisons (which perhaps might have been mentioned if the Father had read a little farther) viz. to the Four Elements; to the Four Seasons of the Year; with the following Conclusion, His quatuor Temporibus, Annus Domini acceptabilis cum duodecim Apostolorum numero, quasi duodecim Mensibus completur. Because I can remember some other Comparisons made by Great Men: as those of Irenæus, to the Four Quarters of the World; the Four Winds; Four Pillars; and (what he took from Ezek. i. 10. & Revel. iv 17. being therein followed by Hierome, Sedulius, & others,) the Four Animals; nor Ven. Bede's Rings, & Wheels; nor the many different Representations I have seen of them in old Books.

13. "Pour ce qui est des Caractères Saxons dans lesquels cestv Evangile font écrits, ils sont tres-beaux." I grant the First Hand to be well enough; but no rarity. At the same time I take leave to say, that I have seen numbers of Saxon MSS. (which the Father here doth not mean) and many Books written in Ireland (where this Book was written) so far exceeding it with reference to the beauty of the Hand, as that it will not bear a Comparison with them.

14. "Et différent de ceux que le Pere Mabillon a représenté dans sa Diplomatique." This is true: and might very well be, since Pere Mabillon in his whole Book hath not given one Specimen of IRISH writing.

15. "L'Orthographe est Latine, en quelques endroits différente" (I suppose here a mistake of the Press, and that it should have been, "L'Orthographe Latine en quelques endroits est différente) de celle d'aujourd'hui." This is no News to those who often read in very old Latin MSS. or recenter Copies faithfully transcribed from them.

16. "On y confond quelque fois les Lettres σ & ν . On lit, par Exemple, PARABULA, DIABULUS, &c." Here, and with what follows I own I am almost amazed.

Num. 1802.

amazed. I could hardly have believed, that the Learned Father Simon had so little Experience in old MSS. as to make so trivial Observations. Surely Mr. Jusfel above mentioned must needs have known better: since he brought a good parcel of exceeding Antient & Valuable Manuscripts into England, part whereof do now adorn the Bodleyan Library at Oxford; and others I have seen in private Hands: among which books I have seen this change of o for u often enough. The truth is, this was one particular of the corrupt way of spelling Latine (whereof Cassiodore & others complain) It frequently occurs in old Inscriptions, and (as I remember) in all the very old Latin Books that I ever saw.

17. "Les Diphtongues estoient en usage des ces tems-là parmi ces Saxons, car on trouve æ & e." Here I suppose another Typographical error, and that e (which is another way of expressing æ) is meant by the last Letter. To be sure the Diphtong æ expressed conjunctly by way of Jugation or Monogram, was used by the Saxons when they wrote Latin or Saxon with Roman Letters; and sometimes also when they wrote with Runic Letters. Now the Irish had the same Pattern to follow as the Saxons had, namely the Roman Writing, wherein the Diphtong æ did often appear, as is plain by their Books, & the Marble Inscriptions.

18. "Et ce qui merite encore plus d'être observé, c'est que la Lettre H—y est écrite en effet sur des certains mots au dessus des Lettres, comme on marque les Esprits dans la langue Greque." Really, this is no new discovery, though not mentioned by Mabillon, as I can see. They are commonly seen in Latin Books of great Age. Thus, many years ago, finding the same Letter or Spirit H in our Saxon MSS, I took occasion in my printed Catalogue of Anglo-Saxon MSS. (pag. 156.) to mention the way of writing h for b, which I think I sufficiently shewed to be antient. I alleged the Authority of almost all the antient Grammarians whose works are in Print, and would take up too much room to have cited particularly; from Isidore of Sevil, who as to this Mark, gave the antient usage; from Aulus Gellius, who is said to have flourished in the beginning of the Second Century; and from Quintilian who is affirmed to have written in the First. And this is high enough I think: unless people will let me upon discussing of the Greek Spirits & Accents; which perhaps I may be able (when occasion shall offer) to run up higher. Now the Afer Spirit h being used by the Romans from whom the Irish received their Letters: no wonder if the Irish retained it. And indeed they did, and do still retain it in common use, only deviating in the Figure: for in their old MSS. they draw it right h, but in their modern MSS. & Printed Books, for more ease & convenience, they express it thus: by a point only, the Force & Sound being the same.

19. "Des ces deux figures jointes ensemble h & t, a été formée nostre Lettre u." This I doubt very much. Every body knows that u is a Roman Letter and that the Roman Letters were derived from the Greek. Now why may not these two Spirits h & t have been derived from the Greek u, from whence the Roman u seemeth to have had its Original? This indeed may look somewhat New: but let us try a little. In the late Dr. Edward Bernard's Sheet of Alphabets, published at Oxford A. D. 1688. (wherein some things are done with good Judgement) in the Old Greek or Ionian Alphabet, we find the Poctas of u to be h, c, & ch. In Crutgers Inscriptions, (vet. Edit. pag. 27.) we have the forms of the Old Greek Characters, as they were found engraven on two Pillars in the Appian Way, which were afterward carried to the Pamefian Gardens. Here (among divers other Letters borrowed of the Greeks by the Romans) we find the Letter u in full possession of the power of the Afer Spirit, as in the words HO t: HOBOI t: HERODO Ht: ENHORIA formerly (as it should seem) written Ht: & HO t. This is so antient as to precede the Invention or Distinction of Long & Short Vowells among the Greeks. Joseph Scaliger in his Animadversions upon Eusebius (Edit. 1658 pag. 110.) gives a Copie of these Inscriptions, with very learned Notes, from whence I shall borrow a few lines. "Exemplum tibi damus pŕiscarum Ioniarum Literarum, quas Herodotus similes Phœnicijs esse dixit.—Atqui Herodotus tanquam rem vetustissimam narans, se in quibuldam locis Literas Ionias vidisse scribit, quæ Phœnicijs simillimæ essent.—et pag. 113. HTA—olim fuit tælonas apud pŕiscos Jonas, ut hodie h apud Latinos, fungens Aspiracionis munere.—Sed tamen idem potest dici de HTA Epifemo Ionico, quamdiu ipsa Aspiracionis tantum nota fungebatur; ut hæcenus Latini, & Iones solum æ tam pro Longo quam Brevis habuerint.—Igitur quæ prius erat Aspiracionis nota xai tælonas duntaxat, ea cepit esse Litera, quod dictum est HTA tælonas tæ E; hoc est, oppositum tæ E pŕiscæ. Est enim æ longum.—Sed quemadmodum sublata confusione Longæ & Brevis E, multum lucis et Lectiōi et Orthographiæ accessit: ita, quæ antea erat commoditas Aspiracionis, hac novatione sublata est. Quia vero HEKATON pro tæton scribebant, propterea h veteribus, erat nota Centenarij numeri." I remember that Bernard Montfalcon in his Palæographia, exhibits the above-mentioned Inscriptions, with some others of the like Antiquity & Characters; together with his Observations to this Purpose: but not having the Book now by me. I can only mention it.]

Num. 1802.

Plato utique in Cratilo narrat h pro æ expressum antiquitus fuisse: ita ut diceretur epŕis pro ipŕis. Scio diste quoque Platonem etiam per pronuntiatum olim. Verum quid h de? nisi Vocale h, nec h, nec i, quoad sonum valuit, sed aliud munus in vocalibus explorasse: quod nos ultro tatemur. alia enim frustra inventum fuisset h, si eandem ipsam quem xai i sonum habuisset.—Sonum quippe ut et litteræ nomen antiquitus servabant Greci: siquidem Phœnices & Syri Htæna, quemadmodum et pŕici Greci, ut liquet ex supradictis. pag. 130.

Haud equidem infœcitum ex eorumque veterum sententia, h antiquitus non proprie litteram fuisse sed aspiracionis notam, Verum alios etiam avomus, et quidem non infini nominis Grammatici, qui i. veram esse litteram asserere non dubitant. Velut Longus de Orthographia. pag. 2217. "h littera tanquam sonus magis sit quam littera, & accipiatur littera." (Male dissimulant editi Isconum hic subiecti.) Et utuntur auctoritate Græcorum apud quos ut supervacua sublati est. Num. 1802.

By what is above written, it may appear, that the η had the Sound of the Asper Spirit, and being with other Greek Letters borrowed by the Romans, continued to have the same Potestas among them in all ages, as it doth among us to this day, in as much as our Ancestors borrowed the Roman Letters. But among the Greeks, the matter went otherwise; for in process of time, when certain of the Greek Vowels were distinguished into long & short, the Letter α which before had been used both as long & short, was now to be used as a Short Vowel only: and the η which before was no Vowel, was for the future to denote the Longer α . After this, it may be easily conceived that the Loss of the Asperate was apparent, and that therefore the Grammarians dividing the η , applied the Right half of it ϵ to such Letters where an Asperate was necessary, and the Left half or ι where no such Sound was required; or where the ϵ might have been put in a wrong place. This I think may suffice to shew, that in all probability, the Spirits ϵ & ι were taken from η , & not η from them.

The remaining part of the Chapter not relating to the Book in hand, I forbear any consideration upon it.

So far with regard to Father Simon & his Remarks on this Book: Now I shall proceed to give some short account of it, waving those few particulars which have been observed by him. It beginneth thus,

1. Oritur Prologus Canonum quatuor Evangeliorum decem minutionibus, vel articulationibus distinctorum. fol. 2. lin. 1. quos Hieronimus Damasco flagitante, construxit. 1.
Incip. "Novum opus facere me cogis."
In this Page, and in divers others that follow, some of the Notes are rased off the Parchment:
2. Argumentum Evangelij Matthei. 3.
Incip. "Matheus ex Judeis."
Nota in superiore margine. Argumenta dicuntur quæ causas ostendunt, et ex brevitate Sermonum Sensum. Argumentum nunquam Testibus, nunquam Tabulis dat probationem, sed sola investigatione invenit veritatem. Argumentum argutum inventum: Argumentatio argute mentis ratio.
3. Genealogia D. N. J. C. five Initium Evangelij secundum Matthæum; cum Notis. 3. b.
This is written separately from the rest of the Gospel, and amongst other Prefaces; as being looked upon but as a Preface. I have seen other ancient Copies of the Evangelists, written in Ireland, or coming from Books written by Irish men, wherein, although this Sacred Genealogy was not rejected, or misplaced, there would nevertheless appear a great distinction between it, and what followed; the words Xpi autem Generatio being illuminated again, as if the Gospel had begun there.
4. De Interpretatione Ebraicorum nominum. 4. b.
This is an Explication of such Names as occur in the Gospels, as well Syriac as Hebrew; perhaps taken from St. Hierom.
5. Glossariolum quoddam Hebræo-Latino-Hybernicum. 5. b.
6. Two Notes; the former said to be taken from Gregory; the latter (which follows) from St. Hierom, "Augeant Sacerdotes Scientiam magis quam divitias; et non erubescant dicere a Laicis qui noveant quæ ad officium pertinent Sacerdotum." This, perhaps, may be one of the Notes called Impertinent by Father Simon. The truth is, in looking into St. Hierom's Works I could not find it: But the Father doth say, on different occasions, what may be almost tantamount,
7. The Prologue or Preface commonly put before St. Mark, beginning thus, Marcus Evangelista Dei. 6. CAT. HARL. VOL. II.

Num. 1802.

Of this, Erasmus in his Index Operum Divi Hieronymi, saith, "Non est Hieronymi, licet sit erudita; apparet è Græco verbatim; et in vetustissimis Codicibus Manuscriptis non erat ascriptum Hieronymi nomen."

8. The Preface commonly put before S. Luke, beginning thus, Lucas Syrus natione. 6. b.
Of this Erasmus saith, "Ipse satis arguit ab Interprete, non optimo, verbatim esse e Græco; sicuti docuimus plenius Tom. III." 51.
9. The Preface frequently written before S. John's Gospel, beginning, "Hic est Johannes." 7. b.
Erasmus writes of this, & the former, "Falso inscribitur Hieronymo, cujus nomen non erat ascriptum in vetustissimis Codicibus, quinadmodum nec in superiore." 51.
10. Notes taken from Gregory, Bede, & Hierom. 8. b.
11. Notes, wherein the Gospels, or the Writers of them, are compared to Liquors, Elements, &c. abovementioned by me (§ 12.) 9.
12. An old Irish Poem concerning the Twelve Apostles. 9. b.
13. The Gospel of St. Matthew (beginning at "Cristi autem generatio") with a sort of Interlineary Gloss, and a Catena Patrum. 10.

I was, at first, somewhat of opinion that this Catena was not taken from the Authors themselves, but from Claudius Prebyster's Comment on Matthew, where many places which I had read in this Catena are to be found, as being taken from the same Authors (Not to mention that Claudius is by divers learned men deemed to have been an Irishman by birth, and therefore was called Scotus). Part of the Account this Claudius gives of his Work (which is not yet in Print, and the written Exemplars so rare, that I know of but two or three in England) is this, in his Preface to Justus the Abbat.—"Cumq; ad aliud scribendum, ex præcedenti jam tempore mea teneretur Voluntas, ad id quod jussus eram continuo studui dirigere voluntatem, et Evangelium secundum Matthæum ex opusculis Sanctorum Patrum; licet non ad purum (quod etiam difficile est fieri) tamen ut valui inquirere atq; explanare conatus sum, ex tractatibus Doctorum & Majorum notorum, qui nos in studio hujus Operis, sicut Scientia ita et Tempore præcesserunt: Id est, Origenis, Hylarii, Ambrosij, Ieronimi, Augustini, Rufini, Johannis, Fulgentij, Leonis, Maximi, Gregorij, & Bedæ.—multis etiam in locis, ubi horum defuit Sensus vel Verba, hoc utcumque valuit, explore studui mea Paupertas.—legat et alios ipsius Evangelij Latinos expofitores Hylarium et Fortunatum; et juxta Hystoriæ ordinem omnis sensus Physicos, Allegoricos, atq; etiam Ethicos requirat diligenter ad purum, et tunc nosse poterit utrum Ego otiose an devote, superflue an necessarie, in hoc opere laboraverim."—but what convinced me to the contrary, was the considerations, 1. Here are passages of Claudius's Authors, either not cited by him, or at least cited in different words. 2. Here are many Quotations from Authors not used by Claudius, namely from MANICHÆUS (more of whom presently, God willing). 3. The same sort of Catena in the same older Hand, extendeth itself to the beginnings of Mark & Luke, upon which Claudius wrote something that I can find.

I have observed that the same Passages cited by Claudius & by the compiler of this Catena, do differ: I shall now give one Instance of many, of the difference in a Passage as cited in this Catena, & as extant in Print; being St. Hierom's Note on the words ET LUNATICOS, Matth. iv. 24.

Num. 1802.

MS. Catena.

- b. Non vere lunaticos, sed qui putabantur lunatici, ob demonum fallaciam; qui demones lunaria tempora offerbant creaturam infamare ut in Creatorem inducerent blasphemiam.

Here is a great difference in the latter part of the Citation; wherein the Printed book seemeth to me to be much more accurate than this MS. and if this Print be justified by written Books older than this Catena, I shall believe them to be of better Authority than this. And so in other places.

14. The Gospel of St. Mark (with a Picture of a Lion before it, made by one who never saw the Creature) beginneth at fol. 61.
The little Catena above mentioned, goes no farther than seven pages.

15. The Gospel of St. Luke (with a rude picture of an Ox before it) 87.
The old Catena at the beginning of this Gospel breaks off after two Leaves.

16. St. John's Gospel (delitute of an Eagle, as St. Matthew's of an Angel) beginneth at fol. 128.
This hath no Catena in the ancient Irish hand; and endeth with fol. 156.

Before I dismiss this ancient Irish Hand, I take Leave to observe that the writer of the Notes in fol. 7. lin. antepenult. calls St. Luke lacunary, according to the ancient Custom of the Irish; and of many of our ancient English Saxons, who derived their Learning from them. I have seen divers ancient Copies of the Gospels, where the same name hath occurred: and spoken at large concerning it in my description of the Cottonian Gospels N. 20 D. 4. Printed in Dr. Hickes's Thesaurus.

In the Notes written in the Newer & English Hand, I find cited,

1. S. Hieron. as at fol. 1. r. b. &c.
2. Gregorius Magnus; as fol. 27. 45. b. 96. &c.
3. The Missal; as at fol. 137. b.
4. The Breviary; at fol. 103. b.
5. Capitulare Arrovassense. ibid.
6. Johannes Belet (who is said to have flourished about A. D. 1162.) ibid.
7. Hilarius Scholastica of Petrus Comestor, who died A. D. 1198. fol. 153. b.
8. Galfridus Babion, or Babilensis; who made a Gloss upon St. Matthew, & perhaps upon the other Evangelists. fol. 39. 81. 105. b. 115. b. 124. b. 154. &c.
9. Gennadius. fol. 28. 122. b. 130. 130. b. 145. & perhaps at fol. 45. This man seemeth to have been a mere Grammarian.

10. There are some Notes, shewing the Lessons to be read in the Church; as at fol. 34. 34. b. &c.

The Person who wrote these more modern Notes, hath often rased off the Old Notes, that he might put the Number of the Chapters in their place, as at fol. 12. b. 14. 15. 18. b. 20. b. &c.

Sometimes the said old Marginal Notes have been rased off, upon other Occasions, as fol. 28. 31. b. &c.

I have before mentioned MANCHANUS as one of the Authors who makes the little Catena upon St. Matthew. He is cited under the Marks α & ω & μ & ν , And plainly appeareth to have been an Irishman by his Notes, some of which are partly in the Irish Tongue (as in the lower Margin of fol. 49. & other places) As to his Opinions, it seemeth that he thought as other Christians of his Time & Nation did; and therefore could not believe in Transubstantiation. Thus for Example, he writes (fol. 54.) "Primo quæritur si hæc assumptio Panis et Calicis, Figura, an Hystoria, an Sensus? Figura Hieron. in Matth.

Non vere lunaticos, sed qui putabantur Lunatici, ob dæmonum fallaciam; qui observantes Lunaria tempora, creaturam infamare cupiebant, ut in Creatorem blasphemie redundarent.

est; fractio enim Panis figurat Corpus ejus fractum a Militibus in Cruce; et in omnibus Sanctis iteratur Passio ejus dum patiuntur, a Cristo usque ad finem Mundi; sed tamen non ut fiebant Figuræ Legis quæ cessaverunt: hæc vero Figura cotidie iterantur, &c. (which last words relate to the Custom of Receiving the Holy Eucharist daily; a Custom that prevailed in other Churches beside that of Ireland). Mr. Toland told me, that this Manchanus was a Monk, or religious Person, living in or near the Town of Monaghan in Ireland, which in Latin, he said, was called Monaca. Indeed if a conjecture of mine upon one of his Notes be right, he should have been an Anchorite or Culdee, as many of the Old Irish Saints and learned Men were; for upon these Words of Matth. xxiv. 26. (pag. 49.) "Si ergo dixerint vobis Ecce in Deserto est," he writeth thus, fol. 48. b. "Si autem dixerint, & reliqua: ecce in Deserto, id est, ut sunt Anchorite." Mr. Toland (I think) said farther, that he had read some account of him in Bolton of Bury, a MS. of which he saw in a Library at Lovain; and of which we have but one ancient MS. and one modern transcript of it, in England, both in private hands; so that I can, at present, say nothing to it. I have however made some Inquiry after him; the result whereof is, that I find none that certainly have seen any of his Works; nor do I find any of his Works, that is, such as are certainly known to have been his, any where extant, but only so much as is preserved in this individual Book.

The Notes which I thought might relate to him, are these, WARÆUS de Scriptor. Hiberna. Dubl. 1689 Lib. 1. pag. 27. "Henricus Fæz-Simon MANCHINANO auctorem asserit Libri De Mirabilibus Scripturæ, qui extat in Tomo III. Operum S. Augustini, cui etiam perperam a quibusdam tribuitur. MANCHINUM intelligit opinor, de quo Annales Ultonienses ad ann. 651. (qui nobis est 652.) Dormitatio Manchin Abbatis Macondroit. Et Tigernanus ad eundem annum, Dormitatio Mancene Abbatis Menedroicid. In libro de Mirabilibus Scripturæ, fit mentio tunc in O. d. MAN. hæc Sapiens Hibernensis, MANCHINI (ut opinor) nostri; non abhorret Nomen, et tempora exactè conveniunt. Unde, MANCHINO (vel MANCHINANO) Authori perperam tribui non possum non autumare".

In a MS. formerly belonging to Sir James Ware, and now in the Library of the Honorable James Brydges Esq; Vol. xxxix. in a Catalogue of Irish Saints, toward the end, is this Note. Manchinus ob. 2. Januarij A. D. 652.

In the same Book, in a Calendar, at JANUAR. II is the following Irish Note, Manchin aice i. abas fil. hillaicheis (I lais) u artair Laigen 7 aiter a bann, 7 ab eo nominatus. Juxta illum Ecclesia constructa est. 1. Disert meic e lurn, nomen ejus Scoithune i. Tig. Scoth hi Slewmarge.

In Philip O Sullevan's Historiæ Catholice Iberniæ compendium, fol. 45. b. in the Calendar of Irish Saints, is "IAN. 1. S. Münchinus." The same is also in Sir James Ware's Book, now in the possession of the Honble. James Brydges Esq; Vol. xlv.

These seem to relate pretty well to one person. The following Note seems to belong to another.

A MS. in Mr. Brydges's Library, Vol. xxxix. being Collections from the Ulster Annals, fol. 26.

Num. 1802.

Monachus Discipulus S. Dertani (ut in Vita Dertani habetur) Episcopus Limericenfis.

I find yet mention of one MANCENUS, who was contemporary with St. Patric. Jocelinus de Furness, Cap. 59. of his Life of St. Patric (as printed in Thom. Mellingham's Florilegium) hath these words,—"MANCENUS virum Religiosum, et optime in Scripturis Sanctis exercitatum."—Which are also cited by the most learned Primate Usher, in his Brit. Ecclef. Antiq. Dublin 1639. pag. 861.

The same Author in his Index Chronologicus to the book last mentioned, A. D. 434.—"Patricius—duodecim hominum milia ad fidem Christi convertisse, et Septem filios Regis Amalgathi uno die baptizavisse, populoq. noviter convertito magistrum MANCENUM prefecisse, memoratur" (i. e. by the above-written Joceline of Furness.)

In the same Book, pag. 969. are these words, "S. Lugido five Molva, qui Gregorio 1. Romanum Pontificatum administrante obiit, superstites fuisse in Vita ejus memoratur, Cronanus, in Insula Cre tunc habitans, S. Scellanus—& vir sanctus & sapiens nomine Manchenus." And then returning again to our MANCHANUS, he thus proceedeth, "A Richardo Armachano Archiepiscopo scripta esse dicitur Vita Sancti Manchani septem Ecclesiarum patroni, Canonici Regularis D. Augustini; qui exemplo sue sanctitatis multos ex varijs Hibernie paribus ad Christi fidem convertit; ubi per ipsum primo Orate pro Brigidiano (Maol Brigide) qui scripsit hunc librum Lismore, quando Cormacus Cardaigi occidebatur à Tirdelvaco filio Briani.

Mr. Toland upon his turning Maelpuige into BRIGIDIANUS, gave me this following Note,

"There are no Words that (in the Irish Tongue) enter closer into the Composition of Proper Names than Maol and Gilla, especially since Christianity: the last word signifying Slave, and the first Retainer. In the Times of Learning, the Irish knew how to render these into Latin, tho they afterwards forgot it. Thus Maol-Muire is Marianus, Gilla-Criold Christianus; Maol Brigide Brigidianus, Maol-vanaig Monachus, Gilla-Easpig Episcopus, Gilla-Coluim Columbanus, &c."

Mr. Conry approved of this Note; to which I subjoin another in the late learned Mr. Edward Lhwyd's Archaeol. Britan. Tit. x. pag. 431.

"MAOL a Servant. It was antiently (out of Reverence to Saints) prefix'd to their Names in Christening, as MAOL-COLUIM St. Columbus's Servant, MAOL-SRACHUIN, St. Secundin's &c. In the same manner as GILLA (now written GIOLLA) in GILACHOLUM, GILABRI, GILAPHADRUICE, GILEON, GILEOZAIN, &c."

Mr. Toland translated the two first words of the second Line LISMORE, supposing it to signify the Town or City of Lismore; and that the Principal Letter L was left out in order to its being entred at large, and with a different Color by the Illuminator. To this Mr. Conry said, that the Words are significative as they are, and without any relation to Lismore: and that there are two Sentences

Op' do maelpuige. qui p'p'it' h'e lib'p'; fol. 86.

In fine Lucæ, fol. 12. b. is this Note, e'c'c'ij l'ae, 1N d'epa b'p'p'ad 12ji goechung m'p' p'ei

Of which, Mr. Toland gave me the following Explication, afterwards approved by Mr. Conry.
Orate pro Brigidiano qui scripsit hunc librum in vicefimo c'avo anno actis suæ, secundoanno ab aedificatione magnæ domus, &c.

Manchanus) Prioribus Monasterij de Mohill sponte, libere, & pie conferuntur & dotantur." Archbishop Usher goes on with some other citations from the Usher Annals, &c. which being taken notice of before, I shall here omit.

So far with relation to MANCHANUS, who is frequently cited in the Catena upon St. Matthew's Gospel, as is above mentioned. It now remaineth that I say somewhat touching the Antiquity of this Exemplar, which is best to be known by the Notes written at the end of each of the Gospels. But these being written, for the greatest part in the Irish Tongue, I procured a Translation of them from Mr. Toland, which he readily gave me from the book itself. I afterward shewed this Translation to one Mr. Conry an Irish-man then in England, who had some knowledge of the Ancient Irish, & having compared Mr. Toland's Version with the MS. did not altogether approve thereof, but at my Request gave me another Version of the same words: both which Versions follow, Seaan o Maoldone 2 i.e. Mr. John Conry.

Op' do Maol puige qui scripsit hunc librum.
Cormacum Mac Cartheum interemptum Tirdelvacho o

in the three Lines, as may be plainly perceived by the punctuation; the first Line being an intire Sentence of itself. To this I beg leave to add, that lately in the Honble. Mr. Brydges's Library, in divers of his Irish MSS. I have seen the same words written in the same manner, at the beginning of Paragraphs, when I have supposed the Subject could have no relation to Lismore. In the Irish MS. of this Library N^o 432. being an antient Transcript of the Book of Cloin, in Munster, with a Collection of Laws, as Mr. Conry told me, the word 'S so written, beginneth very many Paragraphs, the next word (like that above) being always written in a smaller hand: and in fol. 12. l. 5 or 6. I find 'S n'p' which comes somewhat near the same. In another of my Lord's Irish MSS. viz. No. 546. being a Medicinal book, in a Chapter concerning the Asthma, fol. 30. l. 8. I find the contested words written at the beginning of a Sentence in the same manner 'S n'p'.

Mr. Toland told me that the Words above, Capthaig, which he translated CARDAGI, do not here signify Mac Carty a great Family in Ireland; but rather Filius Fabri, Filius Opificis, or Filius Aurifabri. But Mr. Conry was of opinion that it was the Sur-Name of a Family, and that the person there mentioned was properly written Cormac mac Carty.

At the end of St. Mark is this Note following, which caused no difference in Opinion.

At the end of St. John's Gospel; that is, at the end of the Book, is the longest and most remarkable Note of them all, written in these words,

By what hath been above written, it appearing that Mr. Toland & Mr. Conry did not take the same Words of their own Language in the same Sense, but differing in their Judgment both as to Time, Persons, and Places; I will here add such little passages as I have lately picked up here & there, as may seem to favour either of their Versions; premising, that I might have had better Success, if I could have seen some Books now in Oxford, Cambridge, & Dublin; or even have procured the late Edition of Sir James Ware's Works.

But before I bring these scattered Notes together,
I think it not improper to advertise, that the Irish Office (as is likely enough to have been appertaining to St. Patrick's Church at Armagh) which Mr. Toland translated by Praepositus, & Mr. Conry by Vica-rius (although here they mutually approved each others Terms) yet seem not to me to have been the Latin Title of the Office at that Place; but rather Oeconomus, or some such word. Thus, I find Brydges's Library, Vol. xxix. fol. 1. b. A. D. 837.

But to begin with the Proofs for Mr. Toland's Version, and of his Opinion that Cormac mac Car-killed about A. D. 909, I find,

- In all the above mentioned Citations, that Cormac is never called Mac Carthaig, as in the present MS. of my Lord's; but always the Son of Culeinan (a Name somewhat mistaken by the Welsh, & those who followed them) whereby it seemeth plain to me that Cormac mac Culeinan & Cormac mac Carthaig could not have been the same man. But Mr. Toland said they were, and that mac Carthaig was only a Sur-name applied to Cormac mac Culeinan. This I cannot well agree to, because Sir James Ware writes, that Surnames are not so ancient among the Irish. "Regnante tandem supradicto Brieno (i. e. circa annum Dom. millesimum) Hibernorum Cognomina five familiarum Nomina ceperunt esse fixa, posteriq; tradita, cum præposita vel aspiratione h, vel voce ua, quæ postea mutata est in vocalem O et significat unum e posteris viri alicujus Primarij, ut O-Brien, O-Connor, &c. Non pauca tamen familie, per aliquot postea annorum Centurias, quod fatendum) fixa Cognomina non assumpserunt." War. Antiq. Hibern. pag. 45.

Num. 1802.

According to this Rule, Tirlough O Brian (as I may write him) cannot be properly said to have killed Cormac mac Carty about the beginning of the Tenth Century; but the expression may be agreeable enough to the Usage about the middle of the 12th, viz. about A. D. 1140.

Moreover, in all the said Citations, he is never said to have been killed by a Tirlough O Brian: to this, Mr. Toland saith, that he can sufficiently demonstrate that he was killed by a Tirlough O Brian. I shall be glad to see the Proofs.

Nor can I find any mention of any of the Irish Kings mentioned in this MS. as Contemporaries to Cormac. Mr. Toland saith, he found them all, in the Ulster Annals, Dr. Keating, & other Irish Chronicles, as living about A. D. 909. I shall be glad to see the same.

Mr. Toland saith that Maolbrigte who wrote the Book was Archbishop of Armagh in his more advanced age. Indeed, in a List of those Arch-bishops, in Mr. Brydges's Library Vol. XLIV. I did find one Maolbrigdius holding that See from the year 884, to the year 913, when he was (as the List shews) succeeded by Joseph. But Mr. Toland saith that his Brigidianus sat untill (as I remember) A. D. 927, then dying above 60 years of Age. In the same Book, I find cited from the Ulster Annals the following passage.

1139. "Maolbrigdi o Broican Epus Armac. primus optin penitentiam; obiit 4 Cal. Febr."

Thus we have each of us a Brigidianus fuitable to our different times: but I doubt neither of these will do the business, because Mr. Conry saith the Surname of the Brigidianus in my Lords MS. was O Mulveany (as may be seen above in the Version of this Note at the end of St. John's Gospel).

Beside the Brigidianus Arch-bishop of Armagh; I must also own, that I have met with another Cormac the Son of Culeinan, in the Annales Inisfallen in Mr. Brydges's Library. "A. D. 919. Cormac m^c Cullinan Ep^s & Serv ap Lifmore & Abb. cille molaiffe," &c. but he can do little, not only because he is somewhat too late, but because it doth not appear that he was a King, as the Irish used to call the Chiefs of their Clans who had great Dependencies.

In Roderic O Flaherty's Ogygia, & divers other books, I have found a Tordelvach O Brian. But although he was King of Munster, I cannot allow him to have been the person who slew Cormac mac Carthaig, because he (being a Prince of great Note) is known to have died about A. D. 1086.

In several Conversations I had with Mr. Toland, I perceived that the chief Argument which induced him to believe his Cormac the Son of Culeinan to be the Cormac mac Carthaig mentioned in my Lord's MS. is his having been both King & Bishop of Munster; characters which he would not allow ever to have met in any other Cormac than the Son of Culeinan only. Besides, he would by no means grant that Bishopricks were ever hereditary among the Irish; for then it might possibly happen that two Persons of the same Name & Family might the one succeed the other in the same Preferment. As to this matter, I will not take upon me to determine; but will rather cite some few Authorities which have lately come into my way, and leave the same to be decided by others. First it appeareth that some of the Irish were Clergy-men hereditarily, namely the Herenachae, & the Corbæ, Corbani or Comorbani, by the account which Arch-bishop Usher gave of them to Sir Henry Spelman, who inserted the same into his Glossary, at the word CORBA; from which take what follows.—

"His Terris atq; ipsi Colonis, praefectus est ex assignatione Episcopi Herenachus: qui et munus obtinuit Archidiaconi & nomen.—non autem superioris generis, qui hodie sub Episcopo jurisdictione fruitur: sed antiqui illius, qui Presbytero inferior, Pauperes & Xenodochia (Diaconias inde appellata) curabat. Ecclesiasticorum igitur pars est Herenachus, sed qui primam Tonfuram non deprehenditur transisse.—Coalescere jam tum cepit Herenachus suo Officio, satq; pro Imperio exercere in Colonos subjectos praefertim: dum Ecclesia (pia Domina) Natos Nepotiq; facile fufci-peret in parentum Ministeria, ut Levitarum in Tabernaculi. Sic enim haereditarium in Hibernia fit munus Herenaci, non minus quam in partibus transmarinis, Vice-Domini."

Num. 1802.

"CORBA eminentioris loci fuit, atq; idem qui Decanus Ruralis, Plebanus, Archi-presbyter, seu Chorepiscopus: a quo et nomen (barbara contractione) videtur sortitus.—Munus itidem huic (Corbano) ut Herenacho gentile est, puerosq; ideo successuros Latine imbuunt, ne paterne functionis incompetentes videantur. Nec miraberis Corbanos & Herenachos Ministeria et patrimonium Ecclesiae haereditarie ingreffos, aut fuis fretos uxoris: cum ipsum Archiepiscopatum Armachanæ Ecclesiae Primatumq; Hiberniae, una familia decursis jam in hac Malitia (ut Bernardi utar verbis) QUASI GENERATIONIBUS QUINDECIM haereditaria Successione obtinuerint."

Of the Herenachi & Corbani, Sir James Ware in his Antiq. Hibern. above-mentioned hath these words,

Pag. 93.—"Mortuo aliquo Erenacho, ceteri ejusdem Stirpis, qui Terras eas (i. e. Termonlands) possederunt, talem e sua familia ad hoc munus suscipiendum elegerunt, qualem ob statum & mores, idoneum judicarent. Is uxoratus plerumq; sed qui primam habuit Tonfuram, Episcopo praesentatus, ab eo admittitur est & confirmatus, ac sub introitu, subsidium solvit: fin ob justas aliquas rationes rejectus, alium in ejus locum elegerunt. Si disparet de Electione familia, tunc ab Episcopo & Clero electus est Erenachus, at ex eadem stirpe. Si porro Stirps ea deficeret, tunc ab Episcopo & Clero, ad munus illud subeundum, alia electa est familia, sub conditionibus sibi usitatis."

Pag. 91. "Caeterum hoc loco, loquimur tantum de Comorbanis, qui Laici fuerunt et plerumq; uxorati, licet ex ijs aliqui improprie appellabantur Abbates, et alij Priores. Illis eorumque Familij assignatae sunt Terrae quaedam liberae, vulgo Termonlands dictae."

Here by the way, I am doubtful whether (as Sr. James saith) the Comorbani were Lay-men & improperly called Abbats or Priors; because in the Annals of Ulster with Mr. Brydges Vol. XLIX. at the year 1129. I find these words, "Kellagh Coarb Patrick, Cheife & Archbushop of the West of Europe—died in the 24th year of his Abbotship, & in the 50th year of his Age—Murtagh M^c Donell chosen in Patrick's Coarbship." (Qu. whether this is not the Office mentioned in the last line but two of my Lord's MS. & above in this Catalogue, in the Note concerning the Irish Office appertaining to St. Patrick's Church at Armagh.)

But to shew here that (at least) the Archbishopric of Armagh was hereditary, I shall put down the words of St. Bernard as I found them in the Life of Malachias, in the Edition printed at Paris 1632. col. 1937. before I perceived that Sir Henry Spelman had referred to them as above noted.

"Verum mos pessimus inoleverat (in Hybernia) quorundam diabolica potentum, Sedem sanctam obtentum iri haereditaria Successione Nec enim patiebantur Episcopari nisi qui essent de Tribu & Familia sua. Nec parum procellerit execranda Successio decursis jam hac malitia quasi Generationibus quindecim."

Num. 1802.

quindecim. Et eo usq; firmaverat sibi jus pravam; imo omni morte puniendam Injuriam Generatio mala & adultera; ut etsi interdum defecissent Clerici de Sanguine illo, sed Episcopi nunquam. Denique jam octo extiterant ante Celfum viri uxorati, et abiq; Ordinibus. Literati tamen. Inde tota illa per universam Hyberniam (de qua, multa superius diximus) dissolutio Ecclesiastica Disciplina, Censuræ enervatio, Religionis evacuatio. Inde illa ubique pro Consuetudine Christiana, sæva subintroducta Barbaries, imò Paganismus quidam inductus sub nomine Christiano, &c."

Thus far with relation to Mr. Toland's Versions of the Irish Notes, which I have sett down faithfully from his own hand-writing, and brought whatever I have found that might any way seem to countenance the fame. I now come to Mr. Conry's Versions of the fame Notes, which are given above, and demonstrate the Antiquity of this MS. by the following Circumstances.

1. Mael-Brigte or Brigidianus wrote this Book at Armagh, in the 28th year of his Age;
2. the fame Year wherein Cormac mac Carthaig was slain by Tirlough o Brian;
3. being the second Year after the building of the Great Houfe;
4. and in the Year of our Lord 1140.
5. When Donchad o Kervall was King of Argyll;
6. Murchad the son of Neil, the son of Loghlin, King of Orliehia;
7. Cuallad o Connor, King of Ulidia;
8. Murchad the son of Malachias King of Meth;
9. Dermot the son of Murchad (or Mac-Morrough) King of Leimster;
10. Connor O Brian, King of Munster;
11. Tirlough O Connor, King of Connaught;
12. Gilla the Son of Liach . . . was Vicar or a noted Officer or Dignitary belonging to the Metropolitane Church of Armagh.

Now if, upon examination of the same, most of these Circumstances shall be found plainly to concur; such Kingdoms to have been existing at that Time; & such Persons to have been contemporaries, and the far greatest part of them, if not all, now to be proved to have been alive about A.D. 1139. or 1140. I must believe Mr. Conry's to be the more accurate translation, and also (since the Hand also concurs) that the Book was written at that time, and not about A.D. 908. according to Mr. Toland's Opinion.

1. As to Mael-Brigte, I have said somewhat before. I suppose him to have been a young Religious man, who writing a tolerable Hand, was employed (perhaps by Gilla) to copy out this Book. It is no wonder therefore if I can not find any thing particularly relating to Him; since his Station seems to have been but mean & obscure: at least, about that Time.

2. When Cormac mac Carty was slain by Tirlough O Brian (Cormac m'c Captharg or Captharg, and Capthelbach .h. b'p'm.) which Cormac at the end is said to have been King & Bishop of Munster (two Offices easily understood to be compatible in Ireland after what have been noted from St. Bernard above). It is of this man that I understand the words of St. James Ware Antiq. Hibern. pag. 228. where he mentions the Foundation of the Monastery at Cork, CORCACIA. "Cormac Rex Momoniae (alij Defmonia) construxit Canonibus S. Augustini circa Annum 1134."

In Continuatione Annalium Tigernaci, MS. Vet. penes Jac. Brydges Armig. Vol. III. fol. 23. ad Anni 1138. Copt'c m'c capth'c do mapb' do tair' o biat' .i. da clamaui 7 da capth'c ep'i. 7 da al'c' apill .i. m'p'arg' t'ead' ep'uile 7 .p'i. l'et'c'e moga cocollan. iob' o b'p'id' d'p'arg' m'd'. "Cormac Mac-Carty was killed by Tirlough O Brian; that is, his Son in Law, & Goslin, & Foster-Child; . . . , a King of Leithe moga' (i. e. the Half of Ireland Southwards) intirely. Connor O Brian then Chief King of Munster." I am sorry that I am not able to interpret this whole Note. But by the former part hereof, compared with the Note at the end of St. Matthew's Gospel, it plainly appeareth, That in that Year, viz. 1138. Cormac mac Carty was killed by Tirlough O Brian. These are the very Names; and the last of them I could never find mentioned with Cormac the Son of Cuileinan. As to the difference of the Year 1140. in Mr. Conry's Version, from this, it weigheth not much with me. Because first the Irish Computation differed (in general,) a Year from ours; as may be seen by manifold Instances in the Works of Arch-bishop Usher, & Sir James Ware, &c. Secondly, there is an uncertainty in the Irish Histories themselves; the same matter of Fact being laid by different writers in different Years. And this in the third Place may proceed from an indiscreet method used by divers of the Old Irish Annalists, of omitting the Number of the Year, to signify the same by a k (standing I suppose for the Kalends of January) so that sometimes the same letter is written in the middle of a Line; & repeated (when there was want of matter) to 20, 30, or 40 times together. here a k might easily be mistaken in counting; and where a k was carelessly omitted the occurrences of Two Years, are therefore repeated in one. So that if I can make their matters bear to a Year or two, I think it sufficient.

Num. 1802.

In the Annals of the Monastery of Boyl in the County of Roscommon (an ancient Cottonian MS. (TITVS. A. 25.) I find these words, "Cormac m'c Cartac' Ri Defmunia, occ'is est o Tordelbac' u Brian." The year as I guess by counting the k is 1138, or 1139. And here Cormac is styled King of Desmond, as was just now intimated from Sir James Ware. This Place I also find cited in Mr. Brydges MS. XLIV.

His Death is also remembered to have been at A.D. 1139. in a Copy of the Ulster Annals, with Mr. Brydges.

In the same Annals of Boyl, about the Year 1152. I find that Vengeance met with the Murderer, his own blood being shed by Tirlough o Connor (mentioned also at the end of the Gospels) as appeareth by the following Note, "Tordelbac' ua Brian do in narbad u Tordel. u Concl'ub. & went upon it rashly. adul is in tuasciurt."

3. The Second Year after the Building of the Great Houfe. I should be extremely rash if I should pretend to be positive about this Houfe. But since this Note is found at the end of a Gospel, written by a Religious person, perhaps this Great Houfe might have been a Church. Now much about this time I find in Sir J. Ware that the Church of Down was built or repaired; pag. 195. "Dun—Ecclesiam hanc refixit S. Malachias Morgairus, Episcopus primus Connerensis, dein Armachanus Archiepiscopus, ac demum Archiepiscopatu abdicato, Antistes Dunensis, anno 1137." And by the by, you see that Malachy who made this Building, had been Archbishop of Armagh, where this individual MS. was written, and must therefore have been known to our Mæibrigde.

4. And in the year of our Lord 1140. This Interpretation of Mr. Conry, must stand or fall by what has been already, or will soon hereafter be alledged. But hitherto (if I may be allowed lowed to say so) it seemeth not to have been in great danger.

Num. 1802.

5. When Donchad o Kervall was King of Aigiill. O'Connell's Annals (p. 107) says that Heie, before I meddle with the Man, I must prove the existence of such a Kingdom, as to which Mr. Toland told me that Mr. Conry was utterly mistaken.

Mr. Conry said that A'RGILLIA did include the Counties of Monaghan, Cavan, and Louth; or, at least part of them.

Of this same Territory, I find much mention in Rary O'Flaherty's Ogygia, but by the name of Orgiella, which makes no great difference. I will, however put down but this one Note concerning it from him. Ogyg. pag. 361. "Post Achaleth-derg praelium, quod Collaorum, & Trium Collaorum praelium vocatur; Victores (abactis ultra Glenrigean & Neachum lacum Ultonijs) amplam ditionem quam ORGIELLIAM dixerunt (unde An. lis URIEL & ORIEL scribitur) in Comitatus LOUTH, ARDMACH, et MONACHAN, avorum Memoria descriptam, compararunt. Unde Collaorum Irium secunda est, ac late propagata Soboles."

I could put down more quotations from antient & modern Authors, but I purposely omit them, as this King these two which follow may suffice.

In the Coronian MS DOMITIAN. A. 18. wherein is a short account of Ireland, drawn up about the time of K. Edward VI. mention is made of Mac-Mahound, as Lord of Irith Uriel: and Uriel is also mentioned as a part & division of Ireland in other places of the same Treatise, as The * Countie of Uriel paid tribute to O Nele, called Black Re t. 401.

In Camden's Britannia, Edit. Gibson. col. 107. "The County of Louth in old Books called Luda & Londa? in Irish Iriel or Uriel Marginal Note, "in Latin URGALIA" if that is not rather a part of this County." &c.

So far for the Territory, which proveth not to depend upon Mr. Conry's fancy alone. Now for Donchad o Kervall or O Carrol, whom he finds to have been King of it.

War. Antiq. Hibern. page 204. "Mellifons, insignis Monasterium Ordinis Cisterciensis—fundatur a Donato O-Carrol regulo Ergalliae five Urielis, anno 1142."

Ibid. pag. 203. "Loutha—Donatus O-Carroll Rex Ergalliae, & Edanus O Kelly Episcopus Clonorensis—fundarunt, anno 1148."

Num. 1802.

Ibid. pag. 29. "Mauritius alias Moriartachua Nelli filius Lophlini Nepos, fed vulgò dictus Mauritiu Mac Lophlini, cognomento ab avo ducto, regnavit annos plus minus 9. occisus a Donato O Carroll Rege Ergalliae five Urielis, Anno 1166."

In the annals of Boyl above-mentioned, about A. D. 1165, I find this passage, "Affide cordroet et a' ta cora rigad he oDonde'ud u Cerbaill & Orgial laib."

* From Affide to Drogheda the Royal Estate of Donchad O-Carroll King of Uriel lieth.

And in the same book, about A. D. 1167. "Dond-c'ad ua Cerbaill ri Orgiall, mortur."

6. Murchad the son of Neil (or perhaps O Neal) the Son of Lophlin King of Oligha; Mupceptac' m'e Nel ua lochlaib d'luich.

This Ailiuch, Mr. Conry said, was a Kingdom containing almost the whole Northern part of Ireland; being the Chiefest of the two Kingdoms into which Ulster was at that time divided; the other being Ulidia, of which more anon.

In proving the existence of such a Kingdom, I need go no farther than the Ulster-Annals, where (to be sure) mention thereof may be easily found. In that imperfect Copy with Mr. Brydges, (Vol. XLIX.) at the year 1124. are these words "Ardgar the Sonne of Mac Hugh o Mel Scaghlin who should be King of Ailegh, was slain, &c." which Territory, soon after the Conquest of Ireland seems to have been joyned to Ulidia, and so to have been again united into the one Province of Ulster. Thus Jofceine de Furness in the Life of St. Patric, Cap. 31. — "applicuit in finibus ULACH, quæ modo ULIDIA dicitur"—unless there be some mistake here, in the printed Books.

In Mr. O'Flaherty's Ogygia, pag. 372. this Kingdom seemeth to be plainly intended, though it be not mentioned by name, when he writeth— "et non ita diu postea, a Nielli Magni Regis Hibernie filijs, universa fere Ultonia manu potenti eff subacta: Rudricia gente, ac Dalriathachia,—intra unius penè Comitatus, Dumensis terminus, quam prii Ulidiam dixerunt conclusis. Hinc igitur hujus Ditionis Principes non Ultonie, sed Ulidie Reges, discernimus ergo in posterum dicimus." The meaning of the former of these Words, is that the O Neals seized upon the far greatest part of Ulster, where they reigned in Ailiuch or Ulagh; their Enemies keeping possession of Ulidia the remaining part of that Province, under the Government of the O Connors.

* That URIEL enjoyed some particular Privileges and Immunities, after it was taken as a County, may partly appear from the following Grant of K. Edward III. which I find in the Liber Niger de Wigmore in the Harleyan Library, marked 67. C. 4. Ed. perul. in these words: Edwardus Dei gratia Rex Anglie, Dominus Hibernie, et Dux Aquitanie, Archiepiscopus, Episcopus, Abbatibus, Prioribus, Comitibus, Baronibus, Justiciarijs, Vicecomitibus, Prepositis, Militibus, et omnibus Ballivis, et Fidelibus suis Salutem. Num. 1802.

In the latter part of the Sentence, Mr. O Flaherty is not so clear as might have been expected.

As to this man Murcercach or Mauritius O'Neal, I have shewed the time of his Death already from Sir James Ware; who, when he addeth in the same place, "atqui is (i. e. Murcercachus) Regnum non inijt ante annum 1157." must be understood with reserve & caution, because in the same book pag. 211. speaking about the Foundation of the Monastery of Newry, he saith immediately "Mauritius Mac-Loghlin Rex Hiberniæ fundavit—anno 1153."

In the Annals of Boyl I find mention of him about A.D. 1165. "Eo ead' mac m'ic c Duindlebbi ri Ulad do dallad la Múrcetac' mi'c mi'c Laicland." And a little after, namely about A.D. 1167. conformable to Sr. James Ware, "Múrcetac' mac Neill mac mi'c Laicland ri Erend, occitús ead." This Prince was in his time styled King of Ireland, as appeareth by the last Citation; but is not so called in my Lords MS. which fureath with what O Flaherty writes, Ogyg. pag. 440. "A.D. 1156. Múrcertus Mac Loceluin Niellí filius, Tordelvacho O Conor fuccellit Regno Hyberniæ, &c. which may unfold the Mystery in the last Paragraph, where Sr. James Ware asserts that he was not King (i. e. chief King, or Monarch of the Irish) before A.D. 1155."

7. Causal. O Connor King of Ulidia. Causal mē Conchobur pū Ulob. We have already had formation of this Kingdom, to which I think I need not add many Citations from Giraldus Cambrensis, & others, who make frequent mention of the fame & of its Princes. Only one I think I may take notice of from another Author which will show, that after the Conquest thereof by the English, (or the Submission of the Irish) the Name still remained. For Jocefine of Furnes in his Prologue to the above-cited book faith,—" Illustriſſimi nihilominus Joannis de Curſi ULIDIE Principis ſuper hac re petito adiungitur."—

As to the Extent of this little Kingdom, Mr. Conry differed somewhat in Opinion from Mr. Rory O Flaherty; when he assured me that it comprehended no more than a Part of the County of Down, with some other Towns.

Nor will it be a wonder that fo small a Portion of Ireland should be called a Kingdom; since (as it was hinted before) the Chief of numerous Clans, were generally fo lyled. This may be very easily proved from the writings both of Irish Native- and of Foreigners. I will therefore bring no more than two Influences. The one from Benedictus Petrobrugensis M.S. Cotton. Jylivs. A. 11. fol. 39. "Venerunt itaq; ad eum (i. e. R. Henricum 11.) Rex Corenfis, et Rex de Limerie, et Rex de Osereria, et Rex de Mida, et Raghernalus de Waterforda, et Omnes alii de Hybernica prater Regem Cognacat." The other is in a MS. in the Archiepiscopall Library at Lambeth (no. xx. fol. 172. b.) where, among divers Notes out of the Lord of Hethes Chronicle, is this that followeth.

"Mac Moroughe King of Leinfelr, Dermot mac Carrie King of Corke, Donald O Breen King of Limerike, O Carroll King of Uriell, Mac Shaglin King of Ophalie, O Rwrke King of Methe, O Neale King of Ulfter, and Rory O Connor Dune King of Connaght and Monarche of Irland, furrendred all their Titles to the King-domes of Irland unto K. Henry 11. and became his Vassalls."

—[This seems to have been taken from Giraldus Cambrensis, & is also cited in Camden's Britannia edit. Gibb. pag. 973. where a Note at the bottom declares (but why I know not) that O Rorke was not King of Meath.]

CAT. HARL. VOL. II.

Num. 1802.

Of this Cuulad, I have not hitherto found any thing, as I remember: which want of succels I do not to much attribute to the obfcurity of the Man, as to my want of proper books, and the Imperfectness of feveral that I faw, eſpecially in the Library of the Honourable Mr Bidges, where four or five (principal books for this occaſion) were imperfect in the very places where I wanted their help. However, in the Annals of Ayl I find mention of Duinleibi Ri Ulad about A. D. 1165. and in the ſame Book about A. D. 1171. "Magnus m'e Duinleibi Ri Ulad moritur."

8. Murchad the Son of Malachias King of Meath; Murchadh ua Maelrechlaib rex Mide.

Of this man I find mention as followeth.

In the Annals of Boyl. about A. D. 1143.

Murçad ua Mailsec[~] dergabail la Tordelbac[~]

War. Antiq. Hibern. pag. 192. Beñtif. "Sunt qui fundatum tradunt anno 1146. 14 Januarij; alij anno 1148, et alii anno 1151. sed non magna est differentia. Fundavit et dotavit Murchardus O Melachlin Midia Regulus."

In the Annals of Boyl, about A. D. 1152.
Murcad ua Mailfec~ Ri Mediæ Moritur.

In the Cottonisation between K. Henry 17 & Rory o Connor King of Connaught, A.D. 1175, recorded by Benet of Peterburgh (MSS. Cotton. JVL. A. 11. & VIT. E. 17), as also in Roger Hoveden from Benet; mention is made of this man, in these words in the Coptic first cited,—"et Mida, cum omnibus pertinentiis suis, sicut unquam Murcl at ua Malleth lachlin eam melius & plenius tenuit." The Name being a hard Name, no wonder if it was written corruptly by an English Monk. But in Mr. Rymer's Fœdera Vol. 1. pag. 41. (where the Convention is given from this MS.) it is printed yet more corruptly,

I think I need not mention (having already omitted divers notes of this kind) that his Son did not long survive him. For in the Annals of Boyle, about A.D. 1154. is this Entry, "Eñ Mael Sechnaill m'c Murchaid u Mail Sechnaill Ri Midi, moritur." m'

9. Dermot the Son of Murchad (or Mac-Morogh) King of Leinster; Diarmuid m'c Murchada pug lagen. Of this Prince (from whom, as I remember, my Lord is descended) there is mention enough in the English & Welsh writings, as well as in the Irish. From them all I shall transcribe only these that follow.

In the Annals of Boyl, about A. D. 1141.
 "Mathi Lagen doi pod ar Diarmait m'c Murcada."

The King of Ireland & O Ruarc, & O Mul Secklyn came to Figh dorchá; M c Murragh came to the Kings house, and gave him his own desire of Pledges, and gave to O Ruairk in luc of his Wife, 25 Nobles in Gold."

Annal. Buil. circ. A. D. 1171. "Diarmait mac Fingal Murch'ada Ri Lagen & Gall, moritur."

10. Connor O Brian, King of Munster; Conchobor ua h'nam p'g Oumun.

Of him I have hitherto found only this Note, beside that abovementioned (in pag. 200.) from the Continuation of Tigernach's Annals, which shew him to have been Chief King of Munster A. D. 1138.

Annal. Buil. circ. A. D. 1142. "Concuber ua Brian Ardri Muman, mortuus est."

11. Tirlough O Connor, King of Connaught; Tairbelbach ua Conchobair p'g Connacchio.

Of this Prince there is more Evidence, viz.

In the Annals of Ulster, (with M' Brydges, Vol. XLIX.) at the years 1127. 1128. &c. mention is made of Tirlagh O Connor, Gil-Christ O Hegni King of Fermanagh & Arch-King of Argialli; Tigernan O Roirk, &c.

Warrei Adverfar. MS. Brydg. 1156. "Tirdelvacus O Conner Rex Conacchio & Hiberniae, anno aetatis suae 68. regni sui 50. in pace quievit, & sepultus est juxta altare S. Ciarani. Cui successit Rodericus filius Tirdelbaci O Conner."

Warrei Antiq. Hibern. pag. 29. "Tirdelvacus O-Conner Rex Conacchio Monarchiam (i. e. totius Hyberniae) adeptus, eam tenuit usque ad annum 1157. quo mortem obiit, aetatis suae 68. sepultus Clonmucnoife, in Ecclesia Cathedrali, prope summum Altare S. Ciarani." Some account of his Funeral may be seen in O Flaherty, which was not material for me to transcribe.

12. Gilla the Son of Liach was Vicar, or a Noted Officer, or Dignitary belonging to Armagh; gilla m'e laic m'e m'e Quabpi hi com'pbar' Dairpne—

The words in my Lords MS. which express this Dignity or Office, are Comaphar' Dairpne, which (as above is shewn) Mr. Toland translated by Praepositus Ecclesiae Sui. Patricij (Praepositus was an Officer in Benedictine Monasteries) and Mr. Conry by Vicarius Patricij. Now if St. Patrick's Vicar at Armagh, was the chief Person in the Place, as St. Peter's Vicar at Rome, then our Gilla was Archbishop of Armagh. And it seems to me that the same Person might be both Archbishop of Armagh, & Comorb or Corb of St. Patrick, as well as Dr. Fell was Bishop of Oxford, & Dean of Christ Church at the same time. This might be no disparagement to an Arch-bishop, considering what a learned Irish-man (cited by Sr. Hen. Spelman from Arch-Bp. Ussher) saith, "Corbana us five Plebanatus, Dignitas est; et modo ad Regem pertinet, fed antea ad Papam. In Matrice Ecclesia debet necessario esse;—omneq; Decimas pertinentes ad hanc debet habere. Et Beneficia adjuncta huic, ipsius sunt; eorumq; Conferentiam habet et praesentationem. Dictum hoc nomen quia populo et plebi Ecclesiasticae Matricis Ecclesiae praefuit.—Primum Stallum in sua Ecclesia habet; habet etiam Stallum vacuum in Ecclesia Cathedrali et Vocem in omni Capitulo tam publico quam privato. Inferiuntur Romano Registro, ideoq; Dignitas est." And by what I have before cited (Catal. sect. 19.) Kellegh was Corb-Patric, & is also styled at the same Time Arch-bishop of the West of Europe.

But to return to our Gilla, whom Mr. Conry calls the son of Liach, & Mr. Toland (from his ancestor) Mac Ruairi; I find thus much of him.

In the Annals of Boyl, about A. D. 1174. "Gilla mic Liach garba Patric, quievit."

In Monast. Angl. Tom. II. pag. 1031. Gilla mac Liag a Arch-Bp. of Armagh, is witnesses to a Grant of Maurinus mac Loclain, King of Ireland.

Num. 1802, 1804.

I had indeed much rather to have found it 800 years old, which would undoubtedly have raised 1806.

A parchment Book in large 4to, wherein are contained, 1. Postills upon the Psalter, & Cantica Sacra in Old English.

The Psalter is of that Translation of St. Hierom, which is commonly called GALLICANUM, and prevailed at length here in England more than either of the others.

The Method used is thus all along; first a Latin Verse; then a Verbal Translation of the same in Old English; then the Postill or Explanation of the same, which is figurative enough. The First Leaf is wanting.

After the Psalter, follow the Cantica Sacra; as I said before, being,

2. Canticum Iſaiæ, "Confitebor tibi Domine." (Is. lxi. 1.) 155.
3. Canticum Ezechie, "Ego dixi in dimidio dierum." (Is. xxxviii. 10.) 152. b.
4. Canticum Annæ. 153. b.
5. Canticum Moysis. "Cantemus Domino gloriose." (Exod. xv. 1.) 154. b.
6. Canticum Abacuc. 156.
7. Canticum Moysis. "Audite cæli quæ loquor." (Deut. xxxii. 1.) 158.
8. The Hymn "Te Deum laudamus." 161.
9. Canticum trium puerorum. 162.
10. Canticum Zachariæ. 165.
11. Canticum Mariæ. 166.
12. Canticum Symeonis. 167.
13. The Creed "Quicumque vult." 167. b.

So far concerning the Psalter, Cantica Sacra, and the Postills upon them. The author of these same Postills seemeth to have been John Wycliffe in his younger Years. In the Work he generally followeth the Doctrine of the Roman Church then received; but yet with some dislike of particular Matters or Persons. Thus, for example he speaketh against Fallz, & Wakes, fol. 1. col. 2. Against the Monks & Friars, fol. 166. Against the Couvetousnes of Priests & Prelats, fol. 86. col. 2. & fol. 87. col. 2 and also concludeth the whole work with a touch upon the superior Clergy, fol. 170. b. This may shew that he was then somewhat disgusted at the Clergy in general, and at their Proceedings. What Opinion he had of himself at the same time, may be gathered from this Hint, fol. 86. b. col. 1. "Et mandavit nubibus desuper, et januas celi aperuit. — pat is: He bad to Holy Prechours pat has of Ilim pat sei Preche. And poo zatis of Heven, pat is, Holy Writ he opynde to poo pat Preches or Writs; not to othere pat are icedier to chalyange opre Mennys Dedys þen to do homself oght pat goode is."

In the Kings Library at Cotton-houſe, is a Work of this kind, seeming pretty agreeable, the Preface whereof bears the Name of Richard Hampole.

Then follow in Latin, by another Hand, 14. Tractatus de Informatione simplicium Sacerdotum. fol. 170. b. (i. e. Constitutio Joh. Pecani Arch. Cant.)

Num. 1806, 1807.

15. Testamentum Johannis Uixon de Elyngton in Com. Huntynndon. dat. A. D. 1462. 172 b.
 16. Testamentum Margeriz Colynge. dat. 1 Maji A. D. 1493. ibid.
 Being disturbed, I forgot to add, That this Book evidently appears to have lain long in the Water. Thus the famous Durham Gospels in the Cottonian Library Nero D. iv. were recovered from the Sea. So also the Comment of Johannes de Lathbury in Hieremiam in the Library at Sion College were taken from the bottom of the Sea. And the Works of Mr. Frith found in the Belly of a great Fish, &c.

1809.

A thin Vellum-Book neatly bound in large 4to, sent at the end of the Year 1712, with a Letter (now fallen at the beginning) to my Lord, with a Desire of being preserved in this Library; by Mr John Bowack; then & still Writing-master to Westminster-School. A Person of a good Character, & reputed an able Master. It containeth,

1. Two Drawings, done with Indian Ink in so handsome a manner, as not to misbecome any, whose Employment does not depend upon the constant practice of Designing.

Divers Specimens of our English Writing & Printing-Hands; as the Alamode, Italian; the Square-Text, English, Roman, & Italian Letters; which although they may not come up to the Character he once gave me of them, viz. That they are written as well as Hand & Pen can do them; are yet written well enough; and plainly shew, that his Genius led him to Letters, as well as Figures.

All that I observe upon this part of his Performance is, that it might have come forth better, if he had before studied what it is, in general, that makes Writing look beautiful: and if in his Imitations, he had kept more strictly to the essential parts of his Letters; & without running riot.

1810. Codes

Num. 1810.

1810.

Codex, ex parte longe-maxima, membranaceus in 4to^o per totum v. r. Græcis manibus scriptus et inluminatus; in quo continentur,

1. Tractatulus explanatorius de Lectionibus Evangelicis, et Evangelistis; ejus hęc est Rubrica, Δόξα τῇ βασιλείᾳ τοῦ πατρὸς τοῦ ἐν οὐρανοῖς καὶ τοῦ υἱοῦ τοῦ ἐκ δεξιῶν τοῦ πατρὸς καὶ τοῦ ἁγίου πνεύματος ἀμήν. πᾶσι τοῖς ἀγαπώμενοις καὶ πιστοῖς κατὰ κράτος.

2. Δόξα τῇ βασιλείᾳ τοῦ πατρὸς τοῦ ἐν οὐρανοῖς καὶ τοῦ υἱοῦ τοῦ ἐκ δεξιῶν τοῦ πατρὸς καὶ τοῦ ἁγίου πνεύματος ἀμήν. πᾶσι τοῖς ἀγαπώμενοις καὶ πιστοῖς κατὰ κράτος.

Μεγάλη Κυριακή, ἡ Dies Dominicus Sacre Refurrectionis. Du Cang.

3. Μηνολόγιον, καὶ δόξα τῇ ἐκκλησίᾳ τῶν ἁγίων. Ο. MENOLOGIA apud Græcos non alia sunt, quam quæ Latinis Martyrologia vel Calendaria. Leo Allat. et ex eo Suicer. Hinc igitur patet Tractatulum supramemoratum (N^o 2.) Menologi etiam nomine recte nuncupari. De id genus scripto, in Libro quodam Epistolarum invento audi Leonem Allatum, sic differentem, "Epistolis adnectitur MENOLOGION, in quo, ab initio Septembris, nomina Sanctorum singulis diebus recensentur illisq; Epistola propria" (ut hic Evangelium) "in Officiis recitata subiungitur."

Quod autem attinet ad primum Tractatum; apud Græcos vocari videtur Evangelistarium. Sic Leo Allat. de Libris Ecclesiasticis. Græc.

Post Evangelium, additur 'Εὐαγγελιστάριον περιζῶν τὸν τῶν ἐκκλησιῶν διαδοχὴν, πᾶσι ἀρχεται, καὶ πᾶσι καταλήγειται. κ. τ. λ.

Deinde sequitur Exemplar Græcum quatuor Evangeliorum, antiquum ac bonæ Notæ; cum Prefationibus, Picturis, et Typico, &c. hoc ordine.

4. Prefatio in Evangelium D. Matthæi, desumpta ex Opere Cosmæ Egyptij, "Indicopleustæ" cui Titulus "Christianorum Opinio de Mundo, sive Topographia Christi na."

Nec Cosmæ nostri Scripta integra, nec Codicem presentem, unquam vidi D. Joannes Millius; alioquin proculdubio Prefationes, ut ita dicam, ejusdem in singula Evangelia, cum infinitis fere et Libris Biblicis citationibus, in Testamentum suum inferuisset. Ipse enim tempore, preter fragmenta ejusdem nonnulla Historica atq; Geographica in Apographo Vossiano laitantia (a Thevenotio tandem edita) nihil omnino in universis Angliæ Bibliothecis exstat: solum si excipias Prefationem (ex opere supra-dicto excerptam) in Pfalterium, quod quidem habetur in Codice illo Bibliothecæ Bédicaniæ, qui inter Baroccianos locum obinet decimum-quintum. Totum autem Cosmæ Opus, una cum alijs quibusdam Eusebij et Athanasij ineditis, magno eruditiorum beneficio, publici Juris fecit Parisijs A.D. 1706. Bernardus de Montfaucon, Benedictinus e Congregatione S. Mauri Monachus per-eruditus.

5. Παραγραφὴ, scil. ejusdem Cosmæ locus priori inhærens. (vid. Lib. v. pag. 245.)

6. Prefatio alia de Evangelij et quatuor Evangelistis, ex Ireneæ.

Locus extat in Libro III. adversus Hæreses: i. e. Editionis Feu-ardentianæ. pagg. 258. & 229. ubi Verba Græca desiderantur

7. Τῶν ἁγίων καὶ τῶν ἐκκλησιῶν συμφωνία. Scil. Eusebij Cæsariensis notissima ad Carpianum Epistola.

8. Canones Eusebiani Litteris aureis (seu potius coccineis deauratis) ac ceruleis exarati; cum varij generis Inluminacionibus.

9. Τῶν ἁγίων καὶ τῶν ἐκκλησιῶν συμφωνία. Scripta primitus fuerunt Litteræ quamplurium Rubricarum hujus Codicis, liquore Coccineo, quas postea Auro fulgentes adhibito reddiderunt. Ad hunc modum Capitula memorata leguntur exarata.

Num. 1816.

10. Effigies D. Matthæi seu Minio scribentis, Græcè more elaborata, cum Inscriptiōne 'Ο ἁγίου ματθαίου.

11. Precatiuncula ad D. N. Jesum Christum, Græcè, litteris Coccineis, in superioribus oris.

12. Pictura, in qua representatur Nativitas Domini Salvatoris nostri.

13. Τὸ κατὰ Ματθαίου ἄγιον 'Εὐαγγέλιον. Superioribus ac inferioribus Oris, conficiuntur διὰ τῶν ἀγαπώμενων per totum Codicem Evangeliorum, e Typico forsan desumptæ, litterisq; miniatis scriptæ: perinde atq; Voces ἀρχὴ, τέλος, ad initia ac Fines eandem Lectionum.

Insuper superioribus marginibus, cernuntur ipsa Κεφάλαια: nec non in lateralibus, Numeri Eusebiani Canonibus correspondentes, Litteris Coccineis deauratis.

14. Pictura Transfigurati Jesu, cum Moyse & Eliâ; ac Apostolis tribus: madore læsa.

15. Alia, quæ Cœnam Dominicam ob oculos posuit.

16. De Sancto Marco, ex Opere laudato Cosmæ Indicopleustæ.

17. Παραγραφὴ. Ex eodem.

18. Precatiuncula in D. Marci Evangelium, in Editione Milliana desiderata; characteribus Coccineis deauratis.

19. Κεφάλαια τῶν κατὰ Μάρκον 'Εὐαγγελίων, Litteris consimilibus.

20. Versus Iambici de S. Marco, eisdem Characteribus.

21. Effigies Evangelistæ, cum Epigraphæ 'Ο ἁγίου ματθαίου.

22. Τὸ κατὰ Μάρκον ἄγιον 'Εὐαγγέλιον.

23. Pictura qua figuratur ὁ βαπτιστής.

24. Pictura Decollationis D. Johannis Baptistæ.

25. Pictura Ascensionis D. N. J. C.

26. De D. Luca, Testimonium Cosmæ Indicopleustæ; ex Opere supradicto.

27. Ejusdem παραγραφὴ.

28. Prefatiuncula in D. Lucam; apud Millium eisdem desiderata.

29. Κεφάλαια τῶν κατὰ Λουκὰν 'Εὐαγγελίων; coccineis litteris deauratis.

30. Imago Divi Lucæ Scribentis, cum Titulo 'Ο ἁγίου Λουκά.

31. Τὸ κατὰ Λουκὰν ἄγιον 'Εὐαγγέλιον.

32. Effigies B. V. Mariæ, cum Angelo Gabriele de Conceptione ejus annuntiante.

33. Pictura quæ adumbratur, presentatio pueruli Jesu Symeoni & Annæ, per Mariam et Josephum, in Templo.

NB. Genealogiam Jesu Christi, hoc in exemplari, (scil. fol. 149. b. & 150.) perperam (haud secus ac in alijs quampluribus) exhibitur; de quibus sic D. Millius pag. 155. col. 1. — Atque hinc postea factum, ut Nomina in Columellis—e regione sibi invicem opposita Calamo rectè per transcurrentes, ut ita dicam, ac continuas Lineas excipientes scilicet Scribæ, misere omnia miscuerint atque turbarent.

34. Pictura DORMITIONIS, ut Græci volunt, B. V. Mariæ jam demortuæ, cum D. N. J. C. Animam ejus gestante, adstantibus plurimis lugentibus, &c. cum Inscriptiōne Η Κοίμησις.

Κοίμησις. Festum DORMITIONIS B. Virginis vocatur ἐν τῷ τῶν κοίμησις. Ist. d. 15 Aug. ut c. titum Romana quam Orientalis Ecclesia hoc Festum celebrat. Latini sæpius A SUMPTIONEM vocant, Græci κοίμησις D. VIRGINEM: quæ eorum dicitur nomen et essentiam in Coelis B. Virgini credentibus; vel saltem utrumq; ad eundem diem referantur. Suicer.

35. Pictura Crucifixionis D. N. J. C. cum B. V. Mariâ, et D. Johanne Apostolo adstantibus.

Num. 1810, 1811.

26. Pictura Reflexionis Christi (ut aiunt Græci) quæ videlicet a Cruce fuit exemptus: nec non Sepulturæ ejusdem, cum Titulo, Αποκαθήλωσις, ἑνταριαμός 205. b.
37. Pictura Resurrectionis Dominicæ; ubi representatur Christus quasi Adamum ab Inferis reducens. 206.
28. Locus Cofmæ Indico-pleutæ de D. Joanne Evangelista. 209. b.
30. Præfatiuncula in Evangelium D. Johannis; quæ (peinde atq; aliæ omnes alte-memoratæ, in D. Joannis Nollij Testamenti Græci Editione) desideratur. 210. b.
40. Ἐξέλιξις τῆς ἐκείνης τῆς ἀποκαθήλωσις, Characteribus coccinei, deauratis. ibid.
41. Effigies D. Joannis binæ; Evangelistæ scilicet, et Theologi Apocalypicos Auctoris. 211. b.
42. Τὴ κατὰ Ἰωάννην ἀγιον Ευαγγέλιον. 212.
43. Pictura in qua representantur Duodecim Apostoli sedentes, super quos descendit Spiritus Sanctus velut Ignis: cum Titulo, Ἡ πεντηκοστή. 230.
- Πεντηκοστή*, scilicet ἡμέρα; quinquagesimus dies. Sic appellatum est a Græcis Festum quoddam in Ecclesia Judaica celebrari solitum, Aet. 11. 1. & xx. 16.—1. Cor. xvi. 8. in memoriam promulgatæ Legis in Monte Sinai quod celebratur quinquagesimo a Paschate die. Suicer.

Formula Libellorum Supplicum et aliorum Instrumentorum in Curia Ecclesiæ Cathedralis Atrabatenensis usitatorum, circa A. D. 1634. cum Refercriptis.

Accedunt Epistolæ et alia Scripta ad Nunciaturam Belgicam pertinentia.

1813.

A paper Book in 4to, at the beginning whereof I find the following Title,

1. A Relation or Memoriall, abstracted out of Sir Jerom Horley his Travells, Imploiments, Services, and Negotiations, obserued & written with his owne hand, wherein he spent the most part of Eighteen Years time. First dedicated to that worthy and of Right, Honorable of Memorie Sir Francis Walsingham Knight, Principall Secretarie of Estate, and to other his woorthye loving Friends & Allies that did desire an account of the fame. And by them since thought not un-worthye the publishing to such others as take delight to Read forren Histories.

Jer. Horley.

This Treatise is undoubtedly of Sir Jeroms owne Hand-Writing.

At the end, in the same hand, is,

2. A little Collection of Moral Sentences, in divers Languages; as Russian, German, Latin, English, &c.

1814.

Codex chartaceus et tenuis in 4to (Græcè verò scriptus) quem haud ita pridem emit Illustrissimus Dominus meus de D. Alexandro Cunninghamio Juniore, Scoto-Britanno: in quo continentur.

1. Ἡ ἐκ τῆς ἱστορίας τοῦ ἀνδρὸς ἡμετέρου. 1.
- Non solum gaudet hoc Exemplar interlinearibus Scholijs primâ manu conscriptis; verum etiam alijs, una cum Emendationibus, et Notis marginalibus Viri cujusdam perdocti, superioris (ut videtur) seculi, quæ nondum quod sciam, lucem viderunt.
2. De Dionysio Periegete deq; inter Geographiam et Chorographiam discrepantia. 43.
- Exstat hæc Adnotatio in Bibliothecæ Bodlejanæ Codice Laudino, cujus Notæ sunt C. 31, uti colligo ex Editione Dionysij nostri Thwaitesiana.
3. De duodecim Ventis, cum eorum Nominibus. ibid.

1815.

Codex chartaceus in 4to, quem (cum alijs) emit Illustrissimus Dominus meus de D. Joanne Ay-mone.

Totus est aut Arabicus aut Turcicus: quin et in sine legitur hæc Adnotatio, Hic Liber Formularum Characterē KIRMA dicto confectus est. Curiosa multa continet; et quæ in illo videntur Epistolæ, stylo elegantissimo elabo. ta sunt. Quas mihi Turcarum Imperator s. Imperator ad Clah Tamas Perfarum Regem prævalent alijs, et Respon-siones ejusdem Regis ad Suleimanum maxime existimantur.

Num. 1817. 1819.

Quartum Scripturae Arabicae genus KIRMA, cujus usus fere tantum est in Tabulis accepti & expensi Imperatoris Turcarum. Hoc minus attente consideratum, similis videtur esse Scripturae Vulgari Judaeorum quam Nischi: hinc enim constat exiguis, nec invicem connexis. Haece doctissimus Thomas Erpenius in Gram. Arab. Lib. 1. ubi Septem Arabicae Scripturae recenset genera; omissa tamen omnino mentione vetustissimorum illorum Characterum, quos Arabes vocant KURHI, quibus primitus scriptus fuit Al Coranus, perinde atque Poemata Gentilium Arabum, &c.

1816.

Codex chartaceus, tenuis, et Italica manu scriptus, in 4to, quo continentur,

128. Historia vetustissima, et Vita satis admirabilis Sanctissime Matris Annæ; cum autentico Sancti Cirilli Testimonio.

129. In Concilio Ephesino quod fuit Virginei partus anno 428. ubi, loco Celestini Papæ Primi refidebat Cirillus Patriarcha Alexandrinus Ordinis Patrum Gloriosissime Dei Genitricis Mariæ de Monte Carmeli, jubente eadem Dei Genitrice, ut in Annalibus reperitur, Veterum Patrum, superato Nestorio Hæretico per eundem Cirillum, qui dicebat Virginem Mariam solum Hominem peperisse: idem Cirillus protulit in Medium Genealogiam antiquissimam de Progenie Virginis Mariæ. Pro cuius Victorie recommendatione ibi diffinitum fuit, quod Fratres sui Ordinis Carmeli, merito Fratres Beate Dei Genitricis Mariæ de Monte Carmeli nuncupari deberent: erat autem Genealogia hanc continens Sententiam. "ANTE Xpi Incarnationem anno circiter 70mo, erat in Judæa Civitate Sephor, non longe a Nazareth, Puella quedam Deo multum devota Nomine Emerenciana, orta de Tribu David. Hec in timore Dei vivere fatagens, super omnes virtutes castitatem Corporis et Animæ studiose servabat. Consecruit itaque crebro, de parentum Licentia Sanctorum Helie & Helisei discipulos qui in Monte Carmelicelebem vitam ducebant, visitare."

Distinctus est Tractatus in Capita 52. et definit post Mortem S. Annæ illæ præfate Emerencianæ, ac Matris B. V. MARIE. Quinetiam, per totum omnino constat patissimum esse Commentum, ab improbo quodam Antiquitati prorsus radi Falsario, è Proto-Evangeliis S. Jacobi, atq; ex illo genus Fursure Legendario, in Laudem Glorielang; Religionis Carmelitane confarcinatam. In fine hanc, quæ sequitur, Adnotationem posuit Baleus, "Nescio an sit plus adhuc de hac Vita; nichil amplius habebatur in antiquo Exemplari."

1820.

An Heraldical Book in 4to, written & putt together in a very confused manner. It contains,
 1. An Alphabetical Table of the Names of Families mentioned therein. At the beginning.

Num. 1820—1822.

2. Armes of the Suffolk-Gentry (with the Quarterings & Crests of divers) hastily tricked by Mr. John Gough the Painter-Stainer. Together with short Notes, shewing by what Officers of Armes many of them were granted. 1. 42.
 Among these I also find,
 3. An Abstract of the Grant of Armes to Robert Waryne of Long-Melford in Suffolk, by Thomas Hawley Clarentius. 28 June 1538. 5. & 44.
 4. Bill of Painters Goods bought. 5. b.
 5. Trick of Sudbury Towne-Seal. 6. b.
 6. The Visitation of SUFFOLK taken (NARRATIVELY) by John Raven Richmond-Herald for William Camden Clarenceux, A. D. 1611. 11.
 Herein I also find,
 7. The Armes of the Town of St. Edmundes-Bury, as granted by the same Will. Camden. ibid.

 c. Grant of Armes & Crest unto Thomas Chelton of Mylden-hall in Suffolk, by Robert Cooke Clarenceux. dat. 30 November 1587. 48.
 10. Armes (hastily tricked) belonging to divers ancient Families of other Counties besides that of Suffolk. 55.
 11. Pedegree of Hobart, in Schen-e. 63.
 12. Coat & Crest as granted to Thomas Malby of Dover-court in Essex, by Will. Camden Clarenceux, 29 May, 1612. 79.
 13. Grant of Armes to Maister Thomas Barrow, Clerk, by Yrlande Kynge of Armes. dat. 6 Januar. ann. 16 Edw. iv. 71. b.
 14. Grant of a Difference to the Armes of Mr. Thomas Barrowe Clerk, & his Brother Richard Barrowe of Wyntonhe Merchante of the Staple, by John Wrythe, Garter. dat. 22 Octobre, ann. 11 Henr. Septimi. 71. b.
 I have seen the name of this John Wrythe (whose Family afterwards wrote themselves Wriothesley) written thus, Wryght. Now by our Ancestors th was pronounced as i (as amongst Foreigners at this day) and therefore the old Pronunciation might continue in Wrygthe.
 15. Confirmation of Armes & Crest unto William Barowe of Wyntonhe in Norfolk, by William Dethick Garter. dat. 20 April 1596. 69. b.
 16. Defcent of Lucas, written by Mr. Mundy the Painter-Stainer. 67.
 17. Painters Goods bought, for the Funeral of Mr. Mountacute. 7. b.

1821.

A modern Book in 4to, thus entitled, "The most Remarkable History of JOSEPH, mystically expounded & interpreted, according as it is laid downe in the Holy Scripture; beginning at the 36th Chapter of Genesis, and continuing to the end of that Book; wherein is represented & portrayed, the exact & lively Pattern of a true resigned Christian; together with the whole Proceffe of a Regenerate Man according to the Mystery of the New Birth in Christ, both in his Tryall & Perseverance, as also in his Honor & Exaltation. Written by Jacob Bohme, Teutonicus. Translated out of the German Tongue, Anno Domini 1644."

De his insuper audiendus est Joannes Aymon, in ipsa Curia haud ita pridem Prothonotarius Apostolicus (qui præsentem cum duobus insequentibus Codicem, ex ejusdem Curie Archivis, demortuo Innocentio Papa XII. clam abstulerit) in Gallico suo Libro Hæc-Comitis edito A. D. 1707. cui Titulus TABLEAU DE LA COUR DE ROME. pag. 186.

"Nous avons fait voir au Chapitre VII. de quelle manière on taxe par ce Brefs les Autels où l'on dit que les Messes ont plus de Virtù ed d'Efficace pour les Vivans & pour les Morts, à Proportion que le Privilege d'un plus grand Nombre d'Indulgences à son fonds composé d'un plus riche Trésor. Il ne sera pas hors d'œuvre de faire maintenant remarquer ici, qu'il y a plusieurs de ces Brefs taxés, qui contiennent les Dispenfes de Mariage pour tous les Degrés de Parenté, depuis le premier jusques au quatrième inclusivement; ou l'on comprend une certaine Affinité Spirituelle entre les Parrains & les Marraines; le Mariage entre ceux qui sont Parens au Premier & Second Degré est défendu par la Loi Divine; cependant, on en Dispense pour de l'Argent. Il y a des autres Brefs taxés pour la Legitimation des Enfans Naturels; pour ceux qui veulent recevoir les Ordres Sacrés avant l'Age requis par le Droit Canon; ou qui ont quelque Membre mutilé, ou quelque Difformité, comme seroit d'être Borgue, ou Manchot, Boiteux, ou Bossu. On taxe aussi, par des Brefs, les Ecclesiastiques Bigames, les Moines Bâtards, ceux qui disent la Messe sans être Prêtres, et ceux qui battent le Clercs. Il y a d'autres taxes pour les Homicides Volontaires & Casuels, pour les Enchanteurs & Sorciers; pour les Heretiques, et les Apostats; pour les Sacrileges, & les Parjures; pour les Simoniaques, et les Excommuniés; pour les Adulteres and les Paillardes; pour les Voleurs & les Brigands. Tous ces Taxes varient selon la Différence de Cas & des Personnes, qui augmente ou diminue le Prix des Brefs.

"S'il est étonnant de voir tous les Crimes les plus atroces permis, ou du moins toléré pour de l'Argent, on ne doit pas être moins surpris de ce qu'il y a aussi des Brefs taxés pour des Bonnes Oeuvres & des Exercices de Pieté, qu'il n'est pas permis de faire sans Dispense; comme, par Exemple, de dire la Messe sur des Autels Portatifs; de reciter les Prieres qui sont à la Fin d'un Office le premieres, & celles qui sont au Commencement les derniers; comme qui diroit les Pseaumes de Vêpres avant ceux de Matines. Il faut aussi paier la Confirmation des Statuts d'une Eglise Cathedrale; la Permission de construire une Chapelle; d'y faire le Service Divin, administrer les Sacramens, enterrer les Morts, & y apporter les Reliques de quelque Saint. On ne peut aussi porter en Procession le Sacrament de l'Autel qu'on appelle le Corps de Jesus Christ plus d'une fois l'année, sans une Permission speciale, qui coute chèque jour davantage, a proportion que la Pompe Sacrée devient plus Magnifique. C'est aussi par des Brefs taxés que le Pape donne la Permission aux Juifs d'ériger des Synagogues Publiques, & aux plus Riches, d'en avoir dans leurs Maisons particulieres moiennant quelque bon Tribut. Sans cela, aucun d'eux ne peut aussi exercer la Medicine, ni trafiquer. On peut dire enfin, qu'il n'y a chose ou monde qu'on n'accorde pour de l'argent. On fait re trancher les Messes, quand le Revenu est trop petit; on fait dresser des Boutiques dans Allées des Eglises, pour les loier; on fait transporter & vendre des Merchandises de Contrebande par tout, contre les Desseses des Seigneurs Temporels, en frustrant les Rois & les Empereurs de leurs Droits, autant qu'on le peut: et tout cela se fait en Vertu des Brefs que le Pape accorde pour s'enrichir au prejudice de toutes les Puissances de la Terre."

Num. 1850.

 Sequitur Tractatus, manu Italica longe recentiore, descriptus: cui Titulus,

31. Taxa Mercedum Cancellarie Episcopalis Ferrariæ, pro Causis tam Civilibus quam Criminalibus; tam Ordinarijs quam Extraordinarijs. 18.

N. B. Ducatus Ferrariensis Dominus, etiam in Temporalibus, est Pontifex Romanus. Cum in presenti, simul ac in duobus Codicibus superioribus, plurima de Pœnitentiaria Cancellaria; Curie Romanæ habeantur scripta, de eisdem etiam audi Joannem Aymonem, in Gallico suo Libro cui Titulus, 'Tableau de la Cour de Rome,' his verbis differentem, pag. 172.—"Nous ne parlerons pas des abus qu'y s'y commettent, ni des profits caufels du Tour du Bâton, ou de la Baguette du Grand Penitencier, car tout cela est suffisamment connu, par la Taxe si scandaleuse de la Chancellerie, qui a été imprimée en diverses langues, & envoyée par toute la Chrétienté, dans laquelle on voit que l'Abolution des plus grands Crimes contre la Loy de Dieu, ne coûte pas grand Chose; mais que la moindre Contrevenction contre les Statuts des Papes, & les Dispences de quelque Reglement de la Discipline Ecclesiastique, ne sont accordées qu'à ceux qui ont le moi en de paier de grosses sommes; tellement, que pour de l'Argent, on obtient devant ce Tribunal, la Permission de faire tout ce qu'on veut. Le Mal, par ce moi en est changé en bien, et le bien en mal. Ces étranges Metamorphoses valent autant à la Chancellerie (dont nous allons parler) que seroit la Transmutation Metallique de la meilleure Pierre Philosophale qu'on puisse avoir dans le Monde, puis qu'un petit Sceau de Plomb, rend plusieurs Millions d'Or."

Horum et etiam alie-memoratorum facinorum Usus ac Exercitatio, solo Plenitudinis Papalis Potestatis Fundamento confitui videatur: de qua, ea quæ sequuntur Testimonia, nullo fere adhibito Labore, statim collegi.

Rescript. Johannis Papæ. "Imperatores Christiani subdere debent Executiones suas Ecclesiasticis Prelatis, non preferre." Decret. Gratian. Distinct. 96.

Idem.—"Pontificibus obsequi solere Principes Christianos, Decretis Ecclesie non suam preponere potestatem; Episcopis caput subdere Principes solum est, non de eorum Capitibus judicare." ibid.

Rescript. Gregorij Papæ ad Gelasium.—"Nam qualescunque Pontifices sint, est Error Humanitatis accedente, non tamen contra Religionem ullatenus excedentes, nullatenus videntur a Seculari Potestate posse procelli." ibid.

—"Et ut Christiani Imperatores pro Eternâ Vitâ Pontificibus indigerent; et Pontifices pro cursu Temporalium tantummodo rerum Imperialibus Legibus uterentur; quatenus Spiritus Actio a Carnalibus distaret Incurfus, et Deo militans minime se negotijs Secularibus implicaret: ac vicissim, non ille rebus Divinis preferere videretur, qui esset Secularibus negotijs implicatus." ibid.

Rescript. Greg. Papæ ad Hierem. Metens. Epum.—"Quis dubitet Sacerdotes Christi Regum & Principum, Omniumque Fidelium PATRES & MAGISTROS censeri? Nonne miserabilis Infantis esse cognoscitur, si Filius Patrem, Discipulus Magistrum sibi conetur subjugare, et iniquis obligationibus illum sue potestati subjugare, a quo credit non solum in Terra sed etiam in Celsis se ligari posse & solvi?" ibid.

Gelasius Papa Anastasio Imp.—"Beatus etiam Ambrosius (licet Sanctus, non tamen Universalis Ecclesie Episcopus) circa Principium sui Pastoralis scribens, Honor, Fratres, & sublimitas Episcopalis nullis poterit Comparationibus adequari. Si Regum fulgori comparari & Principum Diademati, longe erit inferius quam Plumbi metallum ad Auri fulgorem compares: quippe cum videas Regum Colla & Principum submitti genibus Sacerdotum, et osculata eorum dexterâ, Orationibus eorum se communicari vel muniri." ibid.

Num. 1852.

"Sed videtur quod Papa Major sit Imperatore, nam Jura Celsiss Imperij & Terreni Petro commissa Deo sunt.—Ipse enim utrumque Gladium habuit, ut dicit Evangelista Ecce duo Gladij sunt hic: quam Potestatem suis Successoribus transmissit,—verum Executionem Gladij Temporalis Imperatoribus & Regibus commisit Ecclesia, et tamen Jurisdictionem Causarum Civilium aliquando per Sacerdotes exercuit." Decretal. Greg. ix. Cap. 13. in Gloss.

"Sed Alanus & Tancredus dixerunt quod Imperator (licet Imperium a solo Deo dicatur processisse) Executionem Gladij Temporalis recipit ab Ecclesia. Ecclesia enim est Unum Corpus, ergo unum solum Caput dicitur habere. Item, Deus utroque Gladio usus est.—Item Moyses utrumque Gladium habuit; cujus Successor est Papa: præterea, Papa ipsum confirmat, & consecrat, & coronat, et eum deponit." ibid. Lib. iv. Cap. 7. in Gloss.

"Tamen si vellet (Papa) bene posset dispensare contra Concilium; qui Auctor illius Concilij imparem non habuit Potestatem,—et Papa major est quam Concilium." ibid. Lib. iii. Cap. 3. in Gloss.

"Nam contra Apostolum dispensat Papa—et contra Canones Apostoli—Item contra Vetus Testamentum, in Decimis non dandis.—Item, in Voto—Item, in Juramento." ibid. Lib. iii. Cap. 4. in Gloss.

Innocent iii.—"qui secundum plenitudinem potestatis, de jure, possumus supra Jus dispensare." ibid. Lib. iii. Tit. 8. De Prebendis.

"Cum Dominus Papa sit Judex Ordinarius singulorum." ibid. Lib. iii. Tit. 2. in Gloss.

"Quia Peccatum Paganitatis incurrit, quisquis Sedi Apostolicæ obedire contemnit." ibid. Lib. iii. Cap. 9. in Gloss.

Nicholaus Papa Mediolanensis,—"Non ergo quelibet Terrena Sententia, sed illud VERBUM quo constructum est Coelum & Terra, per quod denique Omnia condita sunt Elementa, Romanam fundavit Ecclesiam." Gratian. Part. i. Distinct. 22.

Decretal. Greg. ix. Lib. i. Tit. De Translat. Ep. Cap. 3. ad Verba "Non enim Homo sed Deus separat quos Romanus Pontifex (qui non PURI HOMINIS, sed VERI DEI vicem gerit in Terris) Ecclesiarum Necessitate vel Utilitate pensata, non HUMANA sed DIVINI potius auctoritate dissolvit." in Gloss. legitur, Veri DEI vicem. "Unde dicitur habere Celeste Arbitrium,—et ideo Naturam Rerum immutat, Substantialia unius Rei applicando alij,—et de Nullo, potest Aliquid facere,—et Sententia que Nulla est, facit Aliquam—quia, in his que vult, Ei est pro ratione Voluntas—Ipsæ enim potest supra Jus dispensare,—de Injustitia potest facere Justitiam, corrigendo Jura et mutando,—et plenitudinem obtinet Potestatis." ibid.

Nicholaus Papa i. ad Michaelem Imp. A. D. 863. "Satis evidenter ostenditur a Seculari Potestate nec ligari prorsus, nec solvi posse Pontificem; quem constat a Pio Principe Constantino (quod longe superius memoravimus) Deum appellatum; nec posse Deum ab Hominebus judicari, manifestum est." Grat. Decret. Part. i. Dist. 96.

Cæterum nullis Romanæ Curie omne genus Executionibus ac Oppressionibus plus quam Tyrannicis; prius de Monetis (hisce in Codicibus fere passim prædicatis) quam ad insequentem festinamus, pauca restant in medium proferenda.

i. De Hisc Monetis Adnotationes nonnullas manu suâ diversis in locis posuit, Nobis reliquit Joannes Aymonius, quas hec quasi in unum Fasciculum coactas, ob oculos ponere, opellæ nostræ pretium duxi.

1855.

A vellum Book in small fol. (bought of me) wherein are contained,

1. The Names of all those that are admitted to be Free of the Societie of Merchants of Englande trading into Spain & Portugall; whose Names are specified in the Charter graunted by King James, Anno Dom. 1605. Wherein the Five Honorable Earles that were Commissioners in the Treatie of Peace, and divers others speciall Officers & Servants to the Kinges Majestie who are by the Charter made Members of the faide Societie are placed together as they are named in the Charter; but all other Knights & Merchants are Alphabetically collected & placed accordinge to the Letters of their Names.
2. The Number of Freemen named in the faide Charter.
3. The Names of the First Assitants.
4. The Copie of a Charter graunted by our most Gracious Sovereigne Lord King James, to the President, Assitants, and Felloweshippe of Merchants of Englande trading to Spayne & Portugall. dated 31 Maj, Anno tertio Jacobi 16.
5. A Kallender of the materiall Things in the faide Charter.

The Leaves of this Book are registered in a manner somewhat unusual; namely by the letters of the Hebrew Alphabet; as may be seen at every second Leaf, in the lowest Margin.

1856.

A Book in small fol. relating to the Practise of our Common-law, & containing,

1. A Collection of Writs & other Law-Precedents (mostly of the time of K. Henry VIII.) made & disposed Alphabetically by one Rouland Shakelady, whose Name appeareth at the end.

The Precedents are so many, & so ranged, that it may not, perhaps, very improperly be called Registrum, Brevium de Tempore R. Henrici VIII. although there be some of the preceding Reign written by the first Hand & some Additions made in the Reigns subsequent.

'Tis plain that Books of this Nature instruct their Readers not only in the Practise of the Law; but in the Private History & Occurrences relating to Persons & Places.

Moreover, in this Book (which was bought of me) are some curious Matters, not belonging to the main Collection; as for Instance,

2. K. Henry VIII's Warrant, whereby Bartholomewe Hesketh, for divers Infirmities which he hath in his hede, cannot conveniently, withoute greate Daunger be discovered of the same; was licensed to vie & were his Bonet vpon his hede, aswelle in his Prefence as ellifwhere, at his Libertie. Yeven the 15th of Novembre in the 18th yere of his Reigne.

Such a Warrant as this was obtained before, of the same King, by Stephen Tucker; as may be seen by the Original Visitation-book of Cornwall inscribed (in this Library) 66 B. 17. at fol. 68. upon which the Descendants of the said Stephen have seemed to value themselves, as if their Ancestor had received an Honor Equivalent to that of a Spanish Grandee of the First Rank (vid Catal. Brev. Vol. III. p. 342.)

3. Warrant from the same King, for certain Gentlemen during their Lives to keepe Croshoves in their Houses, and to occupie & shote in the same, at their Pleasure. Yeven . . . Novembre, the 18th Yere of his Reigne.

4. The Style of most Cities & Corporations, as accustomed to be inserted in the Royal Writs.

Num. 1856—1858.

5. Breve de Scandalis Magnatum; pro Thoma Fenys Milite Domino Dacre.
6. Breve de Apollata Capiendo; cum Petitione Johannis Prioris S. Johannis Baptiste de Louda, Ordinis S. Augustini; super eadem re.
7. De Finibus Licenciarum, Concessionum, Perdonationum, et aliarum Literarum Patencium.

1857.

A thin Book in fol. collected (& perhaps written by Abraham Wallis' entituled,

A Surveye or Booke of Offices as well of His Majesties Courtes of Recorde, as of His Majesties most Hon^{ble} Houhold; the Countells of the North of Wales, & the Marches, the Admiraltye, the Mynte, the Armorye, Officers att Armes, the Towns of Warre, Castles, Bullwarkes, & Fortresses, & the Ilandes; with his Majesties Howes, Parkes, Forrests, & Chafes; collected in Anno 1610.

The abovementioned Abraham Wallis presented the same to Sir Christopher Hilliard, as appeareth by his Letter annexed to the Book: at the end whereof those persons have sett to their Names who were by when Mr. Wallis brought it to Sir Christopher. How it came out of his Family I know not; but John Beaumont M.D. gave it to this Library.

A paper Book in small fol. wherein are contained divers Political Tracts. Their Titles are,

1. A briefe Abstract of the Question of the Precedency betweene Englande & Spaine. Occasioned by Sir Henry Nevill the Queene of England's Ambassadour, & the Ambassadour of Spaine, at Calice; before Commissioners appointed by the French King, who had moved a Treaty of Peace in the 42 yere of the same Queene. Collected by Sir Robert Cotton att her Majesties Commandment.

2. Instructions for Our right trusty & well-beloved Servants Sir Henry Nevill Knight, Our Ambassadour-Resident with the French King; John Herbert Esq; one of Our Secretaries, & One of our Privy Councill; Robert Beale Esq; One of the Clerks of Our Privy Councill, & Secretary of Our Councill at Yorke; and Thomas Edmonds Esq; one of the Clerks of Our Privy Councill, & Secretary for the French Tongue; appointed by Us to treat with the Commissioners for the King of Spain & Arch-Duke of Burgundy.

These Instructions bear no Date; but are said to be subscribed by Mr. Secretary Cecil.

3. Part of the Plein-pouvoir of the Arch-Duke Albert, in French; wherein was included that of K. Philip the III. of Spain, in Castilian.

4. Latin Letter of the English Commissioners sent to the Heer Verreykin; wherein they in very civil & modest Terms, sett forth their Objections against the Plein-pouvoirs as well of his Catholic Majesty, as of the Arch-Duke & the Infanta his Consort. They also promise an Answer to the Arch-Duke's Exception, who in the English Plein-pouvoir was styled Illustrissimus as his Ancestors were; and not Serenissimus, as he expected. dat. 20 Maj 1600.

5. The Queene's Letter of the 24th of May 1600, to the Commissioners at Braloigne.

Herein, Her Majesty dispenseth with the lack of the necessary Formalities in the Plein-Pouvoirs on both Sides; authorizeth them to go on to the Treaty; sheweth her Unwillingness to agree to a Cessation of Armes; and sendeth them a Letter from his Catholic Majesty to the Irish Rebels, encouraging them to persist, at the same time as He would treat of Peace with Her.

6. Latin Letter of the Spanish & Archiducal Commissioners; in Answer to the Scruples or Doubts raised by the English touching their Plein-pouvoirs.

7. Latin

11. The Fourthe Booke, &c. 246. b.

12. The Contentes of the vth Booke. 306.

13. The vth Booke, &c. 308. 179.

This Book is bound in a Cover of Purple Velvet, Gilt on the Edges, &c. Seemeth to have been the Present-Book to the above-mentioned Princess; & was bought of Mr.

The Translation including but Five Books; it may seem that no more, in Greek, were then printed.

This Mrs. Mary Clarke being a person of rare Learning & other Endowments; I shall take Leave to make some little mention of her Family; and the rather because She is omitted (as also the learned Works of her Mother) in the First Volume of my late industrious Friend Anthony Wood's Athenæ Oxonienses; although he might easily have introduced them both under the Title of this Maries Grandfather.

That I may, therefore, in some small degree contribute toward preserving the Memory of two learned & deserving English Gentlewomen; It may be remembered that this MARY was first married to Mr. Stephen Clarke; and afterward, to Mr. James Balfet of Blone. She was the eldest Daughter of William Roper of Eltham, Secundary of the Kings Bench in the time of K. Henry VIII. by MARGARET the eldest Daughter of the Famous Sir THOMAS MORE. Which William, was Son to John Roper of Eltham, Attorney-General & Principall Clerk of the Pleas. He was also Uncle to that Sir John Roper who was created Baron of Tenham the 4th of July A. D. 1616.

Concerning Margaret the Mother to our Mary, not a little may be gathered from the Life of Sir Thomas More, a MS. in this Library inferibed 68. C. 6. (whether the same was compiled by Mr. Thomas More her Nephew, or by any other) and from other books; all which may be much better & more handomely done by Mrs. ELIZABETH ELSTON, a Virgin who hath trodden in the unfrequented Paths of these and other Personages of her own Sex; and (as they did, to their great Glory & lasting Reputation) hath added Learning, the foundation of solid Wildom & Judgment, to Natural Modesty & Sanctity of Manners.

But to return; in the said MS. 68. C. 6. fol. 165. I find this following Passage, "This blessed Couple (William Roper & Margaret More) had a Daughter whose Name was Marie. Full learned She was in the Liberrall Sciencis. First She was married to Mr. Clarke; afterwards She was married to Mr. Basset, one of the Privie-Chamber, in Queene Maries tyme; and She herselfe was one of the Mayds of Honour. This Gentlewoman very handsomely translated the Ecclesiasticall Historie of Eusebius out of Greeke into Latyn; and after, into English; yet extant, to the Shame of the Herittical Translation of Meridith Hamner. Which, for that Christopherone Bishop of Lincolne his Translation was then famous & extant, Hers came not to Print; the English may hereafter. She translated the Historie of Socratus, Theodoretus, Sozomenus, and Euagrius: these of her Modelltie they cauled to be suppressed. She also translated a Treatise of hir Grandfather Sir Thomas, made upon the Passione; & so elegantly hath penned it, that a man wold thincke it were Originallie writ in the English Tongue by Sir Thomas himself."

1862.

A parchment Book in small fol. (or large 4to) bought of me: wherein are contained, in old English,

1. pe Table vpon pe Temporal; & vpon pe Propre Sanctorum; & vpon pe Comyn Sanctorum; of Gospelles: þat ben read in pe Chirche þoruz pe zeer: and houz þei schulle be founde in þis Booke. 1.

2. Numerus Capitum uniuscujusque Novi Testamenti Libri. 3. b.

3. A Note, perhaps inserted by the Abbat of Tavistock, in these words, "The Agreement of the 1111 Evangyls after Saynt Jerame. Sech the Concordans of Saynt Jerame in the Latyne Bybills, of that Work." 4.

Hitherto all is written on Paper fastened at the beginning of the Parchment Book.

4. Another Table, shewing Houz a Man may fynde in this Book pe Dominicall Gospelles afir Salebury Use. 5. b.

5. A Treatise thus entituled at the end, "Oon of Foure; þat is, o Booc of alle pe Foure Gospeleris, gadered thortli into o Storie bi Clement of Lantony." 7.

Before the Treatise, is a Prologue; and also the Contents of the Chapters in each of the Twelve Books.

Although I remember to have formerly seen divers Copies of Clement of Lanthones Harmony, yet not having any convenience of consulting any of them at this Instant of time, I cannot pronounce whether this be a Translation, or an Abridgement of Him. John Leland writing of this Clement, & of his Concordia Evangelistarum, affirmeth that it beginneth thus, "Quæris qua fretus autoritate." Piffus faith not the same, but that those words did begin his Commentary upon the Evangelists in Four Books. The Concordia Quatuor Evangelistarum in Twelve Books (which answereth to the present Work) he calleth Opus Imperfectum, and ascribes this Beginning unto it, "Hujus Operis fidei Charissime," adding moreover this Remark, "Supremam Operi manum imposuit, longo post tempore, Guilhelmus Nottinghamus." In this MS. the Prologue beginneth with these Words, "Clement a Preeft of pe Chirche of Lantony gaderede alle pe Sentences of pe Four Gospeleris in to o Storie." The Beginning of the Worke is self, is that of St. Johns Gospel, and neither of these are congruous to the others.

However, the late learned Mr. Henry Wharton in the Appendix to the first part of Dr. Cave's Historiola Litteraria, pag. 54. giving a List of the Works of John Wycliffe which he himself had seen, hath these words, "HARMONIA EVANGELICA, a Clemente Presbytero Lanthoniensi—Latino Sermone contexta, a Wiclefo Anglice conversa, MS. penes Richardum Chiswell Bibliopolam Londinensem, 4to." (Now I know that the present MS. was formerly in the possession of the said Chiswell; and that what Mr. Wharton immediately after styleth Commentarius in Selecta S. Scripturæ loca, Anglice MS. 4to, apud eundem, is that Book of Postills upon the Psalms & Cantica Sacra, now in this Library inscribed No. 1806. (but this by way of Digression only) Mr. Wharton doth not declare his Reason for ascribing the Work to J. Wycliffe, although he might have a very good one, and I not know it. And it may have been done by that great Man (who laboured very much in making the Holy Scriptures intelligible to the Common people) for ought that I can say to the contrary. It plainly appeareth by two several places (viz. upon the inside of the first spare Leaf; and by fol. 7.) that in the Year 1566, it belonged to Francis Russell Earl of Bedford; and by his putting his Name & Title twice in the same

Num. 1862, 1863.

Book, it may seem that he had more than an ordinary Value for it. The like he did by two Books of Saxon Homilies which the same year 1566. Mr. Ferrar one of his Servants found in the Library of the Monastery of Tavistock; which books still remain the one in the University-Library of Cambridge, the other in Cottons Library at Westminster; & are both described in my Printed Catalogue of Anglo-Saxon MSS. Moreover, that this same Francis Earl of Bedford had divers of Wycliffes Works, is plain from the Extract of his Will, in Dugd. Bar. Tom. 11. pag. 379. col. 2. wherein it is recited that he bequeathed to the Lord Burleigh, then Lord High Treasurer of England—all his antient Manuscript-Books of Wicliffes Works; and how the Cecilian Library was afterwards distracted; how, many of the MSS. were bought by Bruce Earl of Aulbury; how Aileburies Library was publicly sold, and (as to the MSS.) to whom and at what rates; is still known by some people now living. So that upon the whole, I can easily believe this present MS. & No. 1866. to have been two of the Wicklavian Books, formerly belonging to that Noble Earl. But to return to the Contents of this.

After the Harmony of the Gospels above-mentioned, follow,

6. The Contents of a large Theological Treatise, as divided into 166 Chapters. 78.

7. The Treatise it self, being Theological Common-Places, all taken from the Holy Scriptures (or Vulgar Latin Bible) or a Summe of Scripture, and answering to the Contents of the Chapters aforesaid. A work worthy of John Wycliffe, in my poor Judgement, or any other English Divine of that time.

Lastly, it may be observed the Language & Style, used in this Book, is fuitable to Mr. John Wycliffe so often above-mentioned.

1863.

Codex chartaceus in fol. min. diversis manibus scriptus, et a docto Viro Mose William Bibliothecæ donatus; in quo continentur.

1. Epistola doctissimi Edwardi Llwyd (haud ita pridem hujusce Codicis Domini) ad Nathaniëlem Lloyd LL.D. ipsius Edwardi manu descripta. 1.

2. THE CREATION OF THE WORLD: being a Cornish Play or Opera, written by Mr. William Jordan; and for the better understanding of that Language, translated into English Verbatim, by Mr. John Keigwyn of Mobshole, of the Lower Houle; at the Request of the Right Reverend Father in God Jonathan Lord Bishop of Exon, 1691.

This Copie (as to the Cornish) Mr. Llwyd hath collated with the Bodleyan MS. ARCH. B. 31. and hath amended it in all places requisite.

3. The large Collection of Welsh Proverbs by Dr.
John Davies, with Explications in Latin, &c. 59.

This Collection is not only larger than that which he

A thick Book in fol. bought of me; wherein are entred all Papers relating to

Sir Charles Cornwallis his Negotiations in Spayne
Ann. Dom. 1605, & 1606. viz.

1. The Kings Instructions for Charles Howard Earle of Nottingham, Lord High Admiral of England, employed by his Majestie to the King of Spaine for taking his Oath for Observation of the Peace lately concluded between England, Spaine, and the Arch-Duke Albert. A. D.
1605. 1.

Herein that Noble Lord was instructed, among other points, that forasmuch as the performing of that Ceremonie, of likelihood would be done in the Kings Chappell, he should have a speciall care that it should not be done in the Forenoon at the tyme of Masse, for the Scandall of the Protestant Religion; but rather in the afternoone, at what tyme their service is more free from Note of Superstition.

2. The Kings Instructions for Sir Charles Cornwallis's
Knt. sent as his Ambassadour to reside with his good Brother the Kinge of Spaine. 4. b.

Then followeth a good part of the Book, with this Title HISPANIA, A^o 1605. Copies of Letters written by Sir Charles Cornwallis, in the first Year of his Embassage

3. A

Num. 1875.

3. A Lettre to my Lord of Cranborne (Robert Cecil) the 16 of April 1605, from the Groyne. 10.
Setting forth the great Joy of the Spaniards for the Peace, &c.

4. A Lettre to Henry Howards Earle of Northampton written from the Groyne the 18th of April 1605. 10. b.
Complaining of the Envy of some of his Countrymen towards him.

5. A Lettre to the Viscount Cranborne Principall Secretary to His Majestie, written from the Groyne the 20th of April 1605. 11. b.

Seeming somewhat to reflect upon the Earle of Nottingham's Conduct, as endeavouring rather to Court the Count de Carafena Governor of Galicia, than to be courted by Him.

6. A Lettre to the same, written from the Groyne, 27 April 1605. 12. b.

Upon Occasion of the Incident which had happened by the Decease of an English-man, whom the Spaniards would not permit to be buried in their Ground: whom, notwithstanding, the Earle of Nottingham had caused to be buried there privately.

7. A Lettre to the Earle of Northampton from Villadolid, 29 May 1605. 14.

Importing that the Constable of Castile had not hitherto shewn him much Courtesie or Respect. That the Spaniards spake honorably of His Lordship, the Lord Cranbourne, & the Earle of Suffolk: that he desired his Lordship to be a meane to continue him in the Lord Cranbourne's good Opinion: and hinting as if his Allowance was too short in a dear Countrey, especially while he continued in Debt.

8. To the Lords of the Councell, written from Villadolid, 31 May 1605. 16.

Describing the Public Entry which the Earle of Nottingham, his Majesties Ambassador Extraordinary made into that City; and the Reception they both had from the King & Queen of Spain & Constable of Castile, &c. The Conference with the Conde de Olivarez, and the Reasons he gave why it would not be convenient that his King should swear to the performance of the Treaty in his Chappell; and why they could not be admitted to dine with Him, which was an Honor he had always refused not only to Ambassadors, but to Cardinals, & Popes Nuncios being Cardinals; nay, even to the Duke of Savoy a Sovereign Prince & his near Kinsman. An Account of the Dinner of Honor they had at the Duke of Lerma's (where the King & Queen saw all) and there were Two Marquisses & Two Earls (a thing very extraordinary in Spaine) who waited at the Table: Of a Religious Procession wherat the King and Court assited, and where there was a remarkable mixture of things prophane with sacred matters. For in the same were seen Counterfeit Dragons, Giants, & disguised Morris-dancers who danced & sang within the Ranks of some of the Fryars. The Ceremony of the Kings taking the Oath abovementioned & Signing the Treaty. How the King invited them to the Sight of the Jurgo de Torros, & the Jurgo de Cannas with other matters.

9. To the Lord Ellesmer Lorde Chancellour of England, from Villadolid, 1 Jun. 1605. 30. b.

10. To the Lord Viscount Cranbourne Principall Secretary to his Majestie, from Villadolid, 1 June 1605. 31. b.

Shewing how well the Earle of Nottingham had defended himself against the Duke of Lerma who had endeavoured to fitt him; & complaining of the great Charge he was put to there.

11. To the same, from Villadolid 2 Junij, 1605. 33. b.

Giving the Sum of what he had heard concerning the Spaniards being fond of the new-made Peace, and the Reason of it, viz. their Inability to continue the War two Years longer. That the Jesuits have been busy in corrupting divers of their Followers. That the Spaniards were in fear of the Moors both within & without their

Num. 1875.

Kingdome. That it was talked as if the King intended to go to the Low-Countries, & try if he could by fair means reduce the United Provinces to his Obedience. That the Death is so great, that he cannot support his Ordinary Charges there under 50l. weekly.

12. To the same, from Villadolid, 6 Junij 1605. 38. b.

Concerning the great Honors done to the Earle of Nottingham at his taking leave of the Spanish Court; when the King gave him in Jewels to the Value of 20000 pounds. That his Lordship had deserved well of the Spanish People, to whom he had occasionally given about 3500 Pounds. And that the Spaniards began to expect the good effects of their Treaty with England, in regard to the Hollanders.

13. To the Lords of the Councell, from Villadolid, 9 Junij. 40.

Concerning the State of the Spanish Court; & that the Council were well affected to the King of England, & respectful to himself; so that he hoped he should be able to procure redress to the Complaints of our Merchants. That the dilatoriness of the Spanish Counsels hindered them from laying hold on proper Opportunities; and that their chiefest Virtue is their Secresie.

14. To His Majestie, from Villadolid, 9 Julij, 1605. 42.

Giving a Character of the Spaniards, and of their good affection toward his Majestie. That there was a rumor as if the French endeavoured to procure a Marriage between the Dolphin & the Infanta; and to play some game in Scotland.

15. To the Earle of Northampton, from Villadolid, 9 Julij 1605. 44. b.

Shewing the Joy which the Spaniards took from the Kings being angry with the Dutch, who had been so insolent as to assault the Spaniards in his Port of Dover.

16. To the Lord Viscount Cranbourne Earle of Salisbury, Principall Secretary to his Majestie, from Villadolid, 9 Julij 1605. 46.

Sending him a List of the Scots Nobility & Gentry who had Pensions from Spain; & promising another of the Irish in the same circumstance. That some Scots there, had evil Intentions toward their own King & Countrey. That the Duke of Savoy having a design against Geneva, much desired the Service of one Captain Gray a verie cunning Engineer & an Englishman.

17. To Sir Henry Wotton His Majesties Ambassador Leiger in Venice, 11 Julij 1605. 48. b.

Setting forth the Honors shewn in the Spanish Court to the Earle of Nottingham, & Respects to himself; with the daily apparent marks of the Spaniards Love & good Affection to our King.

18. To the Lords of the Councill, from Villadolid, 15 Julij 1605. 49. b.

Pursuing what he before wrote to the King; that he is advertised that the French Ambassador had written to his Court by way of Complaint against Him, for which he had given no Occasion unless it might be once in the Punctilio of a Ceremony. That a Marriage having been agreed upon between the Prince of Mantua & the second Daughter of the Duke of Savoy, which might possibly produce somewhat prejudicial to the Spanish Interest in Italy; the King had written to the Duke: (in a fort Mandatory) to relinquish the Treatie; which he took in verie evil part, since he might not dispose of his own Children, or have leave to performe his Word. That one Captain Atkinson had been in Conference with the Conde de Villa-longa one of the Spanish Secretaries of State; and was willing to impart some projects unto them for disturbing the Hollanders Fishing on our Coasts, if our King did not employ him; and that, in the mean time they had given him a Chaîne of 160 pounds value.

19. To the Earle of Salisbury, from Villadolid, 17 Julij 1605. 53.

That by the Death of Sir Thomas Palmer (who had been reconciled to the Church of Rome before he died) a good Ward was come to his Lordship. And that he had assured unto him two several Persons in the Spanish Court, who had promised to give him Intelligence of matters for the Reward of 200 Crowns apiece.

Num. 1875.

20. To the same.

54. b.

Giving an Account of the tottering condition of the Spanish Monarchy. That many Pensions were given to English, Scots, & Irish, who yet would willingly get into their own Countreys, if they could. That a Spanish Lady had undertaken a journey to England, in order to convert the Queen. That if the King of Spain could be at Peace with the Hollanders, he would turn his whole force against the Moors of Africa. That himself had an Humour fallen into his Feet; and lived at excessive Charges.

21. To the Earle of Northampton, 27 Julij, 1605. 58. b.

Referring to other Letters; in the Merchants Causes, complaineth at large of the Intricacy and Delayses used in the Spanish Court; and returneth his Thanks for Favors received.

22. To the Earle of Salisbury, from Villadolid, 28 July 1605. 16.

Relating several Projects of the Spaniards, in Order to a closer Amity with England; as calling a General Council, for settling all disputable points in Religion; marrying the Prince of Wales to their Infanta, who might have part of the Low Countries to Her Portion; giving to the King a Yearly Pension of some Millions of Ducats, and security for it, &c. He also expatiates upon the Discommodities which may accrue unto England by a long Peace; as the Destruction of the Navy Royall, Loss of Masters, Pilots, Mariners, &c.

23. To the Lords of the Council, from Villadolid, 28 July 1605. 65. b.

Relating his Answer upon the Expostulation made unto him by the Kings Order, that he had English Prayers read in his House, and the Calvinian Religion openly preached there, to the Scandal of good Catholics, & the endangering the Kings subjects: as had been vehemently sett forth by a Dominican in his Sermon: with other Mercantile affairs.

24. To Sir Thomas Parey His Majesties Ambassador Resident in Fraunce: from Villadolid, 5 August 1605. 71.

Concerning the projected match of the Dauphin with the Infanta.

25. To the Lords of the Councell: from Villadolid, 7 August 1605. 72.

That the King of Spain intended to move the King of Denmark to forbid all Commerce with the Hollanders; & to recompence him the Loss to be sustained in his Customs thereby. That the French were endeavoring to have a Cardinals Hat & divers Episcopal Miters bestowed upon Englishmen; which was opposed by the English Jesuits, who desired rather to please & not to offend his Majestie. That there was a Report as if the younger Son of the Earle of Tyrone (then in Spain) bare a malignant Humour to our Nation. He complaineth much of the extreme delays & protraction of Time used by the Spaniards, and of the Death of Corn at Villadolid through the idleness & carelessness of the Government; and that the Jesuits keep a strict but secret Correspondence with the Catholics in England.

26. To the Lords of the Councell from Villadolid, 18 August 1605. 76. b.

That the Earle Bothwell & others were endeavoring to disturb Scotland; but that their Offers were rejected by the Spaniards. That the said Earle is like to be clapped up in the Inquisition, having lately brought his Concubine to the Church & there took the Sacrament with her, which Act was deemed to proceed from Irreligion, or at least from Irreverence; that by dealing in Astrological matters, he had incurred the Suspicion of a Sorcerer.

Num. 1875.

27. To the Earle of Salisbury, from Villadolid, 18 August. 78. b.

Concerning the Ill will of some Scots; that the Conde de Villa-Moriana had created some dislike against himself, as not appearing to be so able a Politician as he was thought to be. That some in his Household seemed somewhat inclined to Popery, being induced thereunto by the Pomp of their Ceremonies. Among others, he is in much fear of his own Chaplain, Mr. Wadsworth a Bachelor in Divinity of the University of Cambridge, & a learned man; whom therefore he meaneth to send into England, where he may be well looked after. That his family is very sickly; and among the rest, four have the Disease called Taberdilio.

28. To the same, from Villadolid, 20 August 1605. 82.

Adverting him of the Arguments he used with the Spaniards, in Order to induce them to redress the many Grievances complained of by our Merchants. That this might be furthered, if the Lords of the Council would write a Letter to him, reprehending him as if he had been negligent in that affair, &c.

29. To the Earle of Suffolke (Thomas Howard) Lord Chamberlaine to His Majestie. 85.

A Letter of Compliment & Thanks.

30. To the Earle of Salisbury, from Villadolid 24 August 1605. 85. b.

Complaining of Sir Thomas Southwells Ingratitude to him. That the Spaniards still continue jealous of his Lordship, as if he was not well affected to them. That the French labor much to procure a stricter Amity with the Spaniard. That Carre, brother to the Lord of Newbole, is sending an evil Instrument into Scotland, whom he will endeavour to intercept.

31. The Contents of a Letter written to the Earle of Nottingham Lord High Admiral of England, from Villadolid 2 September 1605. 88. b.

Concerning some reflecting Speeches which the Earle had used concerning him; whereupon Sir Charles wrote, That his Lordship having, by favour of the Prince he served, attained Tytles of Honor, would have in Memory that he was borne onely Mr. Charles Howard, and that He was borne Charles Cornwallis. That his Lordship was extract of the most Noble House of Norfolk; and that it might be, He could prove himself was descended from the best Houses of England. That whereas his Lordship had proffered unto him his Honorable Love & Favour, He accepted of the same. And whereas His Lordship had said that if His Majestie would not lend unto him the 5000. he desired, that himself would: Sir Charles is willing to borrow 500. and give him Security for it.

32. To the Earle of Salisbury. 90. b.

Concerning the Bearer (whom I suppose to be his son) to whom he gave 200 Pounds per ann. upon his Marriage, and within two Years after did pay all his Debts; who having spent & sold all, Sir Charles upon his Lordships Recommendation, doth now give him 200 Pounds per ann. more, and a good Character.

33. To the same, from Villadolid, 4 September 1605. 93.

Complaining of the unwholesome Air, which hath brought the Country-Distemper upon him. Thanks his Lordship for procuring an Increase of his Allowance. Shewing that the Spaniards give good Words, but abuse our Merchants by their Delaies & other Injuries, to the Dishonor of our King. That the Conde de Villa-Longa spake largely of the Desire had there of a Marriage betwene the Prince of Wales & the Infanta; and wished him neither to trust the French, nor Venetian Ambassadors; which Counsel Sir Charles imputeth to the Spanish Jealousie.

34. To the Lords of the Councell, from Villadolid, 6 September 1605. 98. b.

Sending

Num. 1875.

Sending the Answer of the K. of Spains Council to his Two Memorials in behalf of the English Merchants, whose Business he begins to hope he may at length draw into some Conclusion, although not suitable to the Justice of their Cause. All this he imputeth to the villany of the Spanish Officers, which is so exorbitant, that our Merchants had better bear with the loss of their Goods at the first, if not too great, than to lose more time & money, with the hazard of their Healths & Lives in seeking for Redress. He here giveth two Instances of the Spanish Injustice, one is, briefly, A Scots Ship and Cargo was seized & confiscated divers years since, as belonging to the English; Testimonies were produced from the Kings Council in Scotland, as also from His Majesty himself under his Seal, that no part thereof did belong to any Englishmen, which Royal Testimony, by the Laws of Spain, ought to be received without exception. The Spaniards, to evade the same, alleged that the King not being under the Obedience of the Pope, nor in the Union of the Catholick Church, no Credit could be given to his Testimony. However, the Advocate for the Scotsmen urged, that this Exception was invalid, since there was no Excommunication or other Public Denunciation against the King. He could do no good. That the Spaniards being advertized from England that some dislike had arisen between the King & the Parliament, and that His Treasury was exhausted; began to set less Value upon the Peace than before; but upon his Answers were brought into better Order.

35. Translation of the Memorial which Sir Charles Cornwallis sent unto the King of Spain by Mr. Oudley his Secretarie for the Spanish Tongue, at Burgos, in behalf of the English Merchants Tradeinge into Spain; with the answer of that Kings Council appollined, 14 September 1605. 104. b.

36. The Contents of a Letter to the Earle of Salisbury, from Villadolid, 8 September 1605. 110.

That upon Advertizement out of England that his Lordship is a great Enemy to Spaine, some of the Spanish Council wished there should be a present Denunciation of his malignant Humour to the King; and if therewith not amended, that then a shorter Course be taken with him. That the Duke of Lerma & Conde de Villa-Longa mistook those Motions, and would by no means there should be any violent Course used. That Mr. Carre's sending his Man now into Scotland, is with no good Intent. That Secretary Prada hath promised him quicker Dispatch for the future. He, however, advieth that by some general Musters, in themselves by reason of their long omission, not unnecessary; by preparation of Ships, or some other way, the Spaniards may be brought to muse, though not to mistrust. That he found good use of Creswell, Superior of the English Jesuits there, who although he be desirous to propagate his Religion, retaineth nevertheless a faithful & loving Disposition to our King and Countrey: That his Family holdeth firm to their Religion, except his Chaplain, of whom however he hopeth the best, since he hath sent no Message to the House of late. That Henry O Neal sonne to the Earle of Tyrone is designed for a Colonell to a Regiment of Irish in the Low-Countreys, which he misliketh, although the same O Neal hath given proofs of his good affection to our Nation.

37. To the Earle of Southampton (Henry Wriothesley) from Villadolid. 114.

Recommending his Son unto him, in the first place; & then, shewing how they both might get Money by transporting Corn from England to Spain, where it was much wanted.

38. To Sir George Bucke Knt. from Villadolid. 115. b. Hinting as if the King of Spains not giving him a Medal, was occasioned by the Earle of Nottingham, against whom Sir Charles was somewhat piqued; although he takes great Comfort that he hath ever avoided, as to all men, revenging Resolutions. That since the Earls Departure from Spaine, God & Tyme hath made Paules Steeple known to be but a Steeple; and poore White-Chapel a Church; which though low & little, is yet in its Measure, not unfit for the Use it is putt unto. He heareth not of any Book written of the Entertainement of my Lord Admirall (i. e. the Earle of Nottingham) He came (says Sir Charles) He was here; He is gone; & so is his Memory, save onely in the Shoppes of this Cittie, where the Spanish Gallants, will continue it yet for a Year or two.

Num. 1875.

39. To the Lords of the Councell; from Villadolid. That the King of Spain hath had the Flux, but is well; that the Queen hath laboured of the dangerous Discale of the Tabardillo (which I take to be the same with Purples, or rather Plague-spots) and remains yet in Gods balance; also, that there have been solemn Processions & Prayers for her; Sir Charles & his Family praying at the same time for her in his House. That the Indian Fleet came not well back, and, as it was said, brought but half a Million of Treasure. That 36 Ships are going from Lisbon to Holland. That it was reported, as if the King of Spain was about to raise the Value of his Coin, whereby he would gain 15 Millions. Desireth further Directions how to proceed in the Merchants Affairs; and advertizeth his proceedings with relation to the Contestable Articles of the Treaty, which he is afraid he shall not be able to go through without Bribes; for money was grown so scarce at Court, as it was said, that at the Kings last Remove, they had much ado to defray the Ordinarie Charge of his Journey.

40. To the Earle of Salisbury, from Villadolid, 15 September 1605. 121. b.

That advertisement had come hither from England, that a revolted Popish Priest had a Warrant for laying Prayers according to the Popish way (if I understand the Expressions aright) from the Archbishop of Canterbury & his Lordship. That there had been a working to remove the English Jesuits from thence to Salamanca; & that Parsons the Jesuit had a mind to come from Rome thither, & send Creswell to Rome in his stead; which Exchange Sir Charles liked not: That at Villadolid there is a Comtrey-man of his, one Walpole a Jesuit, a hot-headed Fellow, & as full of Praetize as he is of Learning; that he had laid some Baits for him, to drawe his Tongue to witness the Malice of his Heart; wherein if he could prevaille, he doubted not to obtain his Removal from thence. That his Chaplain had revolted; and as it was secretly said, was to go to Rome, and that the King had given him a Pension of 40 Duckets the Month. He desireth that his poor Son may be no Step-child to the Kings Grace & Bounty, since a Matter of no great Value would cleare the Estate to Him.

41. To the same, from Villadolid. 124. b.

Gives his Lordship the certain Number of Ships & Gallies, which went from Lisbon, under Command of Don Lewes de Flixado. That the Spaniards were again grown stiffie, as to the Dispatch of our Merchants Suits, upon a false Report as if Justice had been denied to them here. But upon advertisement that our King had lately caused 3 or 4 principal Pyrats to be executed, their Minds are made somewhat more benevolent, & they promise speedy Dispatch.

42. To the Lords of the Councell, from Villadolid. 126.

Advertiseth the Imprisonment of some Englishmen at St. Jehan de Luz, upon a false Accusation, as if they had design to take the Town of Bayonne. And that many lying Rumours having been spread as if the Kings of Great-Britain & Spain had a Design to attack France, he had a Conference with the French Ambassador thereupon, who had promised Satisfaction should be made to the King.

43. A Letre to the Duke of Lerma; mentioned in another another to the Lords of the Council, bearing date the 15th of September; a Copie thereof being sent unto them.

Num. 1875.

128.
Complaining of the grievous delays of the Spanish Courts, in redressing the Wrongs committed by the Spaniards, Sicilians, & Portugese upon the English; and tacitly threatening a Rupture between the two Crowns if Satisfaction were not soon made for what was past, and a Stop put to such Proceedings for the future.

Here followeth the Coppies of such Letres as were written to Sir Charles Cornwallies Knight, his Majesties Ambassadour-Leiger with the King of Spaine during the tyme of his Ambassage; both from England, and alsoe from His Majesties Ambassadors, vizt. of France, Venice, & Flaunders.

44. From the Lords of the Council, 31 May 1605.

133.
Requiring him to sollicit the Causes of the Merchants who had suffered by the Spaniards; particularly that of John Eldred, &c. who had laded the Ship Tryal with Merchandize to the value of 40000 Duckets. This rich Ship was taken by the Vice-Roy of Sicilie's Ships or Gallies, upon pretence that it was a Man of War, which had taken the Goods by Piracy. They tortured therefore the Merchant, Master, & Purser, to make them confesse this pretended Piracy, so that they all died in Prison; and the meaner fellows, in order to escape the like inhuman Treatment, had confessed what they knew to be false.

45. From Henry Howard Earle of Northampton & Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports.

136.
Recommending the Cause of the Sicilian Merchants abovementioned; and exhorting him to transect the Affairs entrusted to him, with Diligence & Dexterity.

46. From the Earle of Salisbury, Principal Secretary of State, 20 June 1605.

138.
Concerning the Hollanders attacking the Spaniards within the Limits of the Ports of Dover, where they were defended by our Cannon. With Instructious how to answer to all Demands of the Spaniards arising from that Accident; which seemed to have been (as to their coming into our Harbour) projected by themselves; who now also desired Our King to sett their Souldiers safely on shoar in Flanders, out of danger from the Hollanders, &c.

47. From Sir Thomas Parry, his Majesties Ambassadour in France.

48. From the Lord Thomas Howard of Effingham.

146.
49. From Thomas Howard Earle of Suffolk, Lord Chamberleine.

147.
This is a very kind Letter, and sheweth the Heart of a truly noble Person.

50. From Charles Howard Earle of Nottingham, Lord High-Admiral of England.

Recommending the Cause of one George Strawyn a Scots-man, whose Ship and Lading to the burthen of 140 Tons in the late War was seized by the Spaniards, & divers of the Men cruelly burned by the Inquisition. The losse of the Goods amounted to 40000 Ducats.

51. From Sir Thomas Parrey, his Majesties Ambassadour in France.

148. b.
Recommending the Suit of Mr. Kadithe unto him.

52. From the Earle of Salisbury.

149.
Concerning Sir Charles's domestic Affairs, and desiring him to add to the Provision he had already made for his son William. That the Spaniards here had so far insisted upon Our Kings transporting their Souldiers from Dover to Flanders, as that he had sent to desire the Dutch to give their Consent unto it.

53. From Sir Thomas Edmunds, His Majesties Ambassadour resident with the Arch-Duke.

153. b.
That the Dutch would not consent to our Kings transportation of the Spanish Souldiers remaining at Dover, to Flanders. That the Lord Arundel of Wardour was expected to be Colonel of the English Regiment in the Service of the Arch-Duke, which was already encreased to 1500 men. That the Lord Humes Scotch Regiment was not yet come. And that the Marquis of Spinole went on prosperously against the Hollanders.

Num. 1875.

54. From the Earle of Northampton.

156. b.
A long Letter; reflecting on the Pride, Ambition, & Deceitfulness of the Earle of Nottingham Lord High Admiral, his kinsman, & the Contest between him & Sir Charles, whom he had not been able to hurt. That at a proper time He would stand Sir Charles's friend, in the matter of augmenting his Allowance. He adviceth Sir Charles to cultivate the Amity so newly established between the two Crowns; and tacitly blameth Sir Francis Walsingham, who by inflaming Matters, partly occasioned that Warre, which was then the Quintessence of his Delight, and is now the Torment of his Transgression. On this occasion, the same Noble Earle proceedeth in a manner not unfit to these Times. Amongst other Toyes (saith He) we looke for some Straines in the Parliament for the renewing of a Warre; and the more violent in respect of the late Reports of Scarcity, of Penurie, & Weaknes in those parts. For though it be true that by Warre we were as poore as they; that the Realme would give no more; the Revenue could afford noe more; and that the Queene fold her Land by Lumpes; yet all are now perswaded that, without a Peace, the King of Spaine would have resigned upp unto the Kings Hands his whole Dominion. Such is our aptnes to be puffed upp with Toyes, and thinke all lost that is not undertaken out of Humour without ground, according to the Proportions that are likewise holden in gravissimis by sundry Persons in this State, whose Judgments are distracted, and their Heads distempered. He advertizeth also Sir Charles, that his unkind brother Southwell had made many attempts to work him prejudice; both with the King & others; but that the Earle of Salisbury, himself, &c. had bailed & disappointed the same; but that however, he would advise him to settle his Estate, & make some good Allowance to his Son, whereupon he might subsist, untill the Kings favor should be extended to him.

55. From Sir Henry Wotton, his Majesties Ambassadour resident with the States of Venice. (October A. D. 1605.)
Desiring to keep a continued & regular Correspondence with him, as well in order to promote the Interest of the King their Master, as to improve their former Acquaintance. For which end he would (in his next) send Sir Charles a Cypher with some Abbreviations.

56. Sir Charles's Answer to the foregoing Letter, in very civil & friendly Terms. Advertizing him moreover of the departure of the Spanish Fleet. That it was thought that the Constable should presently be sent into Germany, to negotiate an Election of the King of the Romans; and that the Duke of Sessa should goe for an Ambassadour Resident in Rome. He sendeth Sir Henry therewith a Discourse of that Dukes concerning the late stirring of Humours in Italy by the Counte of Fuentes; and writeth kindly of Mr. Wotton, Nephew to Sir Henry, who was then with him in Spaine.

57. A Discourse upon the Citation, by Order from the Governor of Millan, the first of July 1605.

171. b.
This seemeth to be the Discourse mentioned in the last Letter; and striketh against the Judgment of those who were for the King of Spains reviving his Pretensions to many Places or Fiefs in Italy, and among the Grisons, &c.

58. A Letter from the Earle of Salisbury to Sir Charles, 12 Sept. 1605.

Advertizing, that the King was returned safe from his Progress, and about a Month after the Terme, would hold a Parliament, in which Session, his Lordship hoped, those things would be concluded, which might bee an Occasion to deferre aile of those Assemblies, for some good Space; the two principal Propositions to be debated therein, being matter of the Unyon & Subsidie. That although Spinola had gotten Reputation in the Netherlands; yet there was likely to be less alteration there, than either of the contending parties had promised to themselves. That the Scots had spurned against his Majesties design of adorning that Kingdom with Bishops; & had in some Parts of that Realme presumed to hold their General Assemblies contrarie to his Commandment. That thereupon, divers Lords had been cyted before the Council, censured, & sent to Prison. He answereth to divers of the Advertisements sent formerly unto him by Sir Charles; and (amongst others) to that about his Chaplains turning Papist; that a Priest belonging to the Count de Villa-Mediana here, is now become converted, & defyleth all Romane Corruption. That his Majestie had approved his answer to Don Blasco, and had willed him to tell him, that when it shall not be as free for him (Sir Charles) using it has he had done, to receive the Comfortable Foode & Exercise of Prayer & Preaching in his Familie, as it is for the Spanish Ambassadour on this side, He is resolved, without Diffute or Delay, to revoke him home. That the Dutch had resolutely denied their Consent to the quiet Passage of the Spanish Souldiers in Dover, to Flanders, and therefore he directeth him how to answer those in Spain who should believe that Our King ought to have exerted himself further, with respect to the Hollanders, on that occasion. And that the Lord Arundel of Wardour, who had disobeyed his Majesties Command by going into Flanders in a manner contrary to his Pleasure, of which his Lordship had been apprised; was commanded, after the Campaign should be over, & the reparation of his Regiment settled, to render his person before the Council, and soe to abide his Majesties further Censure.

59. The Kings Letre or Discourse concerning the unlawful Assembly or Council lately held by the Ministers of Scotland; sent into Spaine to my Lord Ambassadour Cornwallles, by the Earle of Salisbury, with the Former Letre A. D. 1605. 187 b.

60. A Proposition made by Mr. Winwood from his Majestie unto the States of the Lowe-Counceys touching the Transportation of the Spaniards that arrived for Succour at Dover, into Flanders; and the answer made from the States unto His Majestie. 191 b.

These Pieces are both in French; and the List beareth date, 2 August 1605.

61. A Letter from Sir Thomas Edmondes His Majesties Ambassadour-Resident with the Arch-Duke in Flanders, to Sir Charles Cornwallles 20 September 1605. 191 b.

Of the Ill Success attending the Enterprize of a French Officer named Monsieur de Terrail, who would needs attempt the taking of Berghen op Zoom by Surprise. That the Count de Villa-Mediani was arrived, very well satisfied with his Reception at the Court of England; and that the Spaniards at Dover were resolved to flee into Flanders by Night, in hope of passing thither undiscovered by the Dutch. Finally, that the Princes were newly returned from the Pilgrimage they had devoutly made to the Lady of Sichem (who had great Reputation there) in hopes of obeying of Issue by her means.

62. Sir Charles Cornwallles, to the Earle of Salisbury Principall Secretary to His Majestie, from Valadolid, 18 October 1605. 200 b.

Advertising, that Sir Anthony Shirely & Sir Edward Riche (who had shapred their Religion to the Spanish State, & to each of whom the K. of Spain giveth 200 Crowns a Month) being attended with Ten Servants had hired a Ship at Cales, to pass over into Barbary. That 17 young men were lately received into the College of the English Jesuits at Sevil. That the Spanish Councils were very intent upon some great matter, and were extraordinarily assembled. That they were grown mighty up with respect to England, (from whence they had too many advertisements) and were resolved to amuse him with Hopes of Dispatch, & yet to do little or nothing in his Business. He willeth therefore, that the Parliament would make some Motions, backed by sound Reasons, for breaking the Peace, and supporting the King in a new War with them; which would surely bring them back to a better Temper.

63. Another, to the same: from Valadolid. 202 b. Advertising, that the Spanish Ambassadour in England being judged unapt for his Employ, it was proposed to send him an Assitant, whom some thought would be a Scot. He enlargeth much upon the Pride, Laziness, & dilatory Humour of the Spaniards, which had hitherto held them from doing any thing in the Causes of the English Merchants, who were almost ruined by the delay. That therefore he thinketh a short Course with them would have the best effect, and probably awake them from their Lethargy. That when things have been consulted upon & determined in the Councils, all the Papers are sent to the Duke of Lerma; and if there be a Bird to be shot in the Woods, an Hare in the Field, or Rabbit in the Burrow they lie dead, though they concerne the Life or Soule of the Poore, or the Greatest Good whatsoever of the Common. That he hopeth, by the next, to give his Majestie a good foundation of the Projects mentioned above at § 22. which have been since considered by the Duke of Lerma, &c. and approved. That the Lord Wootton's Son was dead, & honorably buried (Sir Charles laying down the Money, since the Young Gentleman had been disappointed of his fathers Remittances, but died a Papist being seduced by Walpole the Jesuit.

64. To the Earle of Northampton, from Valadolid. 209. Complaining of the different Usage he meeteth with in Spain, from that given to the Spanish Ambassadour in England; although he feeth that the Spaniards (notwithstanding the Earle of Nottingham's browbeating him there) continued to shew him a much better countenance than they did to others; and had promised to compound with the greatest part of the Petitioning English Merchants. That his Majesties Gracious Usage of the Spanish Ambassadour in England, only increaseth their Pride & Vanity, they attributing whatsoever is done to the merit of their Greatnes, & fear of their Power, their Humour being to over-value themselves & to abate others. Thus others can performe noe more than what is due to soe super-eminent a Monarchy; and what they did to the Lord Admiral, was (as they say) to shew their Greatnes. That, for his part, he is very plain with them, and is the better esteemed for it; the general Rule for managing a Spaniard being to seeme to make some good Esteeme of a Mans felie, & but little of them farther than Offices of Complement & Courtisie do require. That the Spaniards generally say that they will break their Stile for noe man. This Stile, in short, is to doe onely what is pleasing to themselves, and that alsoe in their owne tymes & seasons. Hee that presseth them on too fast, makes them resty; he that solliciteth them not at all, makes himselfe forgotten. The best Course therefore, is to deale with them in their owne fashion; and if their Ambassadour was not treated with so much Respect in England, and it were said that it was done so, in Imitation of the treatment he had in Spain, it would much avall the suffering Merchants, and also Himself in the most important Negotiations. That to hasten their dull Spirits, He had entered into a more streight Friendship & Familiaritie with the French and Venetian Ambassadors, of both whom the Spaniards are exceeding jealous; and advieth that his Majestie for a while should shew a better Countenance than ordinary to the French Ambassadour in England, which would make the Device worke the more strongly with them. That as to the Spanish Project of giving our King a Pension, although they are much in Love with it, yet seeking to have their Wills & Punctualities observed: they would have it moved by him, which he holdeth not fit, unless his Majestie should so direct him. Finally he is of Opinion, that somewhat said & done this Parliament to incite the King against Spain, and made known there, would much further him in his Service.

65. To the Earle of Salisbury; from Validadid. 213.

Shewing that he is continually labouring to bring the Spaniards to a reverend & high Regard of the Kings Person, Power, & Fortune; which can no sooner be effected, than all is overthrown by the Intelligencers from England. That he is certainly informed that there are of them very neere to the King; and some such as daily cate of his Bread, or else should oftentimes goe hungry to Bed: and that one of them is That these Men give information of the present weak State of our Kingdom; and of some things concerning the King which he knoweth to be false, and which, if true, very ill becoming them to discover. He complaine of the greatnes of his Charges, by reason of the ex remote of the Death; and desireth directions how he may gratifie those who inform him of the Spanish Councils.

66. To the Lords of the Council. 215.

Shewing his Indignation at the Spaniards extreme delay in doing Justice to the English Merchants; and desiring that the King would let them know that he wanted not Power to satisfie himself if he should not be contented for the passed Injuries, & secured from the like in time to come. But it appeareth, that upon cooler Thoughts, Sir Charles did not think fit to fend it 67. To Mr. Thomas Wilford, President of the Spanish Company of Merchants in London; from Validadid. 217.

In answer to a Letter from the Company; wherein he clearth himself from an Imputation laid upon him; and blameth their Negligence in their own Affairs.

68. To the Earle of Salisbury, from Validadid. 219. b.

D desiring to have the Wardship of young Mr Marlow (according to the dying Request of his Father) conferred upon him; at his Lordships own Price. And advertising, that the Spaniards are very fond of that part of their Project (mentioned above at § 22.) relating to the Marriage of the Prince of Wales with their Infanta; although they were not yet agreed who should make the first Motion of it in their Council.

69. To the Lords of the Council; from Validadid. 221. b.

That the Constable (of Castile?) had been to visit him, in whole Company, among others, came one Sr. Andrew Wife, in Spain called the Priour of England, who had given many Testimonies of his good & dutifull Affection to his King and Countrey. That the Constable, upon discourse about the Causes of the English Merchants, had promised a quick & satisfactory dispatch of all, except that of Hall & Eldred. As to this, he said, there had been an orderly and judicial proceeding in Sicily and that upon several proofs made that the Crew had exercised Piracie, a Sentence of Confiscation had passed against it, which could not be revoked by the Testimonies of any Witnesses examined in England. That to these Speeches of the Constable, he had answered, that their Proofs amounted to this, that a Rumor had been spread as if the Ship TRIAL had exercised Piracy in the Years 1593 & 1598, and that the Masters Mate, &c. had confessed that they had done divers unlawful Acts. That this could not be that Pirate-Ship they meant, because it was not built until the Year 1601. that the pretended Confessions were extorted by Dureffe & Menaces, & retracted by the same Persons in England; that the matter whereunto they were obliged to subscribe, was invented & written by one of their own Scrivenors, and in divers Circumstances is consistent neither with Truth nor Probability. That the Course taken with our Ships, is what is used in no other Countrey in Christendome, for the Goods confiscate are divided into Three Parts; the First to the King (or to the Vice-rry, the Second to the Judge who tries the Cause; the Third to the Denuntiator & Informer who never wants Witnesses. That the Duke de Feria is the Constable's kinsman, and therefore, in this Cause, is defended by him. That the Spanish Merchants are neglectful of their Buiness; and those at Lisbon disorderly, by the means of a Puritan who had crept in among them. Desires that the King would thank the Conde de Pugno-Rostro for the good Offices done to his Subjects. That the Lady above-mentioned (at § 10. whom Walpole the Jesuit had sent into England, in order to seduce some of her own Sex, was harboured by some Papists, who would willingly that she was in her own Countrey; the having had small Success. That the Differences between the English Jesuits & Seculars continue, which he thinks may prove fatal to the former. That the young Admiral of Castile had lately married the Daughter of the Duke of Sea, Son to the Duke of Lerma, to whom the Duke had given in Dowry 100000 Crownes, and the King by way of Addition a Crown-Rent in Sicily of 30000 Crowns per ann. That they hear no News of the Fleet which failed from Lisbon. That the King had added a Pension of 6000 Crowns to his former Largesse below. & upon the Constable; and that his Majesties continual Motions from place to place hindered all Buiness.

70. To the Merchants & Factors at Lisbon; in answer of one of thins. 228 b.

Flaming them severely for their inconstant, neglectful & irregular Courses.

71. To Thomas Howard Earle of Suffolk, Lord Chamberlain vnto his Majestie, from Validadid. 231.

72. To the Earle of Salisbury, Principal Secretary to his Majestie. 232. b.

Signifying, that he is in good hopes of procuring satisfaction to the English Merchants, excepting only the matter of Hall and Eldred, about which he finds nothing but Diffimulation, by reason of the alliance betwene the Duke of Feria & the Constable; and the promise of part of the Prey to some of the Great Officers there. Advertiseth his Lordship of the Practices which the Spaniards had almost begun to put in Execution against him (upon the Incitement of their Intelligencers) among whom some are of Quality & Discourte) but such that now their humours are very much changed, they being in great hopes of gaining him. And that their Project mentioned in § 22. he believed they would in time prepete to our King.

73. From the Lords of the Council in the behalfe in one Joshua Havell Merchaut of Plymouth, dated 28 May 1605. 235. b.

This Havell had his Ship & Goods unjustly taken by the Spaniards; and after much time & money spent; could get no manner of Redresse or Satisfaction.

74. From Sir William Wad Clarke of the Council, dated 31 May 1605. with a Postscript from Sir William Cornwallis the elder. 236. b.

In the behalfe of Havell abovementioned. 237. b.

75. From Walter Mathew Mayor of Plymouth, dated 26 September 1605. 238. b.

In the behalfe of Joshua Havelle. 238. b.

76. From Charles Howard Earle of Nottingham, & Lord High Admiral of England. 238. b.

In the behalfe of Mr. Fearnie, who had certain Goods stayed by the Spaniards. 238. b.

77. From Sir Thomas Edmonds Lord Ambassador. Resident with the Arch-duke, dated the 21 October 1605. 238. b.

That the Jesuites & their Confederates were continually practising, in all kinds, against England; of which the Count de Villa-Media was sufficiently sensible before his departure from Flanders; that he was exceedingly troubled to prevent their passionate purposes; and did directly cross them in some of their chiefe Designs. That the Lord Arundell of Wardour had drawn the King's Displeasure on him, in the manner as above related. Relate the principal Actions that had happened this Campaign between Prince Maurice & Spinola. That there had been great Joy in those parts, upon the Report that his (Sir Charles's) Chaplain & Secretarie had turned Papists; and that the English Priests there, had been busie with some of his owne inferior Servants also, but he hoped he should withstand their purposes.

78. Concerning the Spanish Projects before mentioned at § 22. and the Method taken by the Spaniards in imparting the fame to Sir Charles: with what followed thereupon.

79. Translation of a Letter from the Duke of Lerma to Sir Charles, thanking him for the Discourse concerning the Reformation of Idle & Vagrant Persons; & of the Dearth of Victuals, which Sir Charles had drawn up, & sent unto him by the Conde de Pugno Rofiro.

80. A Discourse drawn up by Sir Charles, & translated into Spanish by the Nobleman last mentioned.

The Purport of it is to shew what Commodities would accrew to Spain by a perfect Amitie with England; brought about by their acting according to their Projects, so often abovementioned. This Discourse was read both to the Duke of Lerma, & to the King himself, who both liked it so well, as that it was sent to some select Persons of the Council to be considered of.

81. To the Lords of the Councell, in England.

That he had brought the Merchants Affairs to a Conclusion, pretty much to their Satisfaction; and is of opinion that the Crosses & Delays therein, have rather growne out of the confused Order of their many Councells, exceeding Multitudes of Officers, and the Quisinarie slow Pace that they have accustomed themselves to in matters of Justice, than to any Indisposition either in the King, or those of most power with him.

82. To the Earle of Salisbury.

This Letter is conceived in Terms somewhat obscure. But the great business seemeth to be the Spanish Projects so often before mentioned, which they had desired him to communicate to the King; and which he accordingly sent by Mr. Hawkeworth his Secretary the Bearer of this Letter also; whom he had so instructed, as that he was able to make an orderly Relation of the whole Affair to his Majesty.

83. A Discourse & Relation made unto Walter Hawkeworth Secretary unto my Lord-Ambassadour, of the Conference had betweene the Duke of Lerma, the Conde de Villa Longa, & his Lordship, concerning the two Projects of Alliance, for reducing the Low-Countries into Obedience. To be delivered to his Majestie at his coming into England, whither the said Lord-Ambassadour sent him with his Letter about that Negotiation.

84. To the Earle of Suffolke Lord Chamberlayne to his Majestie.

That he had attained to the desired Success in his Negotiations, & had sufficient Credit in the Spanish Court; yet he wished to be recalled from that Place, where the Objects of Sicknes and Death were hourly represented unto him even in his own House.

85. To the Lord Ellesmere Lord Chancellor of England; from Valiodalid.

86. To the Earle of Salisbury, by a Merchant of Plymouth.

That he had brought the Great Business to a head, the Honour whereof would always redound to His Majesty, since the Spaniards were the Officers. That the Particularities being not fit for Paper, he had determined to send his Secretary Hawkeworth purposely to England to acquaint the King with the whole matter; but that he is now unfortunately fallen sick. That the Spaniards were become in all things exceeding tractable, and had dispatched the English Merchants to their Contentment.

Num. 1875.

He desires that the Spanish Ambassadour in England may have some notice of this, and of his Majesties acceptance of the same. That Carr the Scot had fowne a Report, that in Scotland they would by no Means yeeld either to the Kings desired Union, or his Replanting of Bishoppes in that Kingdome, with other Lies, against which he had wrought a Countermine. That he had lately for ended his Lordships worthines to that State as he that sits at the Helme of it exceedingly desireth his Lordship might understand his particular affection to joyne in a perfect Friendship & Correspondency with Him.

87. From the Earle of Salisbury; dated the 14. October 1605.

Importing that the King had approved his Conduct with reference to the New Duties which the Spaniards had laid upon the Portuguese Wines & Oiles, in derogation of the late Treaty; and instructing him how to proceed farther therein; as also in other matters. That as to the Spanish Projects for a straiter Alliance with his Majestie, & a General Peace in Christendome by his means, he thinks the Design is to engage his Majestie into a Warre for the Reduction of the United Provinces: yet, if anie thing be delivered unto him authentically, he might doe the King Honor & Service by bringing it into his Election, either to take hold of it, or to let it alone. He thanketh him for the Discourse about the Benefit of Peace, which he finds more malicious than witty; and it reflecting on Him, he would know the Author. As to Fitz-James, he is not willing that he should have a particular Leave to return into Ireland. That his Majesty in Consideration of the extraordinary Charges he is at, is willing to allow him an Increase of 40s. a Day by an extraordinary Warant, because it should not be drawne into a Precedent hereafter by others.

88. From the Earle of Salisbury, dated the 9th of November 1605.

This Letter giveth an account of the Discovery of the Gunpowder-Treason Plot, more particular & exact than what is related by most of our Historians. For Example, Mr. peed & others write, that K. James was the Person, who, upon hearing the Letter to the Lord Mount-Eagle read, guessed that the design was to destroy Himself & his Parliament by Gun-powder, & therefore ordered the Cellars to be searched, &c. But this Earle of Salisbury writeth thus,—"I Imparted the Lre to the Earle of Suffolke Lord Chamberlayne, to the end I might receive his Opinion. Whereupon, perusing the Wordes of the Lre, and observing the Writing, THAT THE BLOW SHOULD COME WITHOUT KNOWLEDGE WHO HAD HURT THEM; we both conceived that it could not be more proper than the tyme of Parliament; nor by any other way like to be attempted then with Powder, whilst the King was sitting in th' Assembly. Of which the Lord-Chamberlain (shewed?) the more probability, because there was a great Vault vnder the said Chamber which was never vied for any thing but for some Wood & Cole belonging to the Keeper of the Old Palace. In which Consideration, after we had imparted the fame to the Lord Admirall, the Earle of Worcester, & the Earle of Northampton, and some others, We all thought fit to forbear to impart it to the King, untill some three or fower dayes before the Session. At which tyme we shewed His Majestie the Lre, rather as a thing we would not conceale (because it was of such a Nature) then any way perswading him to geve any further Credite to it, untill the Place had bene visited. Whereupon His Majestie (whoe hath a naturall habite to contemne all false Feares, and a Judgment soe strong as never to doubt any thing which is not well warranted by Reason) concurred only thus farre with us; that seeing such a matter was possible, That should be donne which might prevent all danger, or els nothing at all," &c.

93. Private Instructions delivered to Mr. Hawkefworth for his Busines in England. 286. b.

94. A Letter to the Earle of Salisburie. 287. b.

That with true feeling & passion, not onely the King of Spain & His whole Courte, but even the Generality of the People apprehended the Advertisements concerning the Gunpowder-Treason Plot. And that their not fayning in that matter hath much enclined his owne Heart vnto them, and drawne him into a Beliefe that they will become fast & faithful Friends to His Majestie and our Countrey. They desire that the King would be more watchful of himself for the future, and will not be persuaded but that the French had either an Hand or an Heart in that most devilish Purpose. That upon this News, the Duke of Lerma, & the most part of all the Councillours & Grandees of this State had visited him, ad invidiam usque of the other Foreign Ministres. That even those who (in regard of their Places) were prohibited to visit; or being Sick, could not; had sent their Sonnes. He thinks that as to the New Impositions, he shall be able to moderate matters so, as to bring them to a reasonable pass. That the Hollanders may now, by our Kings Interposition, get the most advantageous Terms of Peace. That a Frier who had lately preached before the King, is banished the Court and City, having vented words to this effect, "That Princes being the Heads & Substances of Commonwealths, were in these days become the Shadows of some one Private man, who (according to his owne humor) governed all things." That "the Earle of Villa-Mediana being returned, much reporte is made of our Kings greates Bountyes towards him. That the Marquis of St. German (as he heareth) is appointed to go into England, & congratulate the happie Discoverie of the late Treason."

That the Amity between France & Spain is not likely to be durable. That the Spaniards would not enlarge their Propositions above-mentioned at § 92. vntil it might please the King of Great Brittain to geve some Signification how farre He would open himself, for receipt of it. That the King of Spaine hath neede of the King of Great Brittaines Arme, as our King (necessitated by means of his greates bounty to his ancient Subjects & Servants) hath good occasion to use the help of the King of Spaines Purse. That our Help to the Spaniards in recovering the Netherlands, will be like the lifting them out of a Quick-sand, wherein they still sink deeper. That the Addition of a Million of Ducats per ann. to the Kings Revenue, besides what might be saved from the Allowance to the Garrisons, will be a good Help to His Estate, That the Possession of those Townes would be an Honor & Advantage to his Majestie, who would therefore be able to employ more of his Servants and Subjects. That the Souldiers of those Garrisons might be paid, for the most part, in Clothes & Victuals from our Countrey, and the Money be drawne into England. That the Duke of Sella, one of the foundest Wife men of Spain is dead; occasioned (as is said) by Great Debts, & little Trust in the Faith & Honesty of his Lady.

101. From Sir Thomas Parry, Ambassador for his Majestie in France. 27 Nov. 1605. 297. b.

102. From the Earle of Northampton, 3 October, 1605. 298.

Commending his Capacity and Industry in the Affaires entrusted to him. And therefore giveth his Testimony in these Words. "Yow deserve well, Yow have a Master that conceives well, & Friends that report well, and therefore all must and well." That they had been clearing the remnant of the Kings Estate, which had been much vaulted by his Profusion, and "His Majestie himself hath been content to bind his owne Handes (which noe mortal Man could doe) and by Laisle to make his Estate see sure, as it neither neede to feare the facility of his swete Disposition, nor the Rapacitie & Greedynes of devouringe Cormorants."

103. To the Earle of Northampton. 300. b.

That so far as his weake Eyes can discern into the Inwards of the Spanish State, they build their great Comforts & Hopes upon a perfect Conjunction with ours.

104. To Sir Henry Wotton Lord-Ambassador for His Majestie with the States of Venice. 302.

That in the Spaniards are all appearances of Desire to continue & encrease the Amity begunne with England.

105. To the Earle of Salisburie. 20 January 1605-6. S. V. 302. b.

That the Spaniards are now brought to own in public, that having Peace with the King of Great Britain, they need not feare the rest of all the whole World. That the other Foreign Ministres are become very envious of the favor shewn to Himself & to the other English there; and that the Popes Nuntio was more especially piqued at it. That notwithstanding all this, the Spaniards are generally so greedy in their Natures, & inclined to Extortion, that he is continually pestered with the fresh complaints of our Merchants. That hereupon, he was resolved to shew how much herein the King suffreth in his Honor, and the whole Nation in their Fame, & also to endeavor to procure sharp Punishment to be inflicted upon some one or two of the Malefactors. That the late Order for not imbarqueing of our Shippes upon suspicion, and removing the Determining of Causes from the Ordinary Judges of the Place (who were to have a part of the Benefit) will deliver the Merchants & Himself of a great deal of Trouble. He hopes very shortly to procure the Merchants Privileges to be confirmed. That the matter of Hall and Fildred is to be removed from Sicily, thither. And the Duke of Lerma hath given his word, that upon Sentence given, the Money for the Goods confiscated shall be paid, without further trouble.

110. Sir Charles Cornwallies to the King, in answer to the former. 308. b.

111. To the Earle of Salisbury. 311.

Thanking him for favors received. Adverting, that Creswell the Jesuite being sent for by his Superior to Rome; Walpole within a few days after, desired access unto him. That at first, he insinuated a Signification of much grief for the late traiterous Purpose in England, and a shewe of much Detestation of soe inhumane & horrible Intentions, especiallie in Men professing the Catholique Religion: to which Sir Charles replied, that he had great reason to be so grieved, for that now it is growne to be a received Rule, that noe erroneous Religion in the World (no not Paganism itself) giveth such Libertie & Courage to Malefactors & Murderers, as the Roman. He relateth other Controversial Discourse he had with this Jesuite, upon the Subject of Religion, which was ended by the coming in of the Conde de Pugno-Rostro. That two days after, the same Jesuite came again, and began as before, saying, that the Traitors had done their Cause an infinite harme: for it was the Error of the Puritans that (hold) that in case of their Princes becoming of contrarie Religion, it was lawfull to take away their Lives. Of the Protestants, that were they of Power sufficient, they might depose them. Of the Catholiques the Opinion was, that the Pope might denounce & excommunicate them, and thereby discharge their Subjects of their Allegiance. He wished it might please the King to take Caution & Security of his Catholique Subjects (i. e. Oath, & Denuntiation of the Censures of the Church against the disobedient) and so to suffer them to live in Peace. Upon Sir Charles's Reply that it would be more safe for the King to suppress & restraints their Disobedience by his owne Providence, and by his Lawes: the Jesuit said, there would then be danger that their continual Cryings would draw the Pope to proceede against the King with his Censures. Sir Charles shewed him that in the time of Queen Elizabeth they were no more harmful then a painted Fire; also that he wondered they could think of proceeding in that course with the King, who was none of their Fold. He answered that he was within their Fold, for that he was baptized a Christian. Sir Charles asked him why therefore the Popes had not excommunicated the Emperour of Russia, or those of the Greek Church, &c? His answer was, that They were without their power or possibility to revoke. To conclude, he protested, that He & those of his Society would by all meanes & wayes possible become Impediments to any proceedings against the King; and would onely Labour by Prayer & Preaching (as by their Institution they were bound) to reduce those that were gone astraye; and so departed.

112. A Letter from the Duke of Lerma, translated. dated 22 January. 315. b.

That the King by Sir Charles's Intercession hath granted the Order of St. Jago unto Don Juan Alonzo de Villa Vicaia.

CAT. HARL. VOL. II.

Num. 1875.

113. To the Earle of Salisbury. 27 January 1605. 316.

That the Duke of Lerma much desireth His Lordships Friendship & Correspondence. That He endeavoreth to hold him by the same meanes that he won him, which was Playnes; and giving him to understand that he was not ignorant in what Estate the Spaniards stand; and how impossible it is to come to any end of their Intricacies without our Kings helpe. That this hath begot in them the best kinde of Love to him; and he thinketh they deale not soe plainly & above-board with any Ambassador as with himselfe. That the Duke always concludes with a Sigh, wishing that it might please God to drawe us to one Unity in Religion; for which cause he said, that the King his Master (if he knew it to agree with the King of Great-Britaines pleasure) would imploy all his forces to obtain a General Council in the most free manner that ever yet was held. That the Earle Bothwell had lately thrown a Spaniard out of a Window, and escaped to the House of the Emperors Ambassador: whereupon his Concubine was seized, and as it was thought, would hardly escape the Whip.

114. From Sir Thomas Edmonds, His Majesties Ambassador to the Arch-dukes. 318. b.

That Owen, and Baldwynne a Jesuit, both resident at that Court, having been principal dealers in the Gunpowder Treason, His Majesty had commanded him to require their apprehension, & delivery into his Handes. That as to Baldwynne it had been answered, that He was a religious Man, and (by the Orders of the Church, which they must obey) is to be censured by his Superiors. And for Owen, they must attend the King of Spaine's Directions, he being a more immediate servant to that Crown than to the Arch-Dukes. That our King in his Letter to these Princes, had professed that He would either verifie the Things alledged against those Persons, or forfeit his Credit towards the world. That although his Majestic had assured that they should be called in Question for no other Crime, than this last abominable Treason of Powder, that they should in no wise be put to Torture, but proceeded against fairly in the presence of their Ambassadour: they had been so disrespectful as to desire a Copie of the Information. That the Princes had sent to the King of Spain for advice, and therefore Sir Thomas desires Sir Charles to use the proper methode of serving our King there. That in the Court of Brussels, they would not believe that such a Treason had been plotted, because the Catholiques were interested therein; but sometimes would say it was an artifice of the Puritans; at other times, a Design of the Hollanders to reduce our State to the same Condition as theirs is, that is, a Commonwealth; but now they say it is a Work of the Divels, expressly to banish & extirpate the Catholique Religion out of England. That Sir William Stanley being not so deeply charged with this last Treason as Owen and Baldwyn, although it was designed to have used him therein; His Majesty hath only moved to have him secured, till farther matter be sent to charge him with. That young Tyrone had been with him, and assured him that the Council of Spain before they would give him his Colonels Commission, procured our Kings Consent unto it.

115. Certaine Reasons given by my Lord Ambassador Cornwallies, to divers Counsellors of State and others in the Court of Spaine, to persuade the Deliverie of certain Traitors taken in Flanders: of whom mention is made in the precedent Lettre. 322.

116. To the Earle of Salisbury. 325.

Relating his proceedings at the Spanish Court about Owen and Baldwyn, in whose behalf the Jesuites & the Popes Nuntio took great paines. That the King & the Duke of Lerma had a sincere desire to give our King satisfaction, but were puzzled as to the manner wherein it should be done. That he had had a long Conference with with the Duke upon this affair, who told him that it had been resolved in the Council, that they themselves would punish Owen, and also procure Baldwyn to be punished by his Superiors in exemplary manner. That the Duke of Lerma did then swear to him in a solemn manner, that both his King & himself did desire the Preservation & Good of our King as much as that of any Prince in this World. That although the French King had used the help of the Court of Rome, & of other Princes in drawing them into an Alliance, They had absolutely denied to deliver an eldest Daughter into France; and had purposed Her for England, whensoever his Majesties pleasure should be, upon Terms convenient, to treat of that matter. That the Venetian Ambassador had told him that their State stand in some feare of a thunder-clap of the Pope, because they would not abrogate a certain Law antiently made, which was somewhat like to our Statute of Mortmain in England.

Num. 1875.

117. The Contents of another Letter to my Lord of Salisbury, 12 Febr. 1605-6. 334.

That the English Merchants both at Lisbon & at Sevil, having no Consuls or other Officers to guide them, have given very great Offence by their intemperate Language about Religion, and other disorderly Behavior, for which they had been called into the Inquisition, had it not been for the Respect had for our King, & Regard for Him his Ambassador. That the Satisfaction procured for the English Merchants had not been paid, through want of Money. That the King at that present time had no Money, but what was reserved for cases of Necessity. And that many Collects (or Prayers) both new & old, are said for the safe & speedie Arrival of the Flota.

118. From the Earle of Salisbury, 3 January. 335.

That the Arraignment & Execution of the Gunpowder Traitors, was deferred till next Terme. That it was found that Owen & Baldwyn were not only furtherers & encouragers of the Gunpowder Treason, but with Sir William Stanley were chargeable of some other Treasons committed since his Majesties coming to the Crown of England: and relateth all the proceedings that had followed thereupon both in Brussels, & in London. That the Ministers of the Arch-dukes & of the King of Spain had made use of little Shifts in order to ward off our Complaints. And that the French King had sent the Baron D'Entoure to congratulate with his Majestie for his happy deliverance; for which Minister our King had conceived a particular esteem, ever since he had been sent Ambassador to him in Scotland.

119. From Mr. Hawkefworth my Lords Secretarie, 20 January 1605-6. 343.

That the great Busines is like to have good speed, as a thing conceived to be safe & profitable for all Parties, although it could not be attended unto for the present, because the late Treasons did almost wholly employ the Ministry. That the Earle of Northampton had acknowledged that Sir Charles in managing the Affair so that the Spaniards had made their applications to our King, had done his Country great Service, and to Himself & other Friends (who had undertaken for his Worthines & Abilities) much Right and Honour, with other Noble Speeches in his Praise. And that the King had lately declared in Public that He thought Sir Charles Cornwallies one of the best Servants that any Prince in Christendome was Master of.

120. To the Earle of Salisbury. (22 Febr. 1805-6.) 344 b.

In answer to the last from his Lordship. He addeth also, that if there were in Spain Censors of Manners, as there are Inquisitors for Religion, the greater part of our Traders there would fall into their Hands, being people disordered, uncharitable, & unfriendly amongst themselves, & scandalous to the Spaniards.

121. To Mr. Hawkefworth. 346.

In answer to his Letter abovementioned: and inti.

Num. 1875.

mating, that if he should continue to serve him faithfully, as he had hitherto done, he would allow him a Gleaners Share of such Fortunes as should befall him.

122. To the Lords of the Council, from Valladolid 346. b.

That the Flota was reported to be scattered by a Tempest between Cartagena & the Havanna, & that a great Fleet of Hollanders was at Sea with purpose to encounter them. Also, that if it should not arrive safely, the general want in that Kingdom would be greater than ever. That there is a general restraint of all Money payable by the King, by which the English & Scots Merchants who had spent their meanes in soliciting for their Damages, were now all forced to live upon him. That findings in the Young Princes of Savoy, & in the Marquis of Este who doth attend them at the Spanish Court, a more than ordinary affection towards our King, he was content to give unto Roncas Secretary to the Duke of Savoy & Ambassador there, the first Visit; which was kindly taken by the Ambassador himself & the Princes, as also by the King & State, and is advertized to the Duke in the amplest manner; who being very affectionate to our King, & possessing the backside of France, he thinketh that his Amity ought to be cultivated. That the late Order he had procured for our Merchants hath the desired effect, and is obeyed much against the Wills of the hungry Judges & Officers, who are said to have purchased their Offices at great prices, upon Hope of prey among the Merchants. That all Provisions are at an exceeding high rate in Madrid.

123. To Sir Thomas Edmondes His Majesties Ambassador with the Arch-duke. 359. b.

That although the Spanish Court had come to a resolution not to deliver up Owen & Baldwyn; they would take care that they should be so punished as that our King should be satisfied. That the Spaniards generally detest all that they believe had either an hand or a hand in the Gunpowder Treason; and in particular, doe laye a great Calumination upon the Jesuits, who (as an Inquisitor (Minister?) had lately observed to him) leaving the Order of their first Infirmitie, doe now study to become Statists, and to put Fire into all Kingdomes where they converse.

124. From Sir Thomas Edmondes. dated 3 February 1605-6. 350. b.

That much Expectation there is in the Court of Brussels, of the Resolution of the King of Spain touching Owen & Baldwyn. That a Proclamation had been issued in England for apprehending three Jesuits detected to have bene dealers in the late Treason. That all matters touching the prosecution of the War against the Hollanders are at a stand, till the Return of Spinola from Spain, where he had been sent to solicit Money for new Levies. And that the English Fugitives & Traitors were mightily cared at the Arch-dukes Court.

125. To the Earle of Salisbury. 252. b.

Concerning the high Esteem which the King of Spain & the Duke of Lerma protest they have for our King, and the mean Opinion they have of the French Sincerity towards England.

126. To Sir Thomas Edmondes, His Majesties Ambassador with the Arch-duke. 354.

127. To the Earle of Salisbury. 355.

That there are many Reports of a Combination against his Lordship, that five English Romanists should resolve his Death, whom they hold the Discoverer of all their unnaturall & destructive Intentions against their Prince & Country. That the learned Franciscans utterly mislike the Courses held with Princes by the Popes & Jesuites; and plainly say that the Popes have noe more to do with the Crownes of Temporall Princes, than those Princes with the Hierarchies that belong to them. Relateth a Conference with a Spanish Jesuite, who was in England with the Constable, touching the modern practice of the Popes to fulminate their Censures on Princes who acknowledged not their Authority, thereby exposing them to the Treacheries & Violences of their own Subjects, wherein he brought the Jesuit over to his Opinion. That the arrival of the Flota was expected with the greatest Impatience, and the Kings Gallies were gone from Lisbon in order to convoy the same, and that in the mean time the Marquis Spinola continued there.

Num. 1875.

128. To the Earle of Salisbury, from Villadolid.

358. b.

That Don Belasco of Aragon desires to be recommended as affectionate to the Service of our King, and therefore Sir Charles would have him taken notice of, although he hath hitherto had little Occasion to use his Power, or hath seen any great effect of it. That the Spaniards shew a great longing after the Alliance with our King, inasmuch as the very Name of our Prince worketh a Change in the Countenance of that People who continually throng to the Constables house that they may see his Picture; and that they affect him so much, as were it not for the difference in Religion, his Majesty would not be able to deny him in Marriage to their Princess. That there is again a great want of Bread, whereby many suffer extremely; and that there is a fresh report of the Expectance of the Indian Fleet furnished with at least 26 Millions. That the Source of our Merchants Complaints, is the covetous & cruel Disposition of the Spanish Judges & Officers, some of whom he will endeavour to have punished in an exemplary manner. That he hath to do with a People of an Iron Heart, & Leaden Heels; with whom the patience of Job himself will be found to want weight. Complaints of his private Lollies sustained at home during his absence, and therefore desireth to be recalled as soon as his Negotiations shall be brought to a Conclusion.

129. From Sir Henrie Wotton his Majesties Ambassador with the State of Venice.

That there is a Quarrel grown between the Pope & that State, attributed to four Causes. 1. Denial of Decimes & general Restitution of the Clergie. 2. Refusal to paie moneys that have been in necessitous tymes borrowed of Convents & Corporate Churches. 3. A Decree passed in Senate against converting of any Landes to Holy Use, by Legacie or otherwise. 4. Laying of Secular hands upon some persons in Clericall profession & Habit. That there are but two wayes of Remedy in this business, i. e. either to performe what the Pope desireth; or to give him sufficient Reason why they will not do it; but that the Venetians have from the very beginning resolved upon the latter, notwithstanding one maligne Circumstance, which is, this, the Pope affecteth the Name of a great Canonist, and having proceeded soe farre already, will perhappes be loath to be overcome by Disputation. In the mean time, Sir Henry doubts, that this Affair will prove nothing but the farther enriching of the Popes Nephew, or Brother, or some one or two of the vehement Cardinals.

130. The perticular of the Cause of William Squyre an English Merchant, a Factor for John Eldred of London; sent Lisbon, and received by my Lord-Ambassador, 26 Martij 1605.

365. b.

131. The Cause of Tom Taylor Factor for Mr. Robert Bromley Prisoner in Lisbon received at the same time.

367. b.

These Factors, with their Ships, & Crew, & Merchandise, were taken by Don Luiz Pirardo in America, who soon sold the Ships & Lading, shaved the Crew's Heads & Sent them Slaves to the Gallies, keeping the Factors Prisoners in his Ship, where they lived in great Misery & Poverty.

132. To the Duke of Lerma, upon the Receipt of these Complaints.

368. b.

133. Reasons delivered vnto the State here (i. e. Spain) to perswade Redress in the former Complaints

Num. 1875.

134. To the Earle of Salisbury, from Villadolid, 28 Martij, Stilo antiquo 1605.

371. b.

That Walpole the Jesuite had lately cast an abominable Slander upon his Lordship, and advised his Destruction; saying, that if he lived, he might see the end of others, who (his Lordship being taken awaie) might doe some good to the Church. He advieth, or rather intreateth his Lordship to be very careful & wary of himself, and not to trust the Phisitian mentioned by Walpole too far. He relateth an odd Story of one John Draper, who carried a Letter from Doctor Baghott an English Priest, to a Capachine in Orleans named Archangel, wherein it was specified that the Projects for England were now revealed & prevented. That the Indian Fleet although daily expected, remained at the Havana, for more forces to be taken on board for their safer conducting home; and that Spinola hath an Order for the weekly payment of 300000 Crownes, until the end of August. That one of the Kings Councillors as honorable and honest man as any fitts amongst them, assured him several times that the King of Spain nourisheth and payeth within the Low Countreys 600000 persons; which yet he would not believe.

135. List of the Officers of Howsheld to the King of Spaine, anno 1606.

136. Officers & Ladies in the Queenes Howsheld, 1606.

377. b.

Then followeth this Title, as given to a second Part of the Work;

HISPANIA, ANNO 1606.

Coppies of Lettres written to & received from Sir Charles Cornwallis Knight, in the second yeare of his Ambassage in Spaine, with other his Negotiations and Observations.

137. To the Earle of Salisbury; sent by the way of . . . the Ordinarie of Italie, departing from Villadolid the 5th of April, at night.

That one Saunderfon a Scott, a Gentleman by birth, and of some good Value in his own Countrey, had been there long soliciting for Restitution of the Value of a Shipp of his imbarqued by the Kings Officers & lost in his Service; as also for Wages during the tyme he served with her; and is, at last, promised Money when it comes out of the Indies. That the Spaniards are in hand with this Sanderfon to undertake the Building of six small Pinnaces, such as they use to send between Spain & the Indies, upon Messages of Advice, offering so largely for the fabricature of them, that there will be at least 2000l. saved by the Bargaine. That he had advised him by no means to undertake the matter without the privy of his owne Sovereigne. That he purposed to build them in Ireland, three this yeare & three the next, and therefore Sir Charles desireth his Lordships directions in the matter.

138. Minute of a Letter written to Sir George Carewe his Majesties Ambassador in France, relating such occurrences as are expressed in the Lre following.

380. b.

139. To the Lords of His Majesties most honorable privie Councill; sent by th'aforsaid means and at the same tyme.

ibid.

That Business is still at a stand, by the reason of the King & Queen's frequent motions. That there is no certain News of the Flota. That Spinola is gone laden with much Honour & Profit. That the Marques of Avilena, now Ambassador in Rome, goeth for Vice-Roy into Sicilia. The Duke of Feria is employed to the Emperor, and the Marques of Itona to Rome, by whom he is promised a true & unfeigned Correspondence in all things that shall there occur, which concerne our King; which is well agreeing with his Instructions. That they have commanded a State of all payments to Sir William Stanley, until they shall see how it goes with him in England. That upon Receipt of their Lordships Letter in behalf of Hall & Eldred, he had sent Ousely his Secretary rary to the Court, where he hath yet had no Audience. That this Cause will prove very difficult in regard of the Greatness of the Duke of Feria, and of his owne wilfull Disposition: and that their Cause is made the more desperate, by the fresh taking another of their Shippes (as also another of one Bromley) in America, whose Mariners are putt into the Gallies, the Factors imprisoned, the Goods confiscate and a great part aliened, &c.

Num. 1875.

140. From Sir Henry Wotton his Majesties Ambafador in Venice; dated 11 Martij 1606. 382. b.

That the Cavalier Dodo was gone to Rome well intructed with Replies, and in the mean time the Pope had sent a second Monitory Brief, importing that if their Ambafador were longer delayed, he would proceed to a full Excommunication; which Brief the Nuntio had been fo imprudent as to communicate to the Senate just as the Cavalier aforesaid was supposed to be got to Rome. Hereby, he had much exasperated the State, and lost the Opinion of a wife Servant. That they were in Expectation of a Chiaux from the Grand Signor, whose Busines was supposed to be either to threaten, or to borrow.

141. To Sir Henry Wotton his Majesties Ambafador in Venice. Sent by the aforesaid Ordinary. 384.

That the long Staie of the West India Fleet breedes a general Sorrowe & Difmay among the Spaniards. That the Marquis Spinola, notwithstanding the generall Want, is now furnished with a certayne Order for a weekly receipt of 300000 Crownes to the end of August, for the Sommer-service in the Low-Countries; where it was intended to keep two Armies in the Field, the one to attend Grave Maurice; the other to proceede with their former Courfe in Frizeland. That the Marquis himself is made one of the Kings Counsell of Estate, & Grandee of Spaine. All other matters at a stand, by reason of the King & Queens Absence, & want of Money.

142. To the Earl of Salisbury, by Collen Hay. 385.

That some Sixteen of the principal of the English Merchants & Factors at Lisbon mett at a dynner in the house of one Rolles an Englishman, who had turned Papist and married in the Countrey; where, among other depraving Speeches, one ended with a Wiff, "that they had the King of England and His Ambafadour fast chayned in one of the Gallies, in the Haven." To which Rolles added, "That he might have the whipping of them, till the one had made a better peace, and the other procured more redresse in the Injuries, which in those parts were offered unto them." Sir Charles sheweth that he can forgive all that relateth unto him from those men who had never so much as given him Thanks for the services he had done them; but as to the King he can by no means either tolerate or conceale their vndutifull and insufferable presumption, and therefore desireth present direction in the matter. That the Company of Merchants of England, in this Spring-tyme of the amitie betwene the two Princes, ought to have sent thither the most discrete & best tempered of their Servants, but the contrary did appear by their behaviour, both at Lisbon, and at Sevil.

143. To Sir George Carew his Majesties Ambafadour in France; sent by Collen Hay from Valladolid. 386. b.

144. To the Earle of Salisbury from Valladolid, by Collen Hay. 387.

That the Spaniards begin to change their Opinion of him; holding him to be too troublesome & importunate; and begin to receive with great distaste the Suites he maketh in behalf of our injured Merchants. That the King & Duke of Lerna are much discontented; and as he believeth, have heard some late evill Newes of their Indian Fleet. That their own Confusions are so great, as whosoever negotieth with them must with a Sufferance beyond the boundes of all ordinary Patience endure the length of tyme & intollerable delays that their irrelolute & distracted mindes breed in all their busynesses. That the Complaints sent in by the Lisbon Merchants are so generall, that neither He nor the Spaniards (who also complain much of the English) can tell what to make of them. That Gurgeine is the man that wished the King & Him in the Gallies, &c.

Num. 1875.

145. The Contents of a Letter to the Earle of Salisbury, sent by Collen Hay who departed from Valladolid, 30 April 1606. Stilo novo. 391.

That Walpole the Jesuite had acquainted him that Our King was much distracted with Coller, by reason of a Refusal in Parliament of performinge the Union, upon knowledge whereof, armes were taken in London, for which false Intelligence he had sharply rebuked him. That the Spanish Secretarie of State had told him, that their Ambafador had written from England that our King was assaulted on Hunting & slightly hurt; whereon it was published that He was slayne, but immediately contradicted by a Messager from the Queene. That the Pope & Princes of Italie do labour a League Offensive & Defensive betwene Spaine & France. That there hath been tendred to the Spaniards a Practise, from Ireland; but the Agents departed ill satisfied, saying, "This people entertayne noe Philician longer than the fit is upon them." And that for his owne pericular, he findeth neither their Actions nor Wordes to agree with their former.

146. To the Lordes of his Majesties most honorable privie Counsell. Sent by meanes of Lientia de Pardo an Agent for the Ambafador in England, from Valladolid. 392. b.

That the Spaniards are preparing a Fleete of at least 100 Sayle, which is to carry 40000 Soldiers, a Fleet inferior to that of 88. It is given out that they pretend only the freeinge their Coastes of the Hollanders; but that it seemeth too great a proportion for that Service.

147. From Sir Thomas Edmonds his Majesties Ambafador with the Archdukes. dated the 23 April 1606. 393. b.

Concerning the Gun-powder-Traitors Owen & Baldwyn, with regard to whom, the King of Spain & the Arch-Duke were disposed to give our King satisfaction, were it not for the pretended holy Jesuites. Among which Crew, he findeth none so veporously affected as those of our owne nation, who doe raise up all the practises against his Majesties State which they can by any means devise. That the Popes Nuntio in Spain hath written a very strange and reprehending Letter to the Nuntio at Brussels, because he did not more employe himself in the behalf of those Traitors. But the latter being of a more temperate Spirit, hath given the other a better reason for his forbearance & moderation, than he could pretend for the inconsiderate Passion which he hath shewed. That Sir William Stanley, & Bayley (Owen's Companion) are sett at libertie. That if Order be not taken for removinge these lewde Instruments from thence, there will be no end of their practisinge, to the imbroilinge of the affaires betwene England & the Arch-duke. That all matters are at a stand till the return of the Marquis Spinola. That there hath been a Muteny in the English Regiment there, against the Lord Arondell the Colonell, by the instigation of Sir Thomas Studder the Sergeant-Major; wherein his Lordship would find it difficult to procure Satisfaction, because he is suspected by the faction of the Jesuites. That Capten James Blount of the same Regiment, (who was an inward Companion with Catesby & Sir Edward Baynham; and did partake in the knowledge of the late practise) hath refused to obey his Majesties Command for his Repaire into England, and withdrawne himself out of those Countreys.

148. To the Lords of the Councell; from Madrid. 397. b.

That the Emperors Ambafador who had continued in Spain 33 years, overcharging his minde with Vexation about the excessive Charges of his Removal from Valladolid to Madrid; the same night that he arrived, fell into some distraction, and the next day into a Fever, whereof whereof within five dayes he dyed, a man of greate wealth. That the sudden & vnexpected remove of the Court in so vnseasonable a tyme, & soe generall extreame want of money hath bredd here a great Confusion & Discontent, which will not be reordered & removed till the Arrivall of the Indian Fleete, whereof there is now noe Newes at all. That the King came to Madrid from Floranicus, an house of Pleasure some saeven leagues off. That the Duke of Lerma had been sick of a Calenture, which upon bleeding was changed into a Tertian. That by reason of his Sicknes, he cannot obtain access to the King; and all other busines there was dead for a tyme.

149. From the Duke of Lennox; dated the sixth of March 1606. 401.

Thanking him for the service he had done to a poor man, upon his recommendation.

150. From the Earle of Salisbury, 26 March 1606. by Mr. Hawkefworth. 401. b.

Concerning the Remayne of the Debt due by certaine Priests of Cales, for their Ransome in England, which now they would faine shuffle off. Sir Charles is therefore required to solicit the matter strongly, for, faith the Earle, the Debt is iust, and by the Articles of the Treatie direct Provision is made for the satisfaying of such Debts. Which, if they goe about to delude or protract in this fashion as they doe, wee can have but little hope of the reall Observation of the greater points, more than it shall seeme profitable & advantageous vnto them.

151. From the Earle of Nottingham, Lord High Admirall of England, 22 March 1606. 403.

Upon the same affair.

152. From my Lord Admirall. (May 1606.) 404.

About some busines he has procured to be dispatched for the Conde de Lenos.

153. From Henry Wriothesley Earle of Southampton; by Mr. Hawkefworth. 404. b.

154. From the Earles of Suffolke, Northampton, & Salisbury: 2. April 1606. by Mr. Hawkefworth. 405.

In behalf of Sir Henry Cary, who was taken prisoner in Flanders, removed from Castele to Castele, that his Friends might have no Information concerning him, and at last his Ransome sett at a most exorbitant Price. Our King therefore, after having taken some Notice of the matter to the Spanishe & Arch-dukes Ambassadors, commandeth him to move it to the King of Spain, and Duke of Lerma.

155. From the Earle of Salisbury; by Mr. Hawkefworth. 407.

Concerning Sir Charles's private Affaires, which his Lordship had taken care of, with commendations of Mr. Hawkefworth his Secretary, who had acquitted himself with Reputation in all points.

156. From the Earle of Suffolke Lord Chamberlayne to his Majestie, by Mr. Hawkefworth. 408.

That he was one of those few who were made acquainted with the great busines brought by Mr. Hawkefworth, and with the return He carried back. His Lordship is not of the Opinion that the Spanishe Court is sincere in this matter, but rather that it is an Artifice to gain Time. That there are daily Threatenings by underhand Reports, that a Match between Spaine & France is industriously pursued on both partes; and that many Circumstances give Strength to the beleefe of more then likelihood of a Concluding Effect of this matter.

157. From the Countesse of Suffolke.

In favor of Sir Henry Cary Prisoner in Flanders.

Treaty of Amity; the same Reasons still subsisting. His Majesty excuseth himself from acting as Mediator between the King of Spain & the Hollanders; and yet in such a manner as not to disoblige.

159. Propositions from His Majestie, brought by Mr. Hawkefworth, under the Handes of the Earles of Dorset, Nottingham, Devonshire, Northampton, & Salisbury. 416.

About a Peace between Spaine & the United Provinces; upon the foot of yielding the Sovereignty thereof to the Prince of Great Britain & the Infanta of Spaine, soe as a Marriage maie be had betwixt them, with Succession to the Children begotten of their bodies.

160. To the Earle of Salisbury from Madrid; by Mr. Williams, beginning his Journey 3 Junij. 419. b.

Relating the Conference he had with the Earle of Villa-longa the Spanishe Secretary of State, after Mr. Hawkefworth's Returne, about the great Busines. That he can obtain noe access either to the King or the Duke of Lerma; which he imputeth to a desire in the Duke of wyning tyme for Deliberation in what sorte to deale with him. That one Clifford doth publicly there deprave the Religion & Government of his Countrey. That Don Lewis Firardo hath lately bene abroad with his Navye, and (as 'tis said) had fortune only to meete with an English Pirate laden with Spaniards, purposed to be fould in Barbarie. That he is advertised from Siute that Firardo in his Voyage mett with certaine Shippes from London, laden with Corne, & bound for Siute. That he tooke the Masters, & first sett their Neckes in the Stockes; after, removed them to the Admirall, & there with his owne handes did as much to their Legges, reviling & calling them Heretiques, Lutheranes, Dogges, & Enemies of Christ, threatening to hang them, &c. That he hath been an earnest Suiter for the liberty of the other English Factors & Mariners, but is answered with the Shrinke of the Shoulder, & desired to have yet patience. That he hath not been able to procure the Restraint of Captain James Blount. That notwithstanding he hath lately procured the King's Letters to be sent to all his Ports, with expresse Commandement of an especial regard to the good vldage of His Majesties Subjects; yet, in all places they receive as many grievances as ever, which he imputeth to the evil Dispositions of the Spaniards, or to some Connivance of the Court. He suggesteth therefore that some present Courfe be taken for the reliefe of the poore Merchants, that can procure noe Redresse by way of Mercy or Justice.

161. To the Earle of Salisbury, from Madrid, by the same. 431.

That he hath been with the Conde de Villa-longa, about Sir Henry Cary, whose Answer was good: & he hopeth when he can get access to the Duke of Lerma, to procure a good end to that affair. That he will assist Marten van Somaren in getting the remaiuer of the Debt due from the Spanishe Friers. That he purposeth not to deliver the Kings Letter in behalf of George Strangham a Scottman, till he shall further understand his Majesties pleasure; wishing that His Majesties Hand were more spare in those private Causes, especially to the King of a Nation so punctual as that, which hath already sett some Note of His often writing. That the Spaniards have neither soe much good Nature as to love for the present, nor soe much Discretion & Providence as to feare for the future. But sithence Feare & Feeling work most upon them, he would that his Majestie should make a little Essay of the French Kings Medicine (when the French can find no Reliefe by waie of Justice) to even their Lofes upon the Seas. Twoe or three such Examples will prove a meane of present Reformation in all Disorders.

162. To the Earle of Northampton. 434.

Touching some of his private Affaires, That he had the favor of the King of Spain to land the Value of his Money (he intended to bring with him) in Commodities, dities, at Lisbon, Custom-free. That, besides, the Duke of Lerma had procured that King to give the Order of St. Jago to a Gentleman at Sir Charles's Request, for which he received a Gratification of 400 l. and wondereth why he maie not receive without Suspicion what our King, out of his Liberallitie would bestowe upon him. Relateth the meanes used by the Conde de Villa-Longa the Spanish Secretary, to gain him to themselves; and his Conduct on that Occasion, since which, He hath found his Reputation much increased. That he hath also had Offers from a German to break the Peace between England & Spain, which he also rejected.

163. To the Earle of Northampton, Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports. 438. b.

Blaming the Spaniards for their Unsteadiness as to their Proposals; and ling this down for a Maxim in State, that he neither loves his King or Country, that withes any Faith to be given to the Spaniards, or Confidence to their Courtiers, longer than they serve for supplies to their owne necessities.

164. To the Earle of Suffolke Lord Chamberlaine to his Majesty. 439. b.

165. To the Countess of Suffolke. 440. b.
That he hath tak'n much paines for the reducing Mr. Henry Carye's Ranfome to some reasonable Proportion; his being found in that Company (after soe many Favours & good Enteraynement received in the Archdukes Courte) being very unkindly taken. That he hath at last prevailed with the Duke of Lerma & the Earle of Villa-longa, that Belasco (who is now possessed of him shall (when he receiveth the Kings Liberalltie for his past Services) give him his Libertie, upon a verie reasonable agreement Sir Charles sendeth her Ladyship some curiosities made by Spanish Nuns of Quality, and one among the rest to the Lady Cecil.

166. To the Earle of Nottingham, &c. 441. b.
That the Conde de Lemos is very thankful for our Kings favor done unto him. That the Spaniards are disgusted at our Court, saying that their Ambassador can receive no contentment or favor there, but from the King himself.

167. To the Earle of Suffolke, Lord Chamberlaine, &c. 443. b.

That he suffereth in his Negotiation of the great Busines, through the traitorous Reports spread by some unnaturall Intelligencers of our own Country. That much Complaint hath come thither, of the little respect used by the English Ministers towards the Spanish Ambassador; for which reason the Spaniards have altered their Carriage towards him. That as to the aforesaid Great Negotiation, much is the present distast of the Spaniards, and the neglect we are growne into with them. Yet he hinteth as if there was little likelihood of their Coniunction with France.

168. To the Earle of Northampton. 444. b.
He expresseth himself as if the Difficulties in bringing the great Busines about, were almost insuperable. That the Spaniards are not just for Justice sake, nor loving in Regard of Charitie or Merit, but a particular Interest. That the Intelligencers in England, & Fugitives there do infinite prejudice to the Interests of our King & Country. He witheth that Reprisals were made on the Spaniards who have no Commiseration of our English Merchants.

169. To Sir Thomas Edmondess, His Majesties Ambassador with the Archduke. Sent by an English Prier. 447.

That he hath moved for the Apprehension of Captain James Blount, (who was recommended thither by the Bruffels-Jesuites, & hath been confirmed by Walpole & others) but without any further effect than Promises. That Blount hath had better Success in his Endeavours to blast his late Colonel the Lord Arundel, & also his Lordship. That this may be taken the more patiently, in regard they have done the same by our King, and his whole State. That the Handle given to the Spaniards for this Alteration, is the restraint of English Supplies to them, and the yielding them abundantly to their Enemies, the disrespectful Usage of their Ambassador, & denial of Justice to their Subj^{ts}. That the Princes of Savoy are upon their Departure, and stay only for the Money they should have from the King for the Charge of their Journey. That the King did lately forbear to goe publicly to his Chappell, because of the Ambassador of Venice, wh^{ch} State is thought to be now completely excommunicated. That the Marquis Spinola hath engaged his Estate for support of this Campaign, and therefore hath bought his Titles of Councellour of State & Grandee of Spaine very dear.

Num. 1875.

170. Certaine Reasons drawne by my Lord Ambassadour, to prove that the Alliance with England concerning the Lowe Countreys in Dowrie, is both honorable & profitable for Spaine. 452.

The Copie of this was inclosed to my Lord of Salisbury, in a Letter dated 29 Maji.

171. To the Earle of Salisbury, from Madrid; by Alexander Stuart, who beganne his Journey the 9th of June 1666. 454.

That the Duke of Lerma looketh very pale & weakly after his Recovery, having not been spared by the Spanish Physicians, who have not so much Skill as ours. Relateth the Conference he had with that Duke, upon the Subjects of Restitution to be made to our Merchants; of their Ambassadors being disgracedly used by our Kings Ministers; of the Kings Answer to their Propositions of the great busines; the punishment or delivery of the Traytor Owyne; & the enlargement of Sir Henry Carye. Relateth also the Discourse between Mr. Hawkefworth his Secretary and the Conde de Villa Longa, about restitution to be made to our Merchants. That the Spaniards upon the Departure of the Hollanders from their Coasts, are again grown as haughty as ever. That he is of opinion, they will not yield to the proposed alliance between the two Crownes, by reason of the Opposition made thereunto by the Cancellors they consult.

172. To the Earle of Salisbury; by the foresaid Messenger. 464. b.

That there are latelie arrived divers Irish Fryers, Priests, & Captaines, from the Lowe Countreys, & keep their Rendezvous at the Lodginge of Capitaine Blount; where (as in other places) they talke liberallie of England, & English matters, and against our King himself. That for divers reasons he findeth not himself in a capacity of getting the Offenders punished: one of which is, because of the extreme Lawes and bitter Persecution as the Spaniards terme it) against thole of their Religion both in England & Ireland; especially in Ireland, where they reporte that Priests & Friars are executed by Martiall Lawe. Moreover, that such Informations are given, even out of the Kings Chamber, in depravation of his Person, Government, & State, as have had but too fatal an effect. That Sir Henry Caryes busines must be tried by a Council of War, & subjected to the ordinary delays. Relateth the lamentable Cases of our Merchants & other the Kings subjects, who can have no relief from the Spaniards; & whose Redresse he leaveth to the King. That the Alliance with our State is not now thought of by them. That Spinola was enforced to engage his owne Estate to the Genowayes, for the borrowinge of this yeeres Money for the Warres. That they have now no more hopes of the Indian Fleete. That they have raised as much Money in Sicilia & Naples as is possible, but it proves as a bean in the Mouth of a Lion. He looketh on the Extremity of their hatred to the Fre. ch to be so great as that an Alliance with that Nation must be reserved for a desperate Medicine, to be swallowed like a Pill, without either chawinge or thinking on. That there is a great Competition between the two Jesuits Cref. well well & Parsons, of the former of whom he conceiveth the best Opinion and thinketh him the best Instrument he could use for working the Alliance with us, & disappoint him with France; but since his Lordship hath forbidden him to correspond with him, he will obey.

173. To the Earle of Salisbury, from Madrid. 473. b.

Relating h's Discourse with the Spanish Secretary Prada, concerning the Spaniards beginning again to suffer themselves to be abused by our Fugitives; for which, they had before bitterly smarted; concerning the Apprehension of Blount, & Punishment of Owyne; and that Secretaries Assertion that our King stayed all those who were willing to serve the Archduke, and suffered multitudes, out of London it self, to put themselves into the Army of the Hollanders. That the French endeavor to put a Pique betwene England & Spaine, for the better effecting the late affected Alliance. That the Duke of Lerma refuseth to be spoken with; and though the Conde de Villa-Longa denies noe Audience, he fo niggles & shuffles, as with him there can be found noe sound ground.

174. A Letter to the Duke of Lerma. 476. b.

In behalf of Sir Henry Carye; about the great Busines as profitable to Spaine, & honorable to the Duke; and putting him in mind of the Merchants.

175. To my Lord of Salisbury, 20 Juny 1606. 477. b.

Touching the weak & unfitted State of Spaine. That the Jesuits, Priests, Fryers, & Fugitives agree that his Lordship is the Causa Causarum of all their Sufferings, and the onely especial Favourer & Patron of the States. That therefore they have plotted together for the Murder of his Lordship, by a Musket-shot out of the Savoy, or some other houle neere, as his Lordshippe shall be goeing by Water to the Courte, or other place in Westminster, and he partly suspecteth that Blount is the Man who must do it. That the Spaniards complain much of England, and that his Majestie hath broken the Conventions of France. That they seeke for the Will of the Kings Mother, written with her owne hand, whereby the Queene, in case that the King her Son should or become a Catholique, deified her Kingdom of Scotland, and all Her rights in England, France & Ireland to the King of Spaine. That advice is come of the Lofse of four of the Gallions laden with Treasure from the Indies; and that it was much suspected that the other three are gone the same waye. That in Peru, there are five Townes lately swallowed with an Earthquake, and with them, two silver mynes; and the like number of Store houles wherein was kept the Kings Quick-silver that refined the Silver. That the Hollanders had sunk four of the five Ships that Don Lewis Firardo had left in the West-Indies. That he had had a late Audience of the King of Spaine who used him very graciously, & promised that he would redrels the Merchants Grievances, and that Owyne should be dealt with as he deserved. That the Duke of Lerma holds himself verie private; but that his Privado Don Rodrigo Calderon hath sent him word that the busynes concerning Sir Henry Carey shall with greates care and speede be dispatched. That the Conde de Villa-Longa had solemnly sworn that Blount should be hanged, if any guiltynes should be found in him, and yet had afterwards shewn him a faire Countenance. That the same Conde hath distasted all the Ambassadors about the Courte, the Popes Nuntio himself not excepted; but the French Ambassador most of all, who hath now, of late, noe access either to him, or the Duke. That it was thought that Peace would not long continue betwene Spaine & France. That there hath of late been great meanes used by the Duke of Lerma & the Conde de Villa-Longa, to assemble 200,000 double Pistolets vpon a sudden. And that the Court took Offence at his having a Sermon preached in his house on Sundays.

176. To Sir Walter Cope. 484.

About the ill State of the Spaniards, who are in much Confusion by reason of the Hollanders, & the los of the greatest part of their Indian Fleet; and that they are extremely jealous of the Earle of Salisbury, who ought to be very carefull of himself.

177. To the Earle of Salisbury. 485. b.

Setting forth the Perplexities the Spaniards labour under; proposing a new Project of his owne for effecting the great Busines, in case the present one should fail; & reciting a fresh rumor, of the Hollanders beating Firardo, spoiling his Fleet, & taking his Perion.

178. To the Earle of Northampton, Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports. 5 July 1606. 489.

That the Spaniards, upon the lying Reports of the Fugitives, are much altered in their Inclinations & Carriage towards us, and shew all want of will to redress any of the Wrongs done to our Merchants at a Coniuncture when (were they not blinded & made stupid by their Pride and overweeninge) it would plainly appeare unto them, that would our King be lightly moved to an Occasion to breake with them, it is now in his power (considering the present miserable Estate they stand in) to fect his Foote on their Heads, & sincke them for ever. Advices that some Method be taken in order to draw them to better Termes of Commerce than those now in use, other wise the Perill of our Merchants will be much, and their Gaine nothing. That the Spaniards are a most stiff & strange people, and in their humours so desperate, as that they will adventure the ruine of all, rather then forgoe their Customes, or hasten their pace in any thinge. That as for their Divinity, at this instant it hardly agreeth with good Humanity. That to murder or make away any man that stands betwene them & their ends, they account it rather a matter of Meritt than of Malice.

179. To the Lords of His Majesties most honorable Privie Councell, from Madrid. 492.

Complaining of the incertain humor of the Spaniards, from whom he cannot as yet procure Justice to be done to our Kings complaining Subjects. That the Spaniards alledge that in England they receive noe Justice nor Favor at all; That unto the Hollanders there are permitted 5000 Souldiers, to them not one; That our King, by his Articles, is to secure the Coasts, where the Subjects & Souldiers of their King are continualie spoiled & massacred: with the plain & resolute Answers he returned unto them, & their Thraconical Reply. He setteth forth the great Weakness of the Spaniard, and the very wretched way they go by, in the management of affaires. That there had been a notable Sermon preached in the Kings Chapell, enforcing the Necessitie of Obedience to the Authoritie of the Pope, whom, with respect to the Venetians, it is resolved in Council the King shall not abandon. That at last, after long Sollicitation, Blount is apprehended & kept close prisoner. That farther, to content our King, they have lately given warninge to all the Irish Captaines, Souldiers, Fryers, Priests, & Beggars (of all which there are lately come a great swarme) that ymedately they avoyde the Countrey: and one Culack a Doctor of Doway, who was in a good way to have obtained 20000 Crownes for amplifying the Irish Seminarie in Doway, is now like to lose his labour. That divers of these whom He had procured to be delivered from the Gallies had fallen again to their old Trade of pillaging the Spaniards & Portugueses, & were sett upon by Don Lewis Firardo, with whom (notwithstanding his much superior force) they fought desperately for a day & a night, killing many of his People; but were, at last taken, the principal of them hanged, & the rest putt to their old Stations.

180. To the Earle of Salisbury, from Madrid. 498. b.

Much against the Spaniards; & hinting as if the peace betwene England & Spaine was an Impediment to the greatest advantage & meanes to enrich our King & Realme, that in any Age hath ever ben offered. As to the Man that should kill his Lordship, he doth now vehemently suspect one Captain Burke an Irishman, because of his owne evil Affection to our Nation and Government; and the greates Favours & Increase of Pension & Reward that he hath received since his coming. That among the Pages of the Duke of Lerma's Chamber, a common talke it is what an extreme Persecutor His Lordshippe is of the Catholiques in England. Hereupon, every man wilhes that their hands might give him the Pugnalladoll this his Cruelly deserveth. That among the rest, one Warren an English Barber (and of some privacy with the Duke) wilhed he were in England to give his Lordship the Stabby, though he were hanged & quartered the next daie after. That these are the fruites of the malicious reports of our Jesuits & Fugitives, which, as yet he cannot suppress.

181. To my Lord of Salisburie. 502.

That pitiful Reports had been spread about Blounts Imprisonment, as if he was putt into Irons, &c. whereupon Sir Charles had some purpose to send one to have Conference with him & relieve him, the matter was so continually referred forwards & backwards, between the Conde de Villa-Longa Secretary of State, & the Conde de Miranda President of Castile, that it came to nothing at last. Sir Charles adds, I verelie thinke if a man should putt up a memoriall vnto them desiring it might be lawfull to eat Mustard with his Beefe, they would keepe one Three Monthes in the Councells & Consults before they would determine it. That by their delays they daily dislate all people but those of their owne Nation; And yet they had a mind to have Blount tried by their Laws, although a Subject of our King, & his Treasons committed out of their Dominions. That the severall Councils of State, Warre, & the Indies sitt exceeding often & very close. That there are three projects on foot for raising money to the King. 1 A Libertie of Habitation & Religion to the Jewes; which people offer very largely. 2 An yeerlie portion to the King out of all Bishopricks & Ecclesiasticall Livings. 3 A Ratable proportion of the Gold & Silver Plate of that Kingdome. But that he believed, all three would prove but a Faggott to warme their Shirts, not a Fire to roste their meate. He doubts not but his Majestie will provide some Reliefe for his poor subjects who can have no Justice in Spaine; but is of opinion that the olde Waye of granting Letters of Mart or Reprieve, will be dangerous; His Majesties Subjects having too great effects there. That Sir George Carre hath received Advertisements from England, which he had communicated to the Constable, to the Secretarie Prada & Villa-longa.

182. To Sir Thomas Edmonds his Majesties Ambassador with the Arch-duke, 9 July 1606. 506. b.

That he believeth the Spaniards will not assent to deliver up Blount for England, toward which their Humour is much changed for the worse. The cause of this Alteration they attribute to us, with whom in generality they find neglect, and in particularity contempt. But Sir Charles judgeth it to proceed from the Intelligencers who deprave the King, & exaggerate the Persecution (so called) of the Catholicks, together with our assisting the Hollanders underhand. Herewith they bitterlie charge some of His Majesties Ministers of greatest power, and are not without a Will to revenge the same by any means they can either publique or secret. That by the supposed Loss of the Indian Fleet, and the extreme want occasioned thereby, they are become both stupid & desperate, & even carelesse of the continuance of the Peace, whereof they never had soe extreme neede, since if our King was at Libertie, it would be within his power to fet his foote on their Heads, & sincke them for ever. Rehearseth the three projects abovementioned for raising Money; concluding, that things there are in much Disorder and Confusion, being infected with the malignant Breath of some Jesuits & other Fugitives, and other ill-affected Countrey-men of our owne.

Num. 1875.

183. To the Earle of Salisburie, 9 July 1606. 509.

That finding the tymes grown on the sudden into soe extreame Alteration, he sendeth this Messenger (Mr. Pindar) exprels to His Lordship, to whose Report he hath committed much, as finding him to be a man of trust & abilitie. He prays for the Preservation of his Majestie, and safetie of his Lordship; against whom, whatsoever Malice can doe, will not be omitted.

184. The Coppie of a Letter written by my Lord (i. e. Sir Charles Cornwallis) unto Secretary Prada, translated into English. 509. b.

Remonstrating, that in nine one thing (though as cleere as the Light of the Sun) hath he since his coming into that Countrey, obtained end for any of his Masters Subjects. What this hath wrought in England, he cannot tell: but presume (if the Complaints from thence be just & true) that one Neglect hath begotten another.

185. From Sir Thomas Edmonds His Majesties Ambassadour with the Arch-Duke, 22 June 1606. 510.

That since our King refused to send over the Information for the Trial of our Fugitives there, Order was presently taken for their enlargement, & even of Owyenne, who is now in as great Credit as ever. That as to Captaine James Blount, who (with some others of his Coate there) had been detected of designing to have carried awaie the English Regiment there into England, for the assisting of Castelle his Enterprize after the Execution thereof: he had received Commandment from England not to urge the delivering him up, seeing his Majesties Request was before denied, and therefore advieth Him to surcease his pursuit of him in Spaine. That the English Regiment there hath received much Disgrace by the suddaine Cashing of all the principal Officers thereof, & almost one half of the Captaines. The Causes thereof are pretended to be the Disagreement between the Coronell & Sir Thomas Studder the Sergeant Major, which drew the Regiment into great Faults: Secondly, the pretended weakness of that Regiment, though it was then 1000 men strong; but chiefly because of the denial to suffer any more men to come out England thither: although the said Refraint was onely limited vnto the end of the Parliament. And that their other carriage towards England (by the incitement of our Fugitives) is such as may engender evil Concepts between both Courts. That some Officers have been beheaded, & others disgraced, for not doing their Duty at the attempt to take Sluyce by surpris, which Towns the Flemmings would have to be again besieged, but that it was intended rather to be besiege some Inland Towne than a Place that could be relieved by the Enemy. He advertiseth other particulars relating to the State of the War there. That the Jesuits had procured the Revocation of the Popes Nuntio, because he was more moderate, & would not join with them in their violent Courses. Recommendeth to his Solicitation the Case of Mr. Peter Benevoire Merchant of London; whose ship, intended for Virginia, raking in Water in the River of Helena in the Coast of Florida, was surprisid by the Spaniards, the Goods confiscated & sent into Spaine. As also the Case of one Mr. Mountpessons an old Gentleman who had some arrears of a Pension from the King of Spain, called Remato, due unto him; which is not used to be paid, but by especiall Order out of Spaine, to be obtained there, as friends can be made.

186. To the Lord of Salisburie by the waie of Flanders, presently after the going of Mr. Pindar the 9th of July 1606. 516.

That he hath awakened the Spaniards out of their Dreame by speaking lower than they: & now they say that they are not soe evil affected as to breake the Peace vpon a few unkindnesse, proceeding rather from His Majesties Ministers then Himself; and promise Answers of all the Causes here depending, but he suspecteth the Sicilian busines will still be shuttled off at last. That the

Num. 1875.

King of Spain hath issued fresh orders for preventing Injuries to be done to our Country-men, & for punishment of divers Officers who have contravened the last.

187. To Sir Thomas Edmondes His Majesties Ambassador in the Lowe-Countrys. 518.

How that by his pulling the Spaniards by the Sleeve, he hath made them to open their Eyes. That Blount remaineth still in Prison, but that (upon receipt of his Letter) he told them, that considering they purpose the same way with him, that before they did with Owyn, our King not allowing any Tryal for any Subject of his at the Tribunal of another Prince, he remitted him wholly to them, whose (as he perceived) are determined to sett him at Libertie.

188. To my Lord of Salisbury, in the beginnigne of August. 519.

That the want of Money & Plenty of Miseries dayly encrease. That a Gentleman is come from the Marquis Spinola, whose principal Errand is thought to be an Advertisement of a failing in the Undertaking for the furnishing of Money, vpon the losse of the Indian Treasure, and a Solicitation for a Supply from Spain. That they now again give hopes (since they have no money) to the English suffering Merchants. That he hath of late, & shall be again very playne with them, upon their Reports of our King, that he hath broken his Covenants; and that they formerly thought the English Nation valiant, honorable, & punctual in all their Actions, but perceive them now to growe cautious & irrespctive of their Word & Promise. That as to the Sicilian Cause (i. e. that of Hall & Eldred) the Constable, being President of the Councell of Italie, was authorized to make this Answer. That such are the Lawes & Customs of that Countrey, as a Cause there sentenced cannot be revoked, to be reviewed in another place. That the manner of proceedings there (i. e. in Spain) is so troublesome, vnjust, & vnprofitful, as without some newe Conventions for reformation of the daely oppressions of their Officers in the Ports, it will be neither profitable nor safe for his Majesties Subjects to continue their Commerce there. Relates the Conferences he had with the Constable, & with the Secretary Prada, touching our Merchants, & the better Regulation of the commerce between both Nations. Touching which, the Secretary desired him to have a little patience, saying that their Intricacies, Difficulties, & Necessities were not unknowne to him. That those had made them forget themselves in many matters that much imported them at Home; and therefore noe marvaile though they had not taken that Course & Care they should with Forraigners in matters abroad; and that there should be an end of all very shortly, and in the mean time, the King will take a special care to punish the very next delinquents that shall oppress any of our Kings Subjects in his Ports. That all this while whoe soever speaks worit of England, is held the most found Friend to Spaine, and continue their same bad opinion of His Lordship. That the Captains Burke & Weston continue there still, being both ill affected to our Countrey in generall & to his Lordship in particular. That Blount is still in Prison, although they would not deliver him up to our King, having protested that for their Honor they would not doe it, if he were a Turke. He fendeth to his Lordship a Treaty between the French King & the Hollanders, likely to prove prejudicial to their Estates.

191. From my Lord of Salisbury, dated in June. 527. b.

Admiring at the course taken by the Spaniards in so frequent intringing the Treaty of Peace, which his Majesty must think proceeding from the Great ones, unless due punishment be done on the inferior Officers: For the embarguing our Shippes at Lisbon, contravning our Marriners to serve in Warlike Actions against our Friends; confiscating of whole Shippes & Goods for a small Quantitie of pretended forbidden Commodities; exacting still 30 per Cent, in the Islands of Terceras, cannot be construed as done by private Authority; besides many such other notorious wrongs daile brought unto his Majesties Eares, the Redresse whereof the Merchants pretend to be delayed through his (Sir Charles's) Remittines. Directeth him how to proceed at the Spanish Court with relation to Blount, who had been accused of the Gun-powder Treason; who being summoned upon his Allegiance to repaire into England, willfully disobeyed, & went from Bruxelles, hoping to receive a better support in Spaine. That our Queene had been delivered of a Daughter, who died the next day. That they were in Expectation of the King of Denmarks coming over to England. He fendeth Sir Charles a Proclamation published since the finishing the Parliament, concerning the banishing of Priests & Jesuits, by which he might imagine the future course of his Majesties Proceedings against them would be rather by Lenity & Moderation, than by Seueritie in the Execution of the Lawes: although in this Parliament there hath been some sharpnes passed in Terrorum. That the French King hath invited our King to be Godfather to his eldest Daughter at the generall christening of his three Children, at once. That our King willingly accepted of the Honor, but since the Pope was to be Godfather to the Dolphin, he desired to be excused, because he could not avoid Scandall in participating with the Pope in any publique action. But if the eldest Daughters Christening might be performed some convenient tyme before the other twoe (although his Majestie knoweth the Difference betweene a Dolphin & a Daughter of France) yet he will be most ready to accept of it.

192. From the Lords of His Majesties most Honorable Privie Counsell; dated 9 July 1606. 532.

All upon the Subject of the Spanish cruel & unjust Usage of our Countrey-men, who had desired Letters of Marque for their getting Satisfaction, since Justice had been denied them; & requiring him again to solicit these matters with all imaginable earnestnes & Zeal, in order to procure Redress for the poor People, if it might be possible.

193. From my Lord of Salisbury; dated 12 July 1606. 536. b.

That the Merchants impute their lack of Redress in Spain in a great measure, to a Guift bestowed on him by the King of Spain, with this further Circumstance, that certain English Merchants should have bought it of him, but that he differed in the Price, not a Trifle, but some Thousands of Pounds; and that therefore He dare not offend the Spaniards. His Lordship wonders why he doth not putt them more in mind of their often breaking the late Treaty of Peace, when upon every petty Injury they shall be whining here, & yet deny Justice to our Countrey-men who have suffered more notorious & flagrant wrongs, and of twenty times the Value. The Truth of the Matter concerning the Restraint of our People who were willing to serve the Arch-Duke; and of the Proceedings in our Parliament with reference to Spain, and the late Treaty of Peace, and of the Neutral Conduct of the Ministry in respect of the Men who are willing to serve on either Side. That a Practise had been discovered in Person, and for seizing his Cautionary Town of Flushing between one Captain William Nuce, & Thomas Franco, who met in the Chamber of one John Baile an Irishman, Servant to the said Ambassador; who had made too many Scruples about the delivering up of this same Baile; who had also kept peysoned Paft of Genoa by him, of which (as it cometh, through mistake) Nuce & his Family did eat. Sir Charles is desired to advertize this matter to the King of Spain.

194. From the Lord-Treasurer of Denmark; dated 4th June 1666.

Envaldus Kruse writes this Letter to thank Sir Charles for the Courteties & Civilities he had shewn to his Nephew.

195. From Laurentius Crusius Vice-Roy of Norway. 4th Augst 1666.

On the same Occasion, 1666. From the Lord Treasurer of Denmark; dated 4th June 1666.

That he had laid his several Letters, wherein he had sett forth the great coldness of the Spaniards towards us, with their intolerable delays and Refusal of doing our poor Merchants Justice, before the King & Council. That thereupon, His Majestie (before he would breake with Spain) had come to a Resolution of drawing the Spanish Ambassador here to an orderly Conference upon the Subject of our Peoples Grievances, and of the present Coldness of the Spaniards, which was for the most part attributed to his Advertisements from hence. That this Conference was held the 22 of August, wherein the Baron of Holloque the Arch-Dukes Ambassador was also called to assist the Spaniard. His Lordship giveth the particulars transacted at that Meeting, which hath also an especial relation to Franco, Nuce, & Baile abovementioned. He delivereth his Opinion, that the Spanish Coldness towards us at this time, is occasioned by their Repentance of the 'Treatie of Peace, which left us a Liberty of Voluntaire Service to the States both at Land & Sea, which galleth them many waies. That their denying us Justice in Spain, is to draw us to trade with them in Flanders. That therefore if our Country-men shall continue to be thus tyrannized upon in Spain, and can receive no right, it will be high time for His Majestie to bethink himself of another Course, for which he had never fairer Overtures of streight & potent Conjunctures; although his inward intention be to conserve Peace as long as he maye with Honour & Safety. That lately a great & general Complaint of the Refort of Papists to Massie at the Spanish Ambassadors House, the High Commission had ordered some of the Offenders to be stayed. That as soon as this was knowne the Officers were ordered to forbear to come neere His Gate any more that daie, whereby divers Persons of good Qualitie who were within, escaped. He writeth of other matters relating to that Ambassador and his Nation: produceth a new Instance of their small respect for our Kings person, by their not punishing a fellow at Antwerp who had spoken injuriously of him; and as to himself, notwithstanding his danger by their bloudie practices, is resolved to be the more zealous in the Service of God and his Country.

197. The Introduction (to the Conference specified in the former Letter, delivered by the Earle of Salisbury to the Spanish Ambassadors.

This setteth forth the Nature of our Complaints against the Spaniards, as, 1. Embarging our Ships. 2. Continuing the Duties of 30 per Cent. in divers places of their Dominions. 3. Forceably taking our Mariners out of our Ships, & making them serve in theirs. 4. Confiscating of Ships & whole Ladeings for a small quantity of prohibited Goodes. 5. Putting our Men into the Inquisition without layinge any particular Charge unto them; & forcing them to doe Reverence to the Sacrament in the Streete. 6. Imposing of New Impositions, & Continuings of other Exactions at their pleasure. All these were directly against the late Treaty, besides, 7. Particular Wrongs & Injuries, and denyall of Justice; & 8ly. Many Indignities & Unkindneses, not to be separated from the same: Treaty of the 12th of Sept^r 1666.

198. Sir Henry Wotton from Venice, 2 September 1666.

Partly in Cypher, but relating to the Difference between that State & the Pope. That the War between them, is as yet a Paper War, the Printer gaining more than the Cutler. That the King of Denmark is departed howe wardes, having brought with him 500 of his Counsellors that dissuaded the Voyage.

199. To Sir Henry Wotton, 29 September 1666. 162.

That soe long as the Paper-fight continueth, there is to be expected more Effusion of Witt than Blood; the Exercise being better, and the Perill lesse. That the disastrous Fortunes & Improvidences of the Spanish State doe dailey more & more shewe themselves. That their East-Indian Fleet is partly perished, & the rest taken by the Hollanders, the Admiral of Biscay fallen into the same Hands, and now an Hundred Holland Ships of Warre come upon their Coasts, to attend the coming home of their Fleets from the West-Indies. That still, they will do no Justice to His Majesties Subjects, but Injustice continually; whereby, the Peace will become as perillous to Our King, as much more disadvantageous to his Subjects than the Warre. That Six of his principallest Servants are now sick of the Calenture (not to mention three more lately dead of it) this Country being in his Opinion much more perillous than the Campe in the Low Countreys. Sir Charles thanketh him for his good Advice to his son Sr. William, whom he styleth unthrifty & unfortunate, saying that he had spent him 5000 pounds at Court, and now, when he had given him 200 pounds a year more, he turnes his backe to the Fortunes. And that of all sorts of people he most despairs of those of his forte, that are Philosophers in their Wordes, and Fooles in their Workes.

200. The effect of a Speech vied to the Lordes of Council in Spain, by Sir Charles Cornwallis, upon occasion of an Affirmation by one of them, that His Majestie of Great Brittain had broken the Capitulation of the Peace.

201. A Copie of the Generall Memoriall, 1 (Sir Charles) exhibited to His Majestie of Spain in the behalfe of the Merchants of His Majesties Subjects trading into those Kingdomes. August 1666.

202. To Don Pedro de Cullala, Vice-roy of Portugall, in the behalfe of one Mr. Gargane, sometimes a Minister in England, and become a Merchant in Lisbon, and there apprehended by the Inquisition.

203. To my Lord of Salisbury.

That by private Notice from a friend, he understandeth that the Merchants give out that he dare not offend the Spaniards by importunate Solicitation of their Causes, as having received great Gifts from the King there: and that he hath prevailed for such of our Countrymen as sued for Penfions, but obtained not the Libertie of Fish as were kept in Limas. To which he answereth, that He hath spared no paines in their Causes; that that alone of Hall & Eldred, hath cost him one way or other, out of his own Purses, the better part of an Hundred Pounds. That the Spaniards are such a people as that no man can learne how to deal with them, by reason of their extreame delays, much mutability, & little respectivenes to their own honour or consciences. He cleareth himself of the Imputation of having received Gifts, owning no more than what hath been before mentioned. That as to Penfions he never was Suitor for any man whatsoever, but refused all; only when the King of Spain sent him word that he had enlarged the Penfion of Mr. Robert Southwell because he heard that he was his Kinsman; he gave (as became him) humble Thanks to his Majestie for soe greate a Favour. That as to his remittances in soliciting the Libertie of our captivated Country-men, his Letters would easily prove the contrary; besides he had actually delivered two out of the Inquisition, one out of the Prison at Lisbon, and 43 or 50 out of the Gallies. That his Servants dailey fall sicke, the Heate of this Sommer having been too excessive, as that they have lived in a manner as in an Oven; & he himself is grown too weake, as his Leggs will scarce carry him.

Num. 1875:

204. To my Lord of Salisbury. 12 September, 1606.

In answer (as it seemeth) to that above remembred at § 193. and again purgeth himself of the Gifts said to have been received by him; particularly, he relateth the matter of his Privilege of transporting Corn thither, which was the thing harped upon by the Merchants, and generally granted to Men of his Place. He also sayeth, That if he would have been tied up to the Spanish Rack slaves, he might have had more than he expected to be worth in his whole Lifetime. But, if the King of Spain would have given him the Value of all his Kingdomes, he would not have transgressed in his faith, or in any thing have failed the Trust reposed in him. That although the Spaniards are bad enough in their own Natures, & egged on by Fugitives & false Intelligencers; yet some of our Merchants have been to blame in giving Vent to malicious & untrue Reports, for serving their own Turnes. He desires that His Majestie would lend him 4000 l. to be repaid by 1000 l. a year; by which Sum he shall be able to quiet his Estate, & provide for his Daughter now 12 years of Age.

205. To my Lord of Salisbury, 17 September 1606 592.

That as to redressing the Grievances complained of by our Merchants, all that comes from the Spaniards are onely wordes to wyne ryme, and without all Intention. That our People having made their Complaints in general termes (without specifying the Names of those who suffered, or did the Injuries) his Representation must be too, and consequently his answer will be to little purpose. That if our Merchants must suffer the dailey Injuries offered unto them by the Spaniards; better it were that the Traffique were wholly left. He proceedeth to hint at a Rupture between the two Crowns, and sendeth his Lordship a Project for raising money to support the War. That divers of his Servants are fallen sick of the Calenture, & some dead. That there die of the Spaniards at least 300 a week, & of the Irish, many, the Physicians being so ignorant, that if a man fall sick, it is almost an even lay that he shall never recover.

206. The Grievances of His Majesty's Subjects, with the Protracts & Delays mentioned in the former Letter.

207. The Project for yeerelic Contribution for maintenance of his Majesties Warres.

I take this to be that which is above-mentioned at § 205.

208. To the Lords of the Counsell, 9 September 1606.

Relating his proceedings at the Spanish Court, in behalf of many of our injured Merchants. That as to the Shippe Castor & Pollux, he knows not how to frame his suite, because the Spanish Jealousie of their Indyees is so extreme, as they resolve to make it capitall to all such as shall fall into their Hands there. That Sir John Watts was not well advised to send thither with Goods of their Produce, especially Masse-bookes & Copes, which are not Wares for English Handes; but however, he will doe his best to recover what is taken from him. Relates the Arguments they use to keep their own People fast in their Religion, and to draw in ours; which have had their Effects. That the Access to the King there is difficult, that whosoever applies himself to him for any thing, sets back the Clock of his business very many Degrees. That the Method of the Spaniards in Dispatch of business, is vastly different from, & more tedious than that of England, as he sheweth by particulars; so that the most just & fauored Busynes cannot (in walking in the Ordinary Path) come to end, in less than 13 or 14 Monthes: but if crossed, or put out of the Way, very hardly in so many yeeres. Yet he meaneth to be a Suitor to His Majestie for brief Dispatch of the several Causes recommended to him, according to Lawe & Equity, although he knoweth this Attempt will be brought about with exceeding great difficulty. That when they before shewed so much good Humour to him, they had their Aim at the reaping of many Advantages (which he enumerates) from their Peace with England; but failing in them all, he feareth that their Amity how long soever it shall continue will be without Love & Trust. That in case of breaking with His Majestie, they would endeavour to trouble him by Ireland; but now of late, hope much more to kindle Fire in Scotland; and at the last finding none other Remedy, they saie they will accept of the Alliance & League offered by France. That at the late Consultation about the relieuing of the Kings Vants, many things have beene propounded; and amongst the rest, the Raising of His Coyne, which is wholly rejected; but the puttinge of an Impression of 2 Ryalls upon every Hegerage of Wheate spent or sold, they saie will yield to the King a Revenue of at least 14 Millions. That Sir Anthony Sherley is arrived at Lisbon, where he arrogats to himself the Title of Ambassadour to the Emperor; by whom, he sayeth, he is sent to the King of Marocco, whom he had presented with a Rubie of great perfection, of the weight of twoe Ounces, esteemed at 300,000 Ducats; the farther Story whereof, & of the Papers he sent to the Duke of Lerma, & to the Conde de Villalonga, I shall here omit.

Num. 1875:

209. To my Lord of Suffolke.

Setting forth the Reasons (before rehearsed) why he now despaireth of any Success in the great Busynes. That they now begin to attribute all their late Calamities, to another Sin. For openly in Pulpits it hath been preached, that better it had ben for them to have suffered Hunger, Poverty, nay Pestilence it self, than to have contracted Friendship with Heretiques & Enemyes of God. That they have already consulted & agreed of the Course they will take when the Peace shall breake, and he doubteth not but our King hath done the like.

210. To my Lord of Northampton.

Concerninge the Imputation laid upon him by the Merchants; as to which he referreth himself to the Letter he hath written to the Earl of Salisbury.

211. To Sir Thomas Edmondes, Ambassadour with the Arch-Duke, 19th September 1606.

That the Spaniards Eares are full of money, but their Purfes empty. That many Consultas and Juntas have ben lately made about the Provision of a Royal Navy; but what is concluded, or where they shoulde finde money to performe it, he cannot yet learne. That the Alteration of their behaviour towards us upon the suddaine, is greate; and though he hath of late exhibited divers Memorials, he can haue Answer of none, neither Access to the King, or the Duke of Lerma.

212. To the Lords of the Counsell, ultimo Dec-tembris 1606.

Relating a Conference he had with the Duke of Lerma, upon the Subject of our Merchants Complaints; the false Reports raised by our Fugitives; that two or three Commissioners might be appointed to hear & determine of our Merchants Causes according to Justice & Equity; that a more streight Commandment might be given to the Apofentador for an house to be assigned to him within the Towne, as to all other Ambassadors. How the Duke began to wheedle, in order to induce him to returne to Popery (wherein he had been bred) and the Answer made him by Sir Charles. That Owynn is arrived at Madrid, over whom he will keepe a watchfull eye. And, that Blount hath exhibited a Memoriall pretending to be of kindred kindred with duers Noblemen of England, that he left his Countrey & Goods for Religion, & by Sir Charles's means had suffered long and straight Imprisonment, &c.

213. To my Lord of Salisbury. 623.

Still desiring that His Majesty would lend him the 4000*l.* abovementioned. Setting forth the great Mortality reigning in his House, which is so straight, that neither Day nor Night he can avoid hearing the Groanes of his sick & dying Servants. That the Duke of Lerma begins now to make half a Profession of following his Pleasures, and geueing over to attend the publique busines. That the Court is followed by Comedians who cost the King 45*l.* a day, when those to whom the King oweth money dye dailey for want of Bred. That there is some Rumor as if there Indian Fleete of the last yere, is either come Home, or verie neare the Coast, and that the Hollanders either missed it, or dared not to attack it. That there is a generall fame, that the Hollanders labour much both of want of Men & Money, and hopeth that our King will not suffer the Spaniard to conquer them. That now again they dailey shew more Violence to his Majesties Subjects and less regard to what they capitulated. That he can by noe means get the two Secretaries to meete according to the Dukes late Order; nor from him any one Answer or Dispatch of any thinge.

214. To my Lord of Salisbury. 626. b.

Relating the Discourse he had with Secretary Prada concerning his Lordship, the Opinion of the Spanisch Court concerning him, & how they came to conceive that Opinion; and that they were now altered. That Prada, in Conclusion, plainly confessed that they had received a double Offer out of England; either to murder his Lordship, or to raise a Difference between him & some other great Lords; both which he protested, were absolutely denied & refused, and gave him the Reasons why. That Owyne hath met with a very cold Reception; and neither He nor Blount goes abroad by day-light. That the Ambassador of Venice tooke knowledge to him how much that State holds its self obliged to his Majesty, and also enlarged himself in particular Commendations of his Lordship, and that the other Ambassadors there, carry the same mynde. That in another Conversation with Prada, he told him that the Spanisch Hated upon their Nation, & scandall to their Government; the blame whereof Prada laid upon the late Erection of Consulas, but again promised fair things. He believeth that there are some secret Treaties in hand between Spain and France. That diverse of our Irish Fugitives haue of late obtained increase of their Penfions. That his Cousin Henry Cornwallis is come thither, whose wants he relieveth, endeavoring also at the same time to reduce him from Popery; that the Young Gentleman desireth some Pension from His Majesty, whose Pleasure therein Sir Charles will expect. That the Spaniards still continue shuffling in the Causes of our Merchants, promising much & performing nothing, he therefore believeth that their true Intent is only to wyne tyme, without any purpose to give Contentment in any thing of Subistance. That the Ambassador of Mantua there, hath of late received severall speciall Commandments from his Master to offer his Affection & Service to our King, whose answer Sir Charles desireth to receive. That the Mortality continueth in the House, Mr. Hawksworth his Secretarie & 4 more being dead; his Chaplain & twoe others Sicke, & Three more late fallen downe; and that notwithstanding he hath taken Phisicke, he is in dailey doubt to endure what his Servants haue done. Lastly, he desireth that his Majesties Allowance may be better paid, he having gonne by borrowing, to the utmost end of his Credite.

215. To my Lord of Salisbury. 633.

That Hawksworth his Secretary being dead, he provided himself of Cooke, who sometimes served the Emperors Ambassador; but his Confessor & Countymen so terrefied him with the Fire of Hell to his Soule, and that of the Inquisition to his Body, as he withdrew himself without taking his Leave, and will not be perswaded to returne. That there is no hope of successe in the grate Busynes; for without Tolleration of Religion, they will not adventure a Daughter in England. That Sir Anthony Sherley did in Barbarie play many parts of Mountebankerie which, perhaps, some Merchants Factors in London will bitterly tast of; and those of Lisbon hardly escape him. That Sir Anthony hath shewed an inexampled License or Passport from our King; desiring all Princes to geue him Passage thorough their Countreys, and to assist & supply him in all Necessities, which he would accept as a Favour to himself; and concluding that what he desired of forraigne Princes he straightly commanded to his owne Subjects. That the Seale was like unto the Privy Seale, and the Name subscribed under the License. That Seventy Shippes are lately arrived out of the Indies, & have lately brought with them at least Ten Millions, which hath much erected the Myndes of the Spaniards and encouraged them to threaten a Revenge against the Hollanders.

Num. 1875.

216. To my Lorde of Salisbury. 28 October 1606. 635.

That he findeth, of late, a full Song among the Spanisch Clergy (who absolutely governe ther) that nothing hath drawne the heavy Hand of God so fast upon them as the Conjunction with Hereticks his greatest Enemies; and thereupon, are content to publish & protest their vttermost Endeavors to work a Dissolution. As to the Court, his Opinion is, that although to serve their owne occasions, they maie temporize for a while, yet whensoever they shal be able to arme their Malice, they will not forbear to vie the effect of it; and neither tarry for termes of Honour or Conscience to geue Justifications to their Actions. That notwithstanding the arrival of their Fleets (which the Hollanders so narrowly missed) they are still devising means to relieve the Kings wants. That the Duke of Lerma hath entered into a resolution to abandon the World; and hath obtained a Breue of the Pope for taking the Order of St. Jerome, and hath also gotten a Licence of the Pope to retaine his Revenues in Commendam. This Report, is not vnprofitable, were it but to abate that Envy that follows his worldly Greatnes; nor unnecessary, if at any tyme he should (by the end of the Life or Favour of the King his Master) endure a Change of Fortune. That hitherto he hath been able to procure but small Effect of their Promises of redressing the Wrongs of our injured Merchants. That our Fugitives & Jesuits have sworn a Report, that none can live in England, without takeinge the Oath of Supremacy; but he hath somewhat taken off the edge of that malicious Slander. That the Spaniards are become very careless of the Continuance of the Peace; and the generall Opinion amongst them is, that it will not hold. That he tells them the first dole of the breach will be the beginning of their Sorrow; and the progresse of the Warre the Overthrow of their Greatnes. That they have increased the Penfions of diverse of the Irish; and Carre the Scotchman senuis & recieves diverse Dispatches to & from Scotland; & therefore desireth that an Eye were had vpon his Correspondents. That by his last Intelligence was brought of the Arraignement & Death of his Garret, & since then, he hath gotten 200 Ducats of his Pension. That Commissioners are expected from the Hanse Townes with Offer to serve the King by Sea against the Hollanders; and an Ambassador from Sweden.

217. To my Lord of Northampton. 641. b.

That his Importunite in the Causes of our Merchants hath been so much, as made him suspected; and some (of the best Sorte) were content to whisper that he did so, for his own Commoditie, & not by Commission or Commandement of the King his Master although those ungratefull People haue misrepresented him at home.

Num. 1875.

He sheweth many of the reasons why he hath been delayed. That the Delays in Spain are equal to all men: He instanceth in the Duke of Feria, who bought a Manor of the King for 40,000 Crownes (for which nobody else would give above 35000) The money being paid down, he was to be put into immediate possession; but before that could be done, an order came from the King forbidding it; the Duke being sufficiently great already, & the King not willing to part with a Seigneurie of such Command & Value. Hereupon the Duke desires his Money, but in two years time can get nothing, notwithstanding continuall & importunate Solicitation; nor (as it seems) any intention of reimbursing him. To particular like Examples in Persons inferior, were to write a whole Volume. That the Conde de Villa-Mediana, though (since his returne) exceeding bountifully rewarded by his King, is layd to live in great necessity.

218. To the Lords of the Council, 3 November 1606.
646. b.

That though our King had done Justice, on the Pirates whom the Spaniards complain of: in a late Case of one Thomas Linaz a Scotchman, they have not done Justice; and he expecteth the same Success in another like Cause. That he never yet could get the two Secretaries to meet, according to the Duke of Lerma's Promise: which pitiful dealing would have troubled him more, was it not common also to the Ambassadors of other Powers. Adviseeth that Consuls & Officers be sent to keep Order in the Affairs of our Merchants in Spain & Portugal, whom he would have to be of habit & discretion. That Blount being offered a Pension of 35 Crowns a Month from Naples, refuseth it as a Reward too small for the greatness of his Merit. That the same Offer will be made to Owen. That as to the Apprehension of Balle, he hath satisfied them, by an Example taken from themselves, being this. The Wife of Antonio de Perez, not charged with Treason, but with Effects of true Love to her Husband, was a means of his Escape out of Prison. The King deceased apprehended her in the house of the Venetian Ambassador there, and so caused her to be committed. That his Cousin Mr. Henry Cornwallis abovementioned, is deceased in his House.

219. To the Lords of the Council, 12 November 1606.

Concerning the Alteration in the Spaniards with respect to England, and the Reasons of it. That the motion for Alliance with France is revived & pursued with all Violence by the King himself; and with no lesse Ardour solicited by the Pope & the Duke of Florence: that, nevertheless, there remained a party in the Council, who were rather for the Alliance with England. That one of them had desired him to recollect his thoughts thereon, which he did by way of Proof of this Theme. That in the Alliance with France, the danger will be greater, and the utilities & honour less, then in that of England; wherein he already findeth that his Arguments have not been without their effect. That the Duke of Lerma & the Conde de Villa-Longa are yet for the proposal for England, and in a few dayes will confer with him thereupon: although himself holding it easier to destroy then to build, conceiveth he shall be more able to break their intended Alliance with France, then to effect that with England.

220. To my Lord of Salisbury, 16 November 1606.

That the Jesuits have translated into Spanish, & printed our Laws against the Popish Reculants. That by their procurement a Breve is sent from the Pope, forbidding the English Catholics to take the Oath. That he hath written again to the Duke of Lerma in behalf of our poore complaining Countrymen. That the Duke played the dilatory game with this also, alledging it must be considered in Council, before it could be answered;

CAT. HARL. VOL. II.

Num. 1875.

that being overpressed with the weight of the Kings affairs, he could not be spoken unto, &c. when as all the while he doth nothing but take his pleasures in his House & Gardens. That by the Spaniards Actions it appeareth, that such is their over-weening, as they thinke they may play with the Noses of all other People of the World. He therefore conjectures by their Government & proceedings, that the tyme draws neere when it will be said of them, as in the Psalmist, "Perijt memoria eorum cum Sonitu." That under colour of this late Debate betweene the Pope & the Venetians, they aime at a further Ellate in Italy. That one Fludd a Jesuit in Lisbon, lately wrote unto another, that he had made sure three Men very apt & trusty for the purpose projected; & wanted two more of like quality & trust, which shortly he hoped to procure. What the business is he cannot certainly tell, but addeth that those late Executions of their Collegues in England hath sent the hearts of the Jesuitical Faction on fire, and apted them for the undertaking of any Mischiefe whatsoever. That Blount & Owyne are not so careless as formerly. That in Lisbon there is one Linway a Pylot; a man of a most traiterous Disposition that useth dailey to rayle upon our King, for exercise: and witheth that Fludd & He were fetched away into England, they both doing very much Mischiefe there. That Mr. Tresham who was so long Prisoner in the Fleet is come to Madrid, in a very necessitous Condition. That our Laws against Popish Reculants are printed & published there, of which he hath complained, & hopeth to obtain some Redress in the end.

221. To my Lord of Salisbury, 20 November 1606.
668. b.

That upon his Declaration, that if he could not succeed now in our Countreymens Causes he would trouble them no more, but geuing them over as desperate, leaue them to be remedied by the King his Master, they have sent them all to the Consulta. That Blount hath gotten his Pension in Naples translated to the Lowe-Countryes.

222. A Copie of a Letter written by my Lord Ambassador to the Duke of Lerma in Nov. 1606.
669. b.

Complaining of the Breach of the Treaty by their harbouring & relieving our Traytors and Fugitives, and the most intollerable Delay of Justice, so long that our poor Countrey-men were exposed by them to all manner of Myseries & Necessities, even to Famine it self; if he had not, to his greates Charge, all the last Winter, and the most part of the ensuing Sommer, sustained them; and reproacheth him, in handsome termes, of his Breach of Promise.

Num. 1875.

answered to his former Letter, that he should proue the Falthoods which he alleaged to bee in the Translations of our English Lawes against Recufants. 676.

He sheweth the Strangenes & Unreasonableness of this Demand; but yet sendeth them the Falthoods & malicious Impudencies he meant; together with some briefe Reasons of the Occasion of those Lawes, which in the Originall are at large exprest, but cunningly suppressed by the Translators, for the better coveringe the Treasons & unnatural Practises of certaine Traitors & evil-affected Subjects whom they favour.

227. Concerning the Question, whether his Majestie of Spaine shall proceede with the Alliance with England moved from themselves; or with that of France solicited by others.

The Considerations are 32 in Number, and are drawn up by some in the Interest of France.

228. To the Earle of Northampton, 19 December 1606. About his private matters. 682. b.

229. To the Earles of Dorset, Nottingham, Suffolke, Northampton, & Salisbury at the same time. 683. b.

About the abovementioned 32 Heads or Considerations; which, some say were drawn up by Cresswell the Jesuit (who hath withdrawn his Love from his Countrey, upon seeing his Name in our late Statutes) or by the Bishop of Mounte-pulsiano the Florentine Ambassador, but rather by the latter. That Sir Anthony Shirley, having gotten some Inking of the Matter, perhaps by the Conde de Villa-longa (whose Custome it is to distill all Hearbes & Weedes that promise any Joyce) pretends now to be a Dealer in it, which himself takes to be absolute Mountebankery. That he had sent one of the Newe Mapes of England, Scotland, & Ireland, unto the said Conde de Villa-Longa, with a Message that he should peruse it well & often, as that Continent from whence Spaine must drawe the continuance & engreasing of their Monarchy. That he very kindly receaved it, with particular respects to the King & Prince whose Pictures were engraven therein. That the Spaniards use the French Ambassador with more respect then before, but say that there will be no conclusion of the Marriage of their Princeesse, till the King shall have more Sonnes. That there is a Discourse upon the Heade abovementioned, said to be exceedinglie well penned.

230. To the Earle of Salisbury. 697.

That what the malicious Tongues of our Jesuits delivier of the King, of the Queene, nay of the sweet Prince (the Hope of our Countrey, who neuer offended them) he forbearth to write, not onely Honoris gratia, sed etiam Verenditiae; since such they are, as are neither fit to revenge, or so much as stirre, or mention. He hopes that, at last, his Majestie will, in Consideration of his Honor & Office, procure Satisfaction for the greates & intolerable Injuries there done to his people.

231. To the Lords of his Majesties most honorable Privie Counsell. 687. b.

That the Spanish Counsellors delay (according to their old custome) the giving answer to his Complaint against the false Translation of our Laws against Recufants lately published there, as having now will to satisfie us in any thing further then Necessitie will enforce them. That there are lately presented to that State, by our Fugitives, certaine Advices or Declinations of the State & Government of our King, soe malicious, soe wicked, & soe slanderous, as must proceed from the Devil himself. That the Jesuits are much offended with him for noting the faults in their Translation, which Cresswell useth his utmost endeavours to palliate & smooth over. That Cresswell hath drawn up a Letter to him, commending his former Carriage in that Courte; wishing the continuance of his Temperance; and insinuating Scandall & Perill that followeth Violence; but hath not adventured to send it. That Wadsworth his revolted Chapleine, now a feather of that Wing, owned that they are much accumbred with what he had made appeare in their Translations. That they now spread a Rumour that his Majestie hath resolved to take away all the Bishopricks of his Kingdome, and overthrowe all the Cathedrall Churches. That the Spanish Court is much perplexed with the litle will the Emperor sheweth that there should be a Diett for the Choice of a King of the Romans. And they are in greates doubt that he will not geve his Voyce to those of his owne Houle; which moves them to entertayne new purposes of drawing that Dignity to the Howle of Bauler, and to bestowe a Daughter of Spaine in it.

232. To my Lord of Salisbury. 691.

That he can, as yet, gain no access to the Duke of Lerma. That Cresswell hath written a Book & dedicated it to the King there; wherein he endeavourth to cleere himself & his Colleagues of the Treasons layd to their charge; and to proue, that this late Powder-Treason (howsoever undertaken by the intemperate heades & handes of certaine ignorant young people) yet was plotted & devised by some Counsellors in England, for the overthrowe of the Catholique Religion. That Cresswell takerh incessant pains in the matter of their publishing a false Translation of our Lawes; & that he & his Colleagues lose ground there. That the wants of Money, & Ministration of Right & Justice, are as greates & euer; and the Treasurie doore is shut up, as where there is no Money. That the Cryes & Discontents of the People, Soldiers, and Ordinarie Servants of the King are extreme. And, were they not bridled by Extremity of Lawes & feare of the Inquisition, things would not rest long in the State they are in. That the Peru-Fleet is com' in, having brought above the Value of Five Millions, in the most seasonable time. That the French Ambassador hath gotten a better Order for Relief of his Masters Subjects than that obtained by him. That his Secretary Mr. Collington, and others being sick, his Kineman &c. dead; he insinuateth a Desire to be recalled. That he hath had noe late access to the King or Duke, who give him hopes that all his Causes shall be accommodated at last. That the Spaniards hopes are greates, with dayes gotten to disuse us in that wherein wee are able to offend them; and reduce our Neighbours to extremity, who are the Wall betweene them & their desires to ruine us. That he hath drawne the Edge of the Jesuits Penn upon him by publishing their late falthoods, which they are attempting to defend. But if he may avoyd what he maie receave in the Platter, he shall not much fear their Penns. That from a great Feast made by the President of the Treasurie, one Ramirez de Prada one of the greatest men in the Kingdom for matter of money, & in Authority in those buisnesses, & walked even with the Conde de Vila-Longa, was taken into a Coach, & sent to a Prison twoe Leagues from the Court. His Houle & all that he had, was instantly seized upon, and his Wife, Children, and Servants removed. This is thought to proceed from his gathering too much to himself, & respecting too litle the Kings benefit. He was a Lawyer by Profession, borne to litle, and within a fewe yeeres possessed of litle; yet had then 24000 Crownes by yeere in Land, besides infinite Wealth in Plate and Money. How soe much should be gotten with the Kings Salary, & Ordinarie Fees, is the Riddle he must resolve.

233. From the Earle of Salisbury, dated the 28 November 1606. 695.

That His Majestie and his Counsellors were heartily sorry for the Calamities which had come upon his Houle in Spain, by the Death & Sicknes of so many of his best & most necessary Servants. That notwithstanding the Spanish Ambassadors promise made in August, at the Conference, that he would produce his owne Complaints against us in 5 or 6 dayes, and shew the Reason that moved him to find fault with our Justice here; He hath temporized all this while without propounding any thing; excusing excusing himself upon one Dispatch or other to come about it. That a Watch had been sett upon the Spanish Ambassadors howse to interrupt such English as should resort thither to Masse, unknowne to his Majesties Counsell, & by Warrant onely of the Ecclesiasticall Commission. In the execution of which Warrant, because some Disorder was committed by the parties put in Truſt, three of the principall ones were committed to Prison; where they laye until the Ambassadour beinge thoroughly satisfied, made often intercession for their Discharge.

Num. 1875.

234. To Sir Thomas Edmondess, His Majesties Ambassadour in Flanders. 698. b.

That upon a Memoriall, he hath received an Answer to his Complaints, which in Papers appeares a verie Mountaine; but in performance he doubts will proue lesse than a Molehill. That Owyn & Blount are defended as inculpable; and to our Kings Charge is layed Levinus and all others of the Low-Country Nation inhabiting within his Dominions, who are dubbed with the Marke of Rebels & evil-affected Subjects, the faults of Owynne & Blount being paralleled with those poore Soules of the Low Countreyes that fledd VENTURAM IRAM. Of the late precicuous fall of two greate Ministers of that State, the Conde de Villa-Longa and Ramaris de Prada: whole Plate, Jewells, & Money, buried under Churches, hidden in Friers Cells, conveyed into Ambassadors Howses, cast into Privies, laden into Carts under other Semblances, are drawn out by the Officers. That the Spoile of them & some others that were partakers of their Fraudes & Briberies, will be worth to the King, at least, Three Millions; and yet he hath an ill bargain; for, with the gaine of Three Millions or four, to themselves, they lost to the King at least Fifteen.

235. To Sir George Carew his Majesties Ambassadour in France, 19 Jan. 1606. S. N. 700.

That Ramaris de Prada a Principal Minister of that State, who with the Earle of Villa-Longa absolutely governed the Kings Treasurie, being worth almost a Million and a half, was apprehended & stript of all about the beginning of Christmas. After Christmas ended, his Colleague the Conde de Villa-Longa ran the same fortune, being taken in his House about 11 a Clock at Night, carried instantly to Prison divers Leagues from Madrid; his Chests and Caskets of Plate, Money, & Jewells laden in Carts out of the Windows; his Wife & Children about one of the Clock that Night removed out of the howse; and all seized on to the Kings Use.

236. To the Earles of Dorset, Nottingham, Suffolke, & Salisbury. 700. b.

That he believed the Spanish Alliance with France was now become impracticable, after all the pains that the French Ambassadour had spent about it; who, among other Things, had shewn them the Picture of the Dolphin armed, and with his Pike in his hand, at his Age of foure yeeres & certaine monthes: and now exclaimes against the Government there, much out of the boundes of all Patience.

237. To the Lords of the Counsell, the 14th of Januarie 1606-7. 701. b.

That his displaying the malicious falsehoods of the Jesuits Translation of our Laws against Recufants, had had this effect, That whereas before, every Religious House in Madrid had them, and their Preachers vially helped out their Sermons with Declamations against the Crueltes of England; some of them affirming that much easier it was for the Christians in the daies of Declecion: now, there is hardly one of those Translations to be found. The Jesuites themselves are: for ashamed of the Worke, as euery of them denyeth to haue had any hand in it. That most of the Ambassadors there haue Copies of his Letters and Annotations, and haue sent them into their Countreys. That Creswell cannot get the Pension for sustentation of the Seminaries of Rome, Doway, & Seville in the manner & value he desired. That Doctour Cecil

Num. 1875.

& one Singleton a Priest have been at Rome to sollicit the sending of one to England vested with Episcopall Dignity, but were baffled there by the Jesuites; who were also too hard for the Arch-Priest then residing in England. He can, as yet, get no Copie of the Briefe prohibiting the taking of the Oath by Papiſts, and yet the Jesuits are in a great Choller that he knew any thing of it. That Sir Anthony Sherley promising to doe Miracles against the Hollanders, such to be made Generall of the Kings Armado; and offereth for Suretie, to be assisted with a Counsell, and attended with a Guard that shall continually obserue his Actions. That the Conde de Villa-Longa being seized, was carried instantly away to a Dungeon called La Motta de Medina. That at a late Tournay held at the Court he was preferred before the Ambassadour of France. Finally, that he is insinuating himself into the esteem of the Kings New Confessor, who professeth his Love to Justice & to our King; who seemes to be a Man of Courage, & of an able Understanding.

238. To the Earle of Salisbury. 705.

That Creswell meeting his Man at Secretary Prada's, spake honourably of his Lordship, & dutifully of his Majesty; and that the Heads or Reasons (abovementioned at § 229.) for the Alliance with France were not drawne up by him. That it is reported, as if 160 Priests as yet abide in England. He sendeth his Lordship a description of that retayner to the Jesuits, who went with Mr. Button for England. That the King intendeth to send a Fleet to the Levant-Seas, to disturb the Trade of the Hollanders in those parts. It having been reported that the Dutch earnestly sue either for Peace or Truce; 'tis said that the French King hath sent them Blanks firmed with his Hand, admittinge them to inferre any condition that shall seeme reasonable vnto themselves, rather than to come to any conclusion with the Spaniard. That Money now growes very plentifull in the Kings Treasurie: they tell it not with their fingers as in England, but weigh it in Scales large enough to contayne twoe greate Oxen. That if their Fountaine be not stopped, & if by Peace or Truce their waste be restrained, he discerneth not how they may be stayed from overflowinge, in tyme, all the parts of the Earth that their Pride & Ambition shall turne their Streame vnto; especially now that the false fingers of the Ministers are broken, which by deceit passed by (in prejudice to the King) at least 20 Millions, to the Usuringe Genoese & Portugalls; and a better Course be held for the future. That it is said that the Earle of Villa Longa had in Lands neere 100,000l. by yeere, and in other Wealth to the Value of a Million & a Half. He relateth the Discourse he had with Creswell the Jesuit before the Ambassadour of Florence, upon the subject of the Villanies of him & His Fraternity, and how at length he putt him to Confusion. That the Spaniards still continue to give good words, but yet he can promise to himself nothing of the event. That Sr. Edward Baynham hath visited him, pretending to come there only to see the Countrey, & to learne a little Spanish; but Mr. Cottingham hath found that he hath been there neere three Monthes, and passed as a French Man, and had found him also with Creswell at Secretary Pradas. That this Secretary Prada is likely to become great, haueing Villalonga's Office: he sheweth much Honestie, Plainenes & Charitie; but is a ghostly Child of Creswell, and much affected to that Societie. That his Chapleine & twoe more of his English & most necessarie Servants beinge feared of the Sicknes, are importunate to be gone: whom to keepe against both their Willes & their Stomackes, agreeth not with his Disposition, neither is without danger.

239. To the Earle of Northampton. 711. b.

That it was his Fortune to meete with the Falshoods of our Jesuits & Fugitives for aply in their late pretended Translations of our Lawes against Roman Recufants, some

Num. 1875.

some of themselves have acknowledged the Losse of the principal Feathers they were here wont to fly with, and are now studying how to amend their Wings. Relateth the falls of Ramaris de Prada, & the Conde de Villa-Longa; of which last, he had drawne to favour hartellie the State of England, as far as he durst, he being aduerse to that of France. Observes that Birds of his Qualitie are not put in Cage with purpose to be lett out againe; the Intention of the Court beinge to profit by his Sufferinge, not to take Pleasure in his Singing. And that it is thought he will not be the last that shall followe in this Tragedie.

240. The Briefe of a Letter to my Lord of Salisbury.

714

That the Spaniards have laid an Embargo on all Shipping along their Coasts, being about to equip out a Fleet with all speed. That as to our Complaints, it is their Aste not to deny Justice, but (which is worse) to protract, & not performe it. Nevertheless we have this Advantage of other Nations, inasmuch as either for Loue or Feare, they make shewe of Desire to satisfie us, or at least to still us; to others, they geue Appearance of Disregard, neither performinge what they desire, or geueinge care, or answer to their Complaints. That the French Ambassador saith he will write to the King his Master to render them la pareille for the Spoiles they daily make of their Subjects.

241. To my Lord of Salisbury.

715.

Relating the Effect of a long Conference he had with the Duke of Lerma upon the Subject of the Good Will borne by his King to ours; That some of our Kings Ministers out of Puritanisme, and Hatred to the Religion professed there, dissuaded Continuanee of Freindship with Spaine, upon two severall Reasons. 1. That the holdinge of Ametic with Spaine would be a meane to introduce the Catholique Religion & subvert theirs. 2. That the King of Spain taking Rest & gathering Treasure & Strength, would as soon as he had finished his warres with the Hollanders, make his next attempt against us. How our King had restrayned his Subjects from the Service of the Arch-duke, and soe much enlarged them to the Hollanders, that their Armes by Land & Navyes by Sea, were full of the Bodies & Vessells of the English. With that of the Alliance of England, especially on the topic of Religion, the Treaty with the Hollanders, and the Causes of some of our Countrey men which the Duke referred to the Conde de Lemos President of the Council of the Indies. That talking with the Constable about the abovementioned Jesuiticall Translations, he made these pitiful Excuses for them vizt. that the King had noe Privie either with the Doer, or what was done. That to matters of any moment, the Office of Inquisition tooke an especial regard; but such Papers & Pamphlets as that Translation, have alwayes ben suffered to passe without Survey. That His Majestie wished there were a true Translation of them, and that himselfe had them in Latine, either nothing or very little different from the Spanish. Besides, to them that understand not the English, it would appeare that there were not so many faults in the Translation as I alleged: which Excuses raised Sir Charles's choler. That the Constable and others, even in Council, speak well with regard to England, but yet, secretly geue best Countenance & Eare to those that are worse affected to our King & his Gouvernement, and have lately dispatched Blount with Captaine Burke & twoe Irish Fryers into the Low Countrey with an Entertainement of 50 Crownes a Month.

242. To my Lord of Salisbury, Februarie 1606-7.

725. b.

Concerning an English Ship (whercin his Lordship was said to be concerned) bound for Virginia, taken by the Spaniards, & brought to Seville, which he was not without hopes of retrieving, as having procured the French Ambassador to write earnestly to the Marshall of France

Num. 1875.

& Lieutenant of the Duchie of Guyen to favor the Crew in their Suits against certain Spaniards whose Shippe is stayed at Bourdeaux. That as to the Spanish Ministers, so farre as he can conceale out of their Actions, their Papers and their wordes are to none other end than to wyne tyme. For not in any one of the things pretended to be commanded by the King, can he procure Performance, or much Probability of any meaning to doe it. That Blount is gone, with an Entertainement, for the Low-Countreys, the Dukes Promise not thought on; they neuer thinking it lesse than meritorious to decrie Heietiques. To our Fugitives money is geuen daileie, but to his Majesties faithfull Subjects noe Penny payd of what is due unto them. That Secretary Prada being now in Villa-longa's place, is too much devoted to the Jesuites; and all things are much worse than they were before, so that the wildest of their owne people prophesie a present ruine to their Monarchie. If therefore the States faint now when they have most cause to hope, it shal be to their greate Adventure. Sir Charles desireth to be recalled, his Eies beginning to faile him, & his Body consuming, and addeth these words, If I live long, it shal be more than I expect or desire; but if here I dye (besides the discouragement of him whose shall succede) I shal in my owne particular suffer more than I can expresse, to end my dayes without a farewell to my Wife & Children.

243. To my Lord of Salisbury, 6 Februarie 1606-7.

That he is in Doubt that the Hollanders mean to wrapp up an Agreement with the Spaniards, whose doe much affect it, and will yield to large Conditions; but hope that if it should happen so, our King will worke out of it his owne Honour, Profit, and Safetie. Relateth the Discourse he had with Secretary Prada about this matter. That the Confusion in the Spanish Affairs is greater now than ever; because the Duke cannot endure to remit any parte of the Authoritie he had engrossed, nor will tell whom he will take in to help Him; soe great is his Jealousy. That the King hath commanded our Lawes against Recufants to be truly translated out of the English, by Sir Andrewe Wife, that calls himselfe Priour of England. That whosoever goes from England to America must provide to goe stronger; for if they be taken, they are to expect noe Remission. That his Secretary Cottington continueth sick.

244. To my Lord of Salisbury.

729. b.

That the Conde de Villa-longa suffers his Miseryes with greates Patience: that a Judge being sent to examine him, he was content to answer to matters inferior, as to Bribes & Corruptions, but not to those that concerne matters of State; except it were in the presence of the King, the Duke of Lerma, or some of the principallest of his Majesties Council. That the Spaniards still continue their old custome of delaying or denying Justice to our Countreymen, as he maketh appear by divers fresh Instances. So that if our King shall not be pleased that His Subjects use some meanes to right themselves, he can expect neither Justice nor Favor, whatsoever outwarde shewe the Spaniards may sett upon the matter.

245. To Sir Thomas Edmondes His Majesties Ambassador in Flanders, 8 Februarie 1606-7.

732.

246. To my Lord of Salisbury, 8 Februarie 1606.

732.

Stylo Anglie.

733.

That since the fall of the twoe most negotiating Ministers of that State Villa longa & Prada, there hath none other risen in their place; by meanes whereof, things are more confused & disordered than ever. That as to the Paper Dispatches which he sent into England (containing the meanes of Satisfaction which the Spaniard had solemnly promised our suffering Merchants) they remayne as yet in their owne Nature, neither altered in Substance nor Accidents, nor one Silable of them performed; but on the contrarie parte, all that hath sithence appeared before them, either overthrowne or foe delayed, as there is little Hope. That Ten Shippes of Warre are making ready, as is given out, for the States; but, as it is thought, to feich in the English that are gone into the Indies. That great Boats are made what infinit Treasure the King is offered out of Churches & Religious Houses towards his Warres in the Low-Countryes, & ayding of the Pope.

Num. 1875.

247. From my Lord of Salisbury, 9th Januarie 1606-7.

735.

Comforting Sir Charles in his household Afflictions, and want of Success in the Causes he solicited in the Spanish Court. That the Spanish Ambassador had desired a Conference with our Ministers, pretending to give answer to our Complaints, and came off in most wretched manner.

248. From Mr. Levinus Monke Secretarie to the Earle of Salisbury, 10 Januarie 1606-7.

738. b.

That Sir Charles is little beholding to some Younglings that are come from Spain, especiallie to one Vaughan; but least of all to one Daniel Powell, whose hath exhibited some Articles against him, of his disloyaltie in Religion & Dutie, but himself hath stopped them all as well as He can; and if it had not been for him the Lords had given Eare to him. That as to the matter of Confulls, it is referred to the Merchants to appoint whom they will; because neither His Majestie nor the Lords would be answerable for the Errors which they might commit. That as to the Great Matter, seeing the Spaniards incline not to us, it is little cared to whom they bend. The Style of this Letter is somewhat extraordinary, Mr. Monke seeming to have a very good Opinion of himself, and to be superior to Sir Charles.

249. Sir Charles to the Confessor of the King of Spaine, 27 Februarie 1606-7.

741. b.

That having for almost two Years continually solicited the Causes of our suffering Merchants, he hath not obtained any entire or due Satisfaction in any one of them, and therefore now for his last Shift (for he meaneth not longer to employ his Labours therein) he addresseth himself to his Reverend Fatherhood, as the Adviser of the Kings Soule & Conscience. Desiring that he would be pleased to acquaint the Duke therewith; and afterward, to be a meane that His Majestie may presently appoint some of his Counsell to take understanding of the severall Causes, & draw them to some finall end, without such intolerable delays & protractations as have been hitherto used.

250. A Letter received from the Duke of Savoy, dated 10 December 1606.

743. b.

It is not inferred; but the purport thereof appears to have been a desire of our Kings Amity & Good Affection.

251. Unto the King our Souveraigne, 7 Martij 1606. Stilo Anglie.

744.

Concerning the Duke of Savoy's Letter, which He sent enclosed in this; and desiring to be recalled.

252. To my Lord of Salisbury, at the same time.

745. b.

That in order to delay the giving liberty to the English taken in the Indies by Firardo, Secretary Prada had quibbled with the Memorial he had offered in the poor mens behalf, saying that it seemed not either to come from our King, or to be authorized with his Name, with the other Discourse on this matter. That the Spaniards boast of a great Victorie they have gotten of the Hollanders & English that have begun to fortifie themselves in an Island in the East Indies called Terra nata; of whom they have not left one man alive, and have also slayne 4000 of the Natives that took their parts. The present Bootie they found there (besides 700 graine peeces of Ordnance) they report to be at least 8,000,000. and that the Island will yield in yearly profit to the King, a Million & an half. That the Order of St. James is lately bestowed on Sir Anthony Sherley, Sir James Lindsey; & upon the Sonnes of O Sullivan Beere & Mac

Num. 1875---1877.

William, Irishmen. They have also made Sir Anthony of his Majesties Council of Naples, and Generall of divers Shippes, which must be of his owne procuring; and Jeremy Laurence must draw them out of England for him. That it is reported that they have bestowed 100 peeces of Ordnance upon the King, which Laurence long since transported out of England. If this be foe, it is not well that foe liberrall a Passage is given to Merchandize of that nature. They talk of fitting out of a Greate Navye; and 'tis certaine that 400,000 Crownes are delivered for present Marine Charges. That Secretary Prada hath sent him word from the King that the above-mentioned English Prisoners shall for this one time be delivered, but if hereafter any shall be taken offending in the like sort (i. e. by presuming to go for America) they shall not have leisure to become Suitsors, but receive their Dispatch immediatlie after their Apprehension. He hopes therefore, that such as shall faile into those parts, will provide to keepe themselves from falling into Spanish hands. That the King hath sent expresse Commandment to his severall Counsellors, for speedie end of all our Countrymens Causes; when he shall fee the fruits of them, he will beleve they are truly intended; for although in England the Old Proverb is, Hee that is in Possession, hath Eleven Points of the Lawe for Him: there, he may well be sayd to have Eleven & three quarters. That poore Mr. Dorington travaileth daile, and findeth himself noe whit neerer his Journeys end. That he tooke himself, at his first arrival, for a Man of much understanding in Spanish Causes, but now hath sufficiently found the contrary.

253. To Sir George Carewe, his Majesties Ambassador in France.

Relating the Misfortunes attending his Household, by the Death of many of his Servants, & the Departure of others who feared to die. That thereby, till he could get others from England, he was forced to retain Papists, of whom he hath at length cleared both his Howse & Table. That the Jesuits watch his Family so carefully, as none of them can goe out of his doores without perill of some Alterations. That some they perswade, some they threaten, & others they allure; twoe of his principallest Gentlemen having ben offered the Penn werewith to sett downe their owne Conditions. That the bearer of this Letter his kinsman, sonne to Sir Thomas Cornwallies his Majesties Groome Porter, was placed by him with the Constable of Castile, who gave him Word that he should not be tampered with in his Religion, but notwithstanding that, the Jesuites (unless he had timely prevented them) had perverted him, & made him a Pensioner to that State. He therefore desireth Sir George to receive him into his House, or some other place near him, untill the Young Gentlemans Father can give Order about him; desiring farther, that he may be allowed 10l. a quarter (being his Fathers allowance) towards which he sendeth two Bills in Hand.

A Book in fol. bought of me; containing a most curious Collection of Precedents & Papers all relating to the Busines of the Customs; and now putt together, as followeth.

1. Indented Writt in the Kings Name, for the Carriage of Wool in the Ship of Clays Bedrikeffen from London to Calais, free of all Customs & Subsidies. dat. 12 July, ann. 13 R. Rich. 11. (in Latin) 1.

Num. 1878.

2. Memorial (in French) to the King, setting forth the Damage sustained by transporting a certain Commodities called Chrommes, which being in themselves more valuable than unwrought Wool, were the rather bought up by the Foreigners, to the Quantity of 500 Sacks in a year, Custom Free, or at least not rated up to their Value whereby the Crown lost 100 pounds per ann. and proposing a Remedy. This hath the Date of ann. 20 R. 2: added to it by a modern Hand. ibid.

3. Petition of the Merchants of the Town of New-Castle upon Tyne to the King, setting forth the Inconveniences & Losses attending their transporting their Wool to Calais. And that as heretofore he had granted them liberty to ship-off 2000 Sacks of Wool where they pleased, whereby his Customs were encreased to 2000 Marks in one Year: they now desire the like liberty of transporting 3000 Sacks more. Hereunto, a modern hand hath added the Date of 20 R. 2. (In French) 2.

4. Warrant from the Signet-Office to the Privy-Seal, in order to pass under the Great Seal, Letters Patent granting liberty to the Merchants of New-Castle upon Tyne to transport Shorling Lambelkynnes & Calvelkynnes growing in the Countees of Northumbrelande, Westmerlande, Cumberlande, & Bishopryke of Duresme, unto the Townes of Brugges & Middelburgh, as not being of the Goodness of Staple-ware: they paying therefore the Subsidie called Pondage, that is to wite 12d. of the lib. Even the 8th day of Marche, ann. 30 R. Henr. vi. ibid.

5. Petition (in French) of Thomas de Grymesby Clerke & Hugh Atte-Venne, Customers in the Port of Great-Jernemuthe (i. e. Yarmouth) for Relief against John Synpke who claimed & took of all Merchants in the same Port (as due to him by Inheritance) certain Sums of Money which he called Lassage, without any Grant or Confirmation from the King, &c. and of which Lassage, by order of the late, & then present Lord Treasurer, & of the Barons of the Exchequer, they had put his Majesty into possession. This is dated by the fame moderna Hand. Anno 21 Ri. 2. 2. b.

6. Warant of King Henry iv. (in French) granting, with the Advice & Assent of the Prelats & the other Estates of the then present Parliament, an abatement of three Shillings & Fourpence of the Duty laid on every Sack of Wool, to the Merchants of Venice & Lucca, as had before been done to those of Florence. The Reason of his Generosity, was the mistake of the Clerk of the Parliament holden at Coventre in the Sixth year of his Reign; who, when the Parliament had given the King a Noble from every Sack of Wool, putt down Ten Shillings in the Roll of the said Parliament; which was levied accordingly, the Merchants being obliged to pay Threepence & three Shillings & fourpence Duty on each Sack, instead of Threepence Shillings only. Given under his Signet at Gloucestre, the 16 of Novembre, in his ninth Year (in French) ibid.

7. A List, in Latin, of the Annuities, Wages, and other great Sums of Money assigned on the Customs in the Port of Hull, temp. R. Henr. iv. 3.

8. Petition, in French, of Richard Garner Citizen & Vintner of London, to King Henry iv. & his Counsell, shewing that notwithstanding the Provisions made that all Block-Tin should be carried to the Staple, & no where else; about 1000 Pieces (or Piggs?) were nevertheless yearly carried to other Places. He therefore supplicates that he may have the Liberty of shipping-off yearly 1200 Pieces of Tin to other Places than the Staple, for Seven years to come. For which he will be obliged to pay all Duties, to bring half the Value of the said Tin into this Realm in Gold or Silver Moneys, or Bullion; and will moreover pay yearly into the King's Exchequer 40 Marks. In the modern hand this is dated anno 11 H. iv. On the top is written Le Roy ad graunte per advis de Counseille; and at the bottom, R. Seigneur de Grey. 4.

9. War-

So far touching this valuable Book; it now remaineth that I should say somewhat concerning him by whose Command it seemeth to have been first made, and of whose hand-writing much remaineth therein, still to be seen. I mean Richard de Morins, who was made Prior of Dunstable A. D. 1202. and deceased A. D. 1242. as will appear anon; a man eminent in his time, and yet not remembered by any that have treated of our English Writers, so far as I can hitherto learn.

That he was an Historian or Annalist, is plain, from the beginning of the Annals of Dunstable, to be found in this Book written with his own hand, at fol. 40. b. (of which above § 9.) and of which this is the first Sentence, "Ab Adam usq; ad Nativitatem Christi, fluxerunt anni secundum Hebreos tria milia. 900.48; secundum Septuaginta Interpretes 5 milia 100.96; et exinde usque ad Octavum Annum Nostrum 100.200.10." and this Man therefore was made Prior A. D. 1202. in which year in the Dunstable-Annals now in the Cottonian-Library inscribed Tiberius A. X. I find these words, "Anno 1202. Ricardus Canonicus Meretonie adhuc Diaconus, fit Prior de Dunstaplia; et Sabbato Quatuor Temporum ordinatus; die Sancti Mikaelis primam Missam celebravit."

This is the man, who seemeth to have been him who caused our present Chartulary to be made up; and began the same, partly with his own hand, & partly by the hands of others, as occasion offered. After the Entries of many matters, at fol. 40. b. (according to the present Numeration of the Leaves; for it is 93. b. after the Old

Num. 1885.

Figures) he began his Annals with his own Hand; but then, perchance, considering that they would, in time, come to be the foundation of the Annals of the House, he kept on this Book for the Chartulary, & began his Annals again, in the same words, and with the same (that is his own hand) in another Book, namely that Cottonian MS. above mentioned, which is often cited by our modern Writers by the Title of the Chronicle or Annals of Dunstable.

Although he proceeded with his own hand in these his Annals not much farther in one book, than in the other; I may believe that he might often dictate the matter, even when he himself is mentioned in the third person; as we see that Moses often writeth of himself in that manner.

As to the Actions of this Prior Richard, without doubt, much may yet be found which is not recorded in this Chartulary, nor in the Cottonian book; but first, much as I have not now time to search elsewhere, I shall content myself with citing some places of the Annals (according to the Transcript which I made of them the last Winter) and also hint at some others in the Chartulary, & so conclude.

"Anno 1203. dictus Ricardus Prior, intrante Februario, Romam pro Dno Rege perrexit; et prosperè reversus circa festum S. Jacobi, secum adduxit Legatum unum, scilicet Abbatem de Cafemere ad componendum inter Reges."

"Anno 1204.—Eodem anno, Ordinavimus super Priorem apud Rokelhae; et disposuimus de Elemosinario et Sacrilla, quid recipere & quid facere debeant annuatim."

"Anno 1206.—Eodem anno, Ricardus Prior noster, auctoritate Johannis Diaconi Cardinalis Apostolicæ Sedis Legati, factus est Visitator omnium Virorum Religiosorum per Episcopatum Lincolnensem; exceptis Templarijs, et Hospitalarijs, et Cisterciensibus, et Præmonstratensibus."

"Anno 1212.—Eodem anno, mense Octobri, missi sunt Inquisitores per omnes Episcopatus Angliæ ad inquirendum de ablatiis, & damnis Anglicanæ Ecclesiæ illatis. Et inter cæteros, missus est Prior noster per Episcopatum Lincolnensem."

"Eodem anno, mense Septembri, missi Papa tres Prædicatores in Angliam; scilicet Magistrum Willelmum de Lundonia, et Magistrum Leonem Decasum Wellensem, et Magistrum Philippum de Otheforde. Qui cum Privilegijs multis per se & Coadjuutores suos, multos signaverunt ad honorem Crucis, multa colligentes, et Truncos per singulas Ecclesias statuentes. In quo Officio, vicem eorum gessit Prior de Dunstable in Comitatu Ontdoniæ, et Bedefordiæ, et Hertfordiæ."

"Anno 1213.—Eodem anno, in festo Sancti Lucæ, dedicata est Ecclesia de Dunstable ab Hugone II. Lincolnensi Episcopo, præsentibus Comitibus & Baronibus, Abbatibus & Prioribus, et Nobilibus multis, et Plebe cujus non erat Numerus. Ubi Penitentibus vere Confessis, infra quindecim Dies illuc venientibus, facta est Remissio Triginta Dierum; et exinde in perpetuum ad Anniversarium Diem Dedicationis, vel infra Octo dies sequentes venientibus, facta est ibidem Remissio Vingt Dierum, pereundem Episcopum; a quo, Reliquiæ multorum Sanctorum, per Priorem a multis amicis adquisitæ, repositæ sunt in Majori Altari."

"Anno 1215. Celebratum est Concilium Lateranense, quod inchoavit in Crastino Omnium Sanctorum, et solutum est in Crastino Sancti Andree, sub Innocentio Papa Tertio. Cui interfuerunt Patriarcha Constantinopolitanus, Jerolomitianus, Aculegenis, Venetianus, et Alexandrinus Fratrem suum Procuratorem destinavit. Interfuerunt etiam quadraginta Episcopi, et Octingenti Abbates et Priores; et inter cæteros Ricardus Prior Dunstapliæ interfuit; et rediens Parisiis, in Scholis Theologicis eodem anno integro remansit. Sed alij redeuntis Indicias vix evaserunt; quidam etiam intercepti sunt, alij apud Redecolne gravem R. dempionem subierunt."

"Anno 1219.—Eodem anno, die Sancti Benedicti, Ricardus Prior apud Dunstaple tenuit Curiam suam, de omnibus Placitis Coronæ & Capitulis, coram Iusticiariis usitatis. Et tunc assidebant ei Stephanus & Mauritius Iusticiarii Domini Regis; et firmata sunt Juramenta sub hac forma, "Hoc audis Domine Prior Iusticiarie Sancti Petri de Dunstaple," &c. Et tunc habuit ibi Placita Coronæ; nonnatum, de thesauro invento, contra Godfridum blaschum; item, de Novis Discessibus; et de Fuga Incarceratorum; et de Morte multorum.

"Anno 1220.—Eodem anno Prior dirationavit apud Scaccarium; Misericordiam Stephani Vinitoris, et Petri Vinitoris, sui; sicut scriptum est in Rotulo Dni Regis Anni quarti."

"Eodem anno, idem Prior fecit Concordiam cum Majoria de Boklethore & Sororibus suis; quæ rotulara est coram Iusticiariis in Banco. Quo anno, idem Prior contra multos Parochianos suos Decimas de Feeno obtinuit."

"Eodem anno, Prior de Dunstaple tractus in Causam contra Ricardum de Stepinge, per Breve Dni Regis de ultima Presentatione, recessit quietus a Judicio, et alter in Misericordia remansit. Similiter tractus in Causam per Alis Martel, per Breve de Dote, de Terra de Boklethore, quietus a Lite remansit."

"Anno 1221.—Eodem anno Ricardus Prior movit Controverfiam contra quosdam Burgenes de Dunstapla; et tandem contra omnes, super Decimis Negotiationis (vid. supra § 11.) ubicunque exercitæ; et super Decimis Fœni et Molendinorum; et super quibusdam Oblationibus; de quibus Compositio facta est coram Johanne Archidiacono Bedefordis, et coram Populo Dunstapla, in Ecclesia recitata est, et ab omnibus approbata, et per Judices a Papa delegatos confirmata; &c."

"Eodem anno, Mossy filius Brun Judeus, vexavit Ricardum Priorem de Dunstaple, et Ecclesiam suam, super Septingentis Libris, per quandam Cartam; quæ ideo probata est falsa per Dnm Martinum de Pateshulla et alios Iusticiarios Dni Regis, quod Carta loquebatur de mutuo accepto per Priorem Thomam R. cardi decorem; et Signillum appositum expresse Nomen Ricardi: ipsa etiam Carta fuit lota; et insuper, falsam Grammaticam continebat. Unde dictus Judæus incarceratus fuit in Turri Londoniæ per Annum & amplius, quia alij Judæi dederunt Regi unam Marcam Auri pro Judicio deferendo. Et postmodum, cum amplius prorogare non possent, dederunt Regi Centum Libras ne suspenderetur in Ligno, in opprobrium Legis sue. Et sic super Rotulum (Lexem Moisis) suum dictus Judæus alijurans Regnum Regis? et Utiagatus est."

"Anno 1223.—Eodem anno, Prior Dunstaplae factus est Visitator Ordinis Nostri in Provincia Eboracensi, una cum Abbate de Dursela. Qui pacifice executi sunt Officium suum usque ad Ecclesiam de Kirham. Unde occulis eis Prior de Novo-burgo, contra ipsum Officium appellavit; quem Ipsi in recessu suo Excommunicaverunt."

"Anno 1224. formatum est Cirographum in Curia Regis, inter Priorem de Dunstaple, et Willelmum Filium-Baldewini, de Terra Johannis Neibonensis."

"Eodem anno, formatum est Cirographum inter Priorem de Dunstaple & Ricardum Priorem, super Ecclesiam de Helingedune."

"Anno 1228.—Eodem anno, Prior de Dunstaple celebravit Curiam suam apud Dunstaple, assidentibus ei Domino Stephano de Segrave & Willelmo Londone. In qua Curia, Prior constituit Coronatores Helyam de Capella & Willelmum Iliam-Willelmum, qui juraverunt quod ita se habent in Burgo, sicut alij Coronatores extra Burghum se habent. Eodem etiam fecit Prior Custodes Mensurarum, scilicet de Ulnis, & Galonibus; et Buildis, et Lati-budine Pannorum."

Num. 1885.

"Eodem anno, die Sancti Stephani, inventus fuit thesaurus in Cimiterio de Huseburne, valens circiter quinquaginta Marcas; quem, coacti fuimus præsentare coram Iusticiariis tunc itinerantibus; et sub eorum Sigillis, delatus fuit Londonias, coram Rege. Et quia tam Episcopus Lincolnie, quam Prior Dunstaplae, quam etiam Rex Ipse dictum thesaurum vendicabant; provum fuit, ad preces Domini Regis, quod Episcopus & Prior concesserunt dictum thesaurum Novo-Hospitali de Doura, salvo jure ejuslibet."

"Eodem anno, impetratæ sunt tres Juratæ contra Priorem, de Muro qui est circa Cardium; et dixit Jurata contra Priorem."

"Eodem anno, orta fuit Dissensio inter Priorem de Dunstaple & Decem Burgenes ejus, super Subtractione Oblationum. Conspiciunt enim quod in Nuptijs vel purificationibus, vel præsentibus Corporibus Defunctorum, principalem personam tantum duæ personæ frequentantur; et pro hoc, illi Decem fuerunt excommunicati. Sed populus, hoc non obstante, communicavit eis; et ipsi passim intrabant Ecclesiam. et populus cum eis; ita quod tam Convictus quam Prebiter Patechialis a Missis sollemnibus cessaverunt in Ecclesia, a kalendis Augusti, usque ad festum Sancti Dionysii; interim, in Cape la Infirmaria sollemniter celebrantes. Qua de causa, Episcopus Lincolnie accessit ad locum, cum multitudine Clericorum & Capellanorum, et in Pulpito Ecclesie sollemniter excommunicavit dictos Decem, si de cætero, Ecclesiam intrantes Divinum Officium turbarent; item, omnes alios qui, de cætero, eis communicarent; et tam illos quam omnes alios, si infra proximum Festum Sancti Martini non satisfacerent Ecclesie de subtractione; et hoc sciente et præsentem Sacrificia item, omnes illos qui, de cætero, propter aliquas Lites vel Odium alicujus personæ, aliquid subtraherent Ecclesie de Oblationibus debitis, vel Consecrationibus, Venationibus, ante Lites motas usitatis item. Eodem die, mediastibus de Lincoln, et de Bachelorde Archidiaconis et Vagistro Stephano de Ekingtone, compositum fuit in hac forma. Quod Excommunicati in forma Ecclesie absolventur; et postea invadient Priori viginti libras, quas Prior remitteret eis ad preces Mediatorum, usque ad quinquaginta Solidos, infra dimidium Anni Priori solvendo. Et postea sub Juramento injunctum fuit eis, quod in Sententijs Ecclesie de cæteris essent obediens; et quod, de cætero, nihil subtraherent Ecclesie de Decimis . . . Oblationibus, vel aliquibus Venationibus, ante tempus Litis, in dicta Ecclesia, usitatis; et de tunc subtrahitis finit-tacerent intra proximum festum Sancti Martini, Ecclesie sacrifica. Similiter, quotquot eis communicaverant, sub simili Juramento et Disciplina, ad Oblationes Ecclesie sollemniter fuit absolvi, et similia sunt eis injuncta. Et sic, qui, de cætero, aliquid subtraxerint, non solum in Sententiam Episcopi, sed in perjurium incidunt."

"Eodem anno, de Dunstaple & de Neuham Priores, per Generale Capitulum statuti Visitatores, visitaverunt Monasteria sui Ordinis per Episcopatum Lincolnensem & Coventensem; et tunc renuntiante Priore de Sancta-Prethefwitha, substitutus est ei alius, nomine Helias. Similiter et Prior de Gislegha Priorem suum resignavit."

"Anno 1229.—Eodem anno, mense Maio, Henrico Rege transiente per Dunstaple, et in Prioratu hospitato, Ricardus Prior humiliter ei supplicavit, quod sicut totius Regni gubernaculum accepit, et specialiter ipsius Ecclesie habuit Patronatum; super discordijs ortis inter Priorem & Burgenes, Pacem Deo acceptabilem faceret, et tam Ecclesie quam Burgensibus utilem provideret. Tunc Rex, de Consilio H. Joerri de Burgo, mediantibus majoribus de Curia Regis, videlicet, Luca Dulmenf electo, Radulfo Filio-Nicholai Senescallo, Roberto de Lexingtona, Johanne de Monemue R(adulfo) Episcopo Ciofrenf Dni Regis Cancellario, et multis alijs, quandam Pacem formavit, quam majores populi de Dunstaple, Rege præsentem, admiſerunt; sed post recessum Regis, Regis, penitus contradixerunt; ideôq; Prior per Breve Domini Regis, fecit eos citari, cujus verba sunt hæc, Rex, &c. — Postmodum diebus Burgenfibus coram Baicho constitutis, ipsi Justiciarij, habito Consilio cum Domino Rege & Primatibus ejus, ipsam Pacem apud Dunstaple prius formatam, partibus presentibus recitarunt quam postmodum Vice-comiti Bedefordie mandaverunt ut eam faceret observari; cujus Verba sunt hæc, Henricus, &c. — Quoniam vero Burgenfis per has Literas pro Vice-comiti noluerunt in Tallagium consentire, nisi haberent Mandatum Regis super hoc speciale; ideo, D'ns Rex iterum scripsit Ei in hæc verba, Rex, &c.

— Cum igitur Vice-comes hoc Auctoritate vellet talliare Burgenfes, responderet quod tantum in Capite Tenentes de Priore, et non alios permitteret talliari; et accedentes ad Regem, impetraverunt ab Eo literas, in hæc Verba, Rex, &c. — Cum vero Prior hijs Literis impediret, vellet saltem in Capite Tenentes talliare, vocavit in medium Duodecim Burgenfes quos fideiorem aestimavit. Qui juramento corporaliter præstito, quod rationaliter alliderent Tallagium, nec emulos injuste gravarent nec deferrent amicos; assiderunt tantum Sexaginta-tres Solidos; ita quod ditiores Burgi non erant alii nisi ad tres Solidos. Huic autem perjurio manifesto successit tantus furor populi, quod in odium Ecclesie subtraxerunt Decimas et Oblationes; ita quod Funere præfenti, vel Muliere se Purificante, unum tantum Dearium obtulerunt; fabricam etiam Ecclesie admodum dissipant, pro defuncto habuerunt; Blasphemias et minas Canonicis et eorum famulis intulerunt, et per impositionem saliorum Criminum eos per totam Angliam diffamarunt. Bannum etiam in Ecclesia publice propulerunt, quod nullus Burgenfium molearet ad Molendina Prioris. Bladum etiam Dominicum ipsius Prioris in vijs antiquis usitatis prostraverunt in terram, et equum sub sua custodia incluserunt; qui aliquando per Præpositos, aliquando per vicinos Capellanos, aliquando per ipsum Decanum vix poterat liberari. Corruerunt etiam illi Nobilium Vicini, ut nos et res nostras in suis territorijs impediret; quod, frequenter muneribus illis, fecerunt. Cum autem hæc omnia D'ni Regis Cancellario, et S(tephano) de Segrave D'ni Regis Capitali Justiciario, in hujus persecutionis servore per Burgum de Dunstaple transiensibus, Prior ostenderet; videbantur turbati & pro malo habere, et coeperunt Burgo comminari; veruntamen, illis recedentibus, Malitia non cessavit. Hijs omnibus accessit, quod cum Ballivus Vice-comitis vellet pignora capere pro Tallagio non Soluta; tam masculi quam feminae de Burgo infurrexerunt in eum, omnimodam districtionem fieri prohibentes. Et quamvis ad instantiam Prioris, Dominus Lincolnienfis Episcopus per vicinos Burgos et vicinos Decanatus præfatos malefactores diebus solennibus excommunicari jussisset; tamen ab incepto furore et malitia non cessarunt, sed profitebantur, se esse Excommunicatos, et se velle potius ad Infernum descendere, quam in causa Tallagij succumbere. Prolocuti fuerunt etiam cum Willelmo de Cantilupo quod in Campo vicino Burgo de Dunstaple, concederet eis quadraginta acras, in quas Tabernacula sua transferentes habitarent a Tallagio & Teloneo quieti. Hac igitur Tempestate, utriusque Fori Judices per frequentiam querelarum Prioris fastiditi, quasi per accidiam vici, dissimulando stupuerunt, et tantam universitatem Populi scandalizare abhorruerunt. Et quia tanta Multitudo fuit in Causa tam Munerum quam Populorum, infinita scelera remanserunt in punia. Cum itaq; tanta iniquitas habundaret; ecce, repente visitavit Dominus spiritum Magistri Johannis Archidiaconi Bedefordie; qui inter Partes amicaliter composuit, et procellas pestilentes subito convertit in Speciem Lenitatis; sicut per Cyrogramm factum in Curia Domini Regis, et Cartam Prioris & Conventus manifeste patet; quæ inferius subsequuntur." professus, et Johannes nonprofessus, Canonici Dunstaplenfes, sine licentia; et per fenestram fractam exeuntes; et murum Monasterij transilientes, inter Fratres-Minores habitum Oxonie susceperunt: quos Prior de Dunstaple Oxonie et alibi, denunciari fecit Excommunicatos; Unde Walterus cum tribus Patribus de Ordine Minorum reversus, ad Capitulum Dunstaplie humiliter petijt absolvi; et juravit quod pareret mandatis Prioris in omnibus, salvo Ordine suo. Et sic absolutus est, jussu Prioris a tribus Canonicis, per corporalem Disciplinam; et postmodum, a toto Conventu voce tenus. Demum injunctum est ei, ut imprimis restituit Quaternas & Panos quos apportavit; et infra annum deliberat, ut si Ordo Minorum arctior est nostro ibi remaneat; sin autem, ad nostrum Ordinem revertatur, ubi Gratiam valuerit invenire. Johannes vero Londonie inventus, a Priore similiter absolutus est." &c.

Anno 1241. — "Eodem anno, obiit Eadmundus Cantuariensis Archiepiscopus, in Burgonia sepultus apud Ponteniacum; pro cujus meritis, operatus est Deus miracula multa, tam ubi Corpus jacet, quam apud Cateby in Anglia, ad tactum Pallij quod idem Archiepiscopus forori suæ Moniali de Cateby contulerat. Et quoniam idem ante recessum suum Monachos Cantuarienses excommunicaverat, duo Monachi Romam profecti Litteras Absolutionis ad Abbatem :: et Priores de Dunstaple et de Sancto Albano impetraverunt, ne prætextu Excommunicationis, eorum Electio impediretur, et ne eorum Ecclesia a fidelibus vilior haberetur; et quod facerent Dispensationem cum Monachis, si post Sententiam, contra Contentionem celebrantes, irregularitatem contraxerint salvo tamen in omnibus jure Archiepiscopi successuri. Et licet Archidiaconus Cantuariensis in principio se objecit, postea tamen se subtraxit." &c.

Anno 1242. — "Eodem anno, quinto Idus Aprilis, mortuus est bonus memorie Ricardus de Morins quondam Prior de Dunstaple."

Thus far I have taken from the Annals; I shall now hint at some few other matters relating to our Prior Richard out of the Chantry, which I have not yet in

He only by the nature of the several Employments above-mentioned, but by some Notes of his own Hand, still to be seen at fol. 74.

His Hand is like a French Hand, and his Name looks like a French Name; but whether he was a Frenchman, or descended of a French Family, I know not.

He seemeth to have been a Man of a gripping & exacting temper, which often brought him into troublesome suits of Law with the Townsmen, & others his Tenants & Neighbours.

He was Prior 39 years, and what by grants of Corrodies, Money, Letters of Fraternity, or other ways, he got much Land, which enlarged the Revenue, and also amplified the Monastery itself with divers costly buildings:

56. In his time notwithstanding the Canons of Councils divers of the Clergy were married Men, & left their Benefices to their Children, as may be seen by one of his Complaints or Accusations about Bradbourne-Church (44.) which beginneth thus, "(Conquerimus Deo & Vobis de Roberto, et Willelmo, et Henrici, Persona & Vicarijs de Bradburna, quod contra Justiciam impediunt Institutionem nostram in Ecclesia de Bradburna & Capellis suis: et ideo injuste, quia Robertus filius est Godefridi qui proxime ministravit in eadem Ecclesia, et imitator paterne Incontinentie, Henricus similiter filius fuit Johannis Vicarij ejusdem Ecclesie, et Patri suo in medietate successit, et paterne incontinentie imitator exiit. Willelmus similiter forariam publice tenet, canibus venaticis insistent, Tonfuram & Clericale officium relinquens." This Dispute was terminated in the seventeenth year of Pope Innocent, that is, about A. D. 1214.

I mentioned above (sub anno 1221.) the Trouble that this Prior met with, at the forging hands of Mossy the

Num. 1885, 1886.

Son of Brun the Jew; which he seemeth partly to have deserved, because he brought the Jews to Dunstable, and had dealings with them there; as may appear by these extracts from our Chartulary.

57. "Ricardus Prior de Dunstable et totus ejusdem loci Conventus—Sciatis nos concessisse Flemengo Judeo de London. & Leoni filio suo, et suis, et servientibus eorum, ire, et venire, et manere in Villa de Dunstable, bene & in pace, quiete & honorifice. Concessimus etiam ejusdem Fleming et Leoni omnes Libertates & liberas Consuetudines ville de Dunstable, sicut aliquis de hominibus nostris de villa eas melius et plenius habet. Nec nos, nec Nostri impedimentum faciemus predictos Judei, quia lucrum suum fideliter faciunt in villa nostra, secundum consuetudinem Judeorum. Et nos manutenebimus predictos Judeos, et suos, et eorum servientes, et res suas in villa rationabiliter, sicut faceremus si de nobis teneant. Pro hac autem concessione nostra, dabit nobis predictus Flemeng quandiu ipse moram fecerit in villa Dunstable singulis annis duo Coeclearia argentea, quorum utrumque duodecim denarios ponderabit.—Si autem predictus Flemeng absens fuerit, predictus Leo filius ejus eadem coeclearia ejusdem terminis persolvat. Nec autem Concessio et Conventio tota vita predictorum Judeorum durabit." 35. b.

58. "Ricardus Prior de Dunstable, &c.—Sciatis nos de Consensu totius Capituli nostri dedisse Joesep filio Rogeri unius Canonici Conredium.—Pro hac autem Concessione nostra dedit nobis predictus Joesep tredecim Marcas Argentii ad redimendum illud idem Conredium de manu cujusdam Judei, cui Wilhelmus de Huseburna illud impignoraverat, et qui de nobis, jure predicti Wilhelmi hoc ipsum Conredium percipere solebat. Et hoc quidem fecimus Consilio & Assensu Domini W. Lincolnensis Episcopi, ut sic Bona Ecclesie nostre, cum aliter non possemus, de manu Judei liberaremus. ibid.

59. "Wilhelmus de Huseburna—Sciatis me reddidisse—Priori & Conventui de Dunstaplia totam prebendam meam quam idem mihi concesserant.—Cartis etiam quam predictis de predictis Canonici habui, in manus eorum omnes resignavi.—Quare volo & concedo quod predicti Canonici tam predictam Prebendam quam predictam Terram.—Pro hac autem dimissione & quiete clamazione, et presentis Carte confirmatione, predicti Prior & Conventus adquietaverunt me erga Flemengum & Bendinum, et Aaron, et Jacobum, et Leonem, Judeos; de sexaginta & decem Marcis. Et siquis Judeus vel Judea occasione aliquius Invidiationis per me facte, de predictis Prebenda vel Terra, predictos Priorem & Conventum vexare voluerit, ego eos per omnia adquietabo."

Many other of the Actions of this Prior Richard may be collected from this Chartulary, which I shall omit for the present, thinking that what is already done may suffice.

"In the Name of God, and of his Divine Nativity the

Num. 1886, 1887:

1528th year, on the 27th day of February, in the Town of Leeuwarden, it is deliberated at an ordinary Diet & general Convention of the Prelates, Clergy, Nobles, Gentlemen & Commons, Cities & Inhabitants of the Province of Frizeland. Forasmuch as in the Affairs of Frizeland & places adjacent, many Transactions have happened in our times, more remarkable than have hitherto passed in the Memory of Man: And whereas in different Diets, many Matters have been treated on, which have not as yet been entered into any Public Register: And whereas out of natural Inclination & prudent forecast, it is Satisfactory, Profitable, & Necessary, to know & keep in memory Matters & Transactions passed for an Example. And since, next to the misfortune of Sickness, and the uncertainty of Mans Life, nothing can be more useful & satisfactory than to preserve in Remembrance the Words & Deeds of Men. It is found beneficial & necessary to cause an Annal or Register to be composed. Towards the doing of which, the States & Votes beforementioned have desired & appointed in particular, Kempo van Martena, Doctor Knight & Counsellor here in this Court of Frizeland, as concurring in his Wisdom & Experience of all matters passed since the Year 1498, touching the Income of the Taxes of the Salties to the Year 1540, raised by any Act during the Residence of the Lady Mary Queen of Hungary in the Netherlands, the years 1545, included; particularly what may relate to the Land & People of Frizeland. Also to recollect, discover, sett in Order, & register the chief & most remarkable occurrences which have happened without the Land of Frizeland, which may serve for Example, Use, and Improvement; and to bring the same to be examined & authorized by Gerrolt van Herema also his Majesties Counsellor, Mr. Seyts Tzyarda, Jarich de Hama, Wychie van Camunga, & Jonge Janche Douwena. And whereas by divers Impediments the Persons aforesaid could not perform the said Orders, the General States of Frizeland in a Diet holden at Leeuwarden on the 18th of April in the Year 1539, did again order & appoint Mr. Jarich & Sicke van Ethama, Syts Tzyarda, Aebe Syouxina, and Janche Douwena; and upon another Diet held at Leeuwarden the fourth of December, Sybrandt van Roorda was joyned to the Persons aforesaid, to revise, correct, & authenticate, or cause to be authenticated this present Register. And it is to be understood, that the Five Persons abovementioned should take to their Assistance the Councillours of Frizeland, namely Mr. Albert Aernsma, Doctor Renich van Bourmania, Doctor Heffor van Hoxwier, and Pieter van de Hama, by them to be examined & approved jointly with the others. To all and every one of whom, the States & Voices aforesaid (as trusting in their Discretion & Experience) do order, appoint, & give full Power, to examine & to approve of the same as they shall find meet; that the same may be carried on & continued for an Example, & for the Use, Advantage, and Information of our posterity."

This valuable Book beginneth with the Year 1498, & endeth with the Year 1545, both abovementioned.

A paper-Book in fol. (bought of me) and written as appeareth by fol. 167. (according to the new Numeration) by Sir John Coche Vicar of Stockland-Gaunt, A.D. 1545, containing his Collection of Receipts & Medicines Physicall & Chirurgicall, &c. to which divers others have been added by those, who after his time owned the Book, a list of whom may be seen in fol. 167. b.

I shall choose to describe it more particularly, in the manner following,

1. The Vertue & Degrees of some Herbs. 1.
2. Tractatus præfatus Domini Joannis Coche, ut videtur, de Theoria & Practica Medicinæ. 2.
3. Tractatus mirabilis Aquarum; quem composuit Magister Petrus Hispanus, ex naturali industria sui Intellectus, manu ejusdem Joannis Coche. 46.

4. Receipts

Num. 1887, 1888.

4. Receipts of Waters, added by John Coch, to the last Treatise. 55.
 5. Another Collection of Receipts, of Physic, Chirurgery, &c. partly in English & partly in Latin, by the same John Coch. 58.
 6. How Mannys Nature is chaunged from one Complexion into another; by the same John Coch. 136.
 7. Ad cognoscendum omnia Ulcera five Apotemata de-foris, cujus generis five qualitatis fuerint; in English, by the same. 142. b.
 8. De Herbis colligendis; in English, by the same. 143.
 9. Tabula Salerni; manu ejusdem. 144.
 10. Of the Virtues of Herbs, by the same. 151.
 11. The Tretyse of the 4 Elements with the 7 Planettes, and the 12 Signes, with there Qualities, Naturys, & Disposicions, the which is ful necessary & expedient to be known for many causes concerning the disposicion of mannys Byrthe, & the Ministration of Medicines in tyme of Sickness; and to know the Tymes, Dayes, & Houres, which be gode or evyll to do any thyng yn &c. by the same. 155.
 He writeth fol. 162. b. where he is upon knowing the Weather by change of the ☾ that part of this Tract is taken from the work of John de Barba de Monte Pefulano, as John Barte translated the same out of Latyn into Englysh. And at the end, is this Rubric by the same Hand, 'Et sic in X^{po} valet', 1545, et 14 die Mensis Aprilis, ex industria Johannis Coch, Vicarij de Stoccolond-Gaunte.'

12. Another Collection or Set of Medicines & Receipts chiefly Chirurgical by the same Hand. 168. to 262.
 It may be noted, that all along, in these Collections, the several Medicines are ranked under certain Heads; and space left for inferring more, as they should come to Hand. This work hath been performed by those who, in process of time, came be owners of the Book, and who by the pains they have taken, did sufficiently manifest their Esteem of it.

I am not insensible of many things therein, which may be impertinent enough at this time, wherein we find a new Practise established: but notwithstanding them, I am pretty sure, that many useful Hints may be herein found, both as to Physic and Surgery, which if revived might redound to the public good.

A paper-Book in fol. the Title whereof seemeth to be of Sir Simonds D'Ewes's Hand-writing, in these words, 'A Journal of the Parliament holden at Westminster in anno 35 Reginæ Elizabethæ, A^o. Dⁿⁱ 1592.'

In comparing this with Sir Simonds D'Ewes's his Journals of Queen Elizabeth's Parliaments in Print, I find it to be often therein cited, as particularly in the places following.

—and a Speech used by Her Majesty Her Self at the Conclusion of the Parliament, which also is supplied out of a certain Journal of the House of Commons, very elaborately taken by an Anonymous. 456. col. 1.

Nota, That which is set down touching the coming up of the House of Commons—is not found in the Original Journal-Book of the Upper-House, but is here inserted out of the Original Journal-Book of the House of Commons, and partly out of another very exact Journal of that House which was in my Custody, being very diligently observed & set down by some Anonymous, who was a Member of the said House during this Parliament. 458. col. 2.

Nota, That these several interlocutory Speeches of the Speaker & the Lord-Keeper, are not found in the Original Journal-Books of the Upper House, or the House of Commons, but are supplied out of a very elaborate Journal of the passages of the said Commons House, taken by some anonymous Member thereof this Parliament. 460. col. 2.

Num. 1888.

Note—Partly out of another very exact Journal of that House, which was in my Custody, being very diligently observed and set down by some Anonymous who was a Member of the said House during this Parliament, out of which the said Speeches were written ALMOST verbatim. 467. col. 1.

Which Passage, as also divers other particular Speeches, being not found in the Original Journal-Book of the House of Commons, are supplied out of another Journal of the same House very exactly & elaborately taken by an Anonymous, being a Member of the same at this Parliament. 468. col. 1.

Nota, That none of these particulars—are set down in the Original Journal book of the House of Commons, but are abstracted out of another Journal of the same House taken by an anonymous Member of the same during the Parliament. 470. col. 1.

—and therefore that which followeth, is supplied out of that anonymous Journal mentioned at the beginning— ibid. col. 2.

Nota, That this is all that is found in the Original Journal-Book of the House of Commons touching these Speeches; which, because they contain many excellent Passages concerning the History of these times of Her Majesty, I have therefore supplied at large (Sir Edward Stafford's Speech only excepted, which was wanting there also) out of a very elaborate Journal of the same House, taken by some anonymous Member thereof at this Parliament. 471. col. 2.

Nota, That there is no other Speech touching this Business particularly & fully set down in the original Journal-Book of the House of Commons; and therefore those Speeches which follow, are supplied out of that anonymous Journal of the same House, &c. 474. col. 2.

After this Speech of Mr. Bacons, there is no particular mention of any other Speech which was spoken at this time touching this Business in the original Journal-Book of the House of Commons; and therefore these Speeches which follow are supplied out of another anonymous Journal of the Passages of this Parliament, &c. 477. col. 2.

Now, in the next Place, there ensueth the Relation of her Majesties tending for the Speaker, and of the Message which she gave him in Command to deliver to the House; all which he declared at large this day, as it is very elaborately & fully set down in the anonymous Journal,—and therefore it is wholly inserted out of it; and the rather, because it is almost wholly wanting in the original Journal Book itself, there being one whole blank Page and a good Part of another Page left unwritten with Intention doublets at first to have inserted it, although it was afterwards very negligently omitted by Mr. Fulk Onslow Clerk of the said House of Commons. 478. col. 1.

—All which (some alterations only excepted for Order and Explanations sake) are herein inserted out of the said anonymous Journal, &c. 479. col. 2.

Nota, That these Speeches are all transcribed out of the said anonymous Journal. 480. col. 2.

Thus far out of the before-mentioned anonymous Journal, touching the aforesaid Question, how far an outlawed Man might be a Member of the House. 482. col. 2.

—are either very imperfectly set down, or wholly omitted in the original Journal-Book it self, and are therefore supplied out of the said anonymous Journal. 483. col. 2.

—All which said Speeches being either very shortly and imperfectly set down in the original Journal-Book of the House of Commons, or wholly omitted, & for which three intire Pages and more, are left blank to have inserted them (in which are set down the Names only of some of those that spake them) therefore, they are supplied out of the aforesaid anonymous Journal very elaborately taken by some Member of the said House during this Parliament. 487. col. 2.

Nota,

Num. 1888.

Nota, That there is no more found of this Days Passages in the original Journal-Book of the House of Commons, although there be almost two Pages left blank by Mr. Fulk Onflow, at this time Clerk of the said House, with intention doubtless, at the first, to have inserted them; and therefore they are very largely & fully supplied out of the aforefaid anonymous Journal, very elaborately taken by some Member of the same House, during this Parliament, &c. 489. col. 2.

Nota, That there is no more of this days Passages found in the original Journal-Book of the House of Commons, although there followed divers Speeches upon the foregoing Motion of Sir Thomas Heneage—concerning the great business of Supply to be given to Her Majesty; all which are therefore inserted out of that aforefaid anonymous Journal taken by some Member of the said House during this Parliament, which are there set down 'with very little alteration to them) in manner & form following. 491. col. 2.

But what those alterations were upon which the old Bill against Reculants) was rejected & a new Bill framed, are not set down in the original Journal-Book itself; and therefore, because it is a matter of no small Consequence, and may also be of some Use, I have inserted the particulars thereof, out of the aforefaid anonymous Journal, &c. 497. col. 2.

—which Speeches containing in them matter of good consequence, are wholly omitted in the original Journal-Book it self, and are therefore supplied out of the aforefaid anonymous Journal, &c. 500. col. 1.

—which said Speech, containing divers matters of good moment in it, although it be omitted in the original Journal-Book it self, yet I have thought good to supply it out of the aforefaid anonymous Journal, &c. 504. col. 2.

After which, there followed divers long Speeches & Arguments on both sides, both with the Bill & against the Bill; which said Speeches being omitted in the original Journal Book of the House of Commons, are in respect of the great weight of this matter touching Aliens now controverted, supplied out of the aforefaid anonymous Journal, &c. 505. col. 1.

Nota, This is all which is found in the original Journal-Book of the House of Commons of this days Passages; and therefore there being an excellent Vote or Resolution of the House touching the Addition & Amendments of Bills after their passing of either House, set down in the often-before-recited anonymous Journal—I have thought good to have it inserted, &c. 512. col. 2.

Which short remembrance of this excellent Precedent—is all that is found in the original Journal Book it self of the House of Commons: and therefore—I have caused it to be transcribed at large out of the often before recited anonymous Journal, &c. 514. col. 1.

I purposely omit divers other citations made by Sir Simonds D'Ewes from the present MS. but do observe, that 1. It was of exceeding great use to him, in compiling his Narration of the Occurrences passing in this Parliament, as being his only original for a great part thereof. 2. That, notwithstanding his owning the same to be an exact Journal, he hath not copied the same exactly, but abridged & varied from it in such places as he thought wanted amendment; as may be seen by comparing the same with his Manuscript Journal in the Library. 3. That Mr. Bowes (who borrowed the said Manuscript-Journal of Sir Willoughby D'Ewes, and printed it without asking his Consent, as Sr. Simonds D'Ewes and his Lady more than once assured me) hath used the same Liberty in his Print, as old Sir Simonds did in compiling his Manuscript; and what was worse, hath all along neglected the keeping up to the Alteration of the Hands in his Print, as is used in the Manuscript, whereby Sir Simonds plainly distinguished what was said from Authority, from that which was only of his own Hand.

Surveyed & Inventoried this 26th day of March 1688, by me Thomas Hall. 25.

This is also signed by the same Tho. Hall. 5. An inventory of the Kings Goods at Newmarket. This is signed by Geo Mann. 31.

6. An Inventory of His Majesties Goods in Ludlow-Castle, furnished out of His Majesties Greate Wardrobe, by Warrants from the Right Honourable the Lord Chamberlaine of His Majesties Household; now in the Custody of Walter Lloyd Keeper of the Wardrobe there. 33.

This is signed by the said Walter Lloyd. 7. An Inventory of all his Majesties Jewells; Gold-Guilt, & White Plate; which are either in the Charge & Custody of His Majesties Jewell house, or in the Charge of the aforefaid Office, & in the Custody of other Persons & Offices. Taken, 19 March 1687. 34.

This is signed by the proper Officers. 8. A List of His Majesties Pictures in Whitehall. 45.

I am afraid that neither this, nor the rest that follow are always to be relied upon as to the Characters or Descriptions of them; or as to the Names of those Masters who are said to have painted them.

9. Another List of certain of his Majesties Pictures; but which doth not shew where, or in whose Custody they then were. 68.

10. Pictures of the Kings in the Queene-Dowagers Custody. 69.

11. Pictures in Windsor-Castle. 72.

12. Pictures at Hampton-Court. 76.

14. Pictures of his Majesties in Whitehall, that were not the late Kings. 83. b.

15. Another list of Pictures, without a Title; being (perhaps) those of his Majesties Pictures in Hampton-Court which did not belong to K. Charles II. 84. b.

16. His Majesties Pictures at St. James. 85. b.

17. A List of the Statues in Marble; and Figures in Braile; in Whitehall. 87.

This is signed by Will. Chiffinch; who seemeth also to have been the person who drew the abovementioned Lists of the Pictures.

1891.

A Book in fol. consisting of two main parts. Vizt. 1. The perspective of Hanse Lencker a Citizen of Nurenbergh; compiled in the German Language, and printed at the same Place, A. D. 1571.

The remaining part of the book is Manuscript, being, 2. A Treatise

Num. 1891, 1892.

2. A Treatise of Gauging, in the German Language; with Schemes & Figures. 30.

3. A Treatise of Perspective, grounded on some Geometrical Precepts; by the same hand, & in the same Language. 70.

This is not finished; for most of the Figures have never been inserted.

A paper-Book in fol. wherein are contained the following Tracts.

1. A Confession of the Faith, by Mr. Francis Bacon. 71.
 2. An Advertisement touching the Controversies of the Church of England. 5.
- Herein, the Author layeth open the faults on both sides; & seemeth, to me, to handle the matter with Judgement & Impartiality.
3. Certain Considerations touching the better Pacification & Edification of the Church of England; dedicated to his most excellent Majesty K. James I. 18.
- Many Phrases and Expressions shew this Tract to have been compiled by the author of the former: and he (near the beginning) owning himself to be of a Profession, and that different from Theology; some other circumstances also concurring; I am inclined to think that Sir Francis Bacon might be the man.

1894.

A Book in small fol. neatly enough bound in Crimofine Velvet with Silver Clasp, & Gilt Edges; written all along in the Spanish Tongue. It consisteth of two main Parts, the first whereof being in a larger & plainer Hand is upon Velum; the other, upon paper. But before all, I find

1. A Picture of Ignatius Loyola, Founder of the Jesuites. 1.

Then follow,

2. An Escudoon wherein are painted Quarterly, the Armes of the Families of Ynchaurendieta, Maquibar, Lecuona, & Elizondo. 2.

3. An Historical Account of the Rise & Progress of the said Families, and how & when they came to intermarry; given by Don Francisco de Morales Zarco Historiographer & King of Armes to His Catholick Majesty King Charles the Second. dated the 20th of October A. D. 1697. 2. b.

The chief business of this Account or Certificate, is, to sett forth the Merits of some of the abovementioned Families, as also to display the Excellency of their several Bearings in their Armes. This, Don Francisco hath done in such a manner, as he thought might best discover his profound Learning, extensive Reading, & Heraldical Skill: although, notwithstanding all this Splutter, some some in England would deem him an ignorant person, and one who would say any thing for Money. The Certificate is adorned with the Armes of the said families painted, I suppose, as well as the Spanish Heralds could perform. At the end is Don Francisco's Hand & Seal of Office; and afterward, come the Certificates & Hands of several other Officers, attesting & authenticating the same.

Thus far, all is written upon Velum: what followeth is upon Paper.

4. A Plea or Process of Descent, Nobility & Gentry, & Clearness of Blood, carried on by Sebastian de Azcue Aranguren, Neighbour in the Noble & Loyal Valley of Oyarzun in the very Noble & very Loyal Province of Guipúzcoa in Biscay, as Husband of Maria-Martin de Ynchaurendietta, Sister to Captain Don Ignacio de Ynchaurendietta, and in his Name & behalf, he being absent in the Indies; in Order to his being admitted into the Number of the Gentry, & consequently, capable of bearing Offices in the Province both Civil & Military. In carrying on this tedious Cause (which held above a twelve-month) it was, at last, proved, that this Don Ignacio was a Native of the said Valley, & descended of the first peoples thereof (although I do not remember that the allegations, as to the antiquity of the family, amount to above 100 years) that he sprung from the Old Christians, clear of all evil race of Jews, Moors, Lepers, & Penitents from the Holy Office of the Inquisition, or of any other reprobate Sect: and therefore Sentence was given accordingly in his Favor: which was confirmed by the Junta of the said Province, which, although it be but a part of Biscay, hath nevertheless its own government. This Transcript from the Registers was signed & authenticated by the proper Officers, En Testimonio de Verdad, in November & December, A. D. 1697. 27.

In the process, besides the Interrogatories, & Depositions of Witnesses, are Extracts from the public Records touching this Family; and what is more considerable, divers Grants & Charters of Privileges made to the Province by some of the Kings & Queens of Spain are here recited.

5. The Original Confirmation of the Province, above-mentioned, with the Seal & Hand "Per mandato de la Junta," of Don Phelipe de Aguirre their Scribe: added to the end of the book. 97.

This is before recited, at 92. b.

6. The Grant of an Augmentation to the Arms of the Province of Guipúzcoa, by Joan Queen of Spain, dated the 28 of February, A. D. 1513. 93.

This is signed as the last; but hath the Seal of the Province affixed.

93. Orders & Letters sent from the Commissioners of the Navy to the Commissioners of the Victualling, with relation to the Victualling the Fleet. From the 8 January 1691. to the 3 August 1693. Copied out of the Originall Booke, sent from the Navy-Office. 205.

1899.

An imperfect Book in fol. thus entituled,
Advice to His Majesty touching a New Model of Fortification: with many Draughts.

The Hand & manner of Drawing shew the Author to have been the late Colonel Thomas Colepeper, most of whose Papers, by my means, are come into this Library; although this individual Book, was (with others) given by Colonel Henry Worley, at present His Majesties Envoy-Extraordinary in Portugal.

1900.

A parchment-Book in fol. bought & given by my noble Lord Harley; wherein are contained more of the Translations & Compositions of John de Trevisa Vicar of Berkeley, & Chaplain to Thomas Baron of Berkeley, than I have seen in any other book.

They are,

1. Dialogous inter Militem & Clericum; i. e. between the above-mentioned Lord & Himself; in English.

It beginneth thus, "Ich wondre Sire noble knyzt, pat in fewe dayes tymes lech chaungide; rixt is y-buried; lawes bep overturned; & Statutes bep y-trode under feet." And the main Drift thereof seemeth to be to impugn the Papal power in Temporal matters: for, as may be gathered from John Bale, he was no great friend to the Regular Clergie of those times; and might, possibly differ in opinion from them, touching more matters than their Pride, Luxury, & Hypocrisie. Thus a little from the beginning the Knight saith, "Noman hap power to ordeyne no Statutes vpon pynges, ouer þe whiche he hap no Lordship: as þe kyng of Fraunce may ordeyne no Statutes vpon þe Emprye; noþer þe Emperour vpon þe kyngdom of Englonde. And also Princes of the World may ordeyne no Statutes of zoure Spiritualte; for þei haueþ no power ouer zoure Spiritualte. Also, ze mowe ordeyne no Statutes of Temporalte, ouer þe whiche ze haueþ no power noþer auctorite. perfore, ich louz wel faste whanne ich herde telle þat Pope Bonifas hadde made a newe Statute, þat he hym-self schuld be aboue alle seculer Lordes, Princes, Kyngis, & Emperours, & aboue alle Kyngdoms, & make lawe vpon alle þinges; & þat him nedþ nouzt but write; for alle þinges schal be his whanne he hath y-write. For, to make a Statute is nouzt elles but wilne þat þe decre be y-holde, & ordeyne & hoote þat hit be y-holde. Zif he wole haue my Castel, my Toun, my Feelde, my Money, & alle siche þinges, hym nedþ nouzt but wilne hit, & write & make a Decree, & hote þat hit be y-holde; & whanne þat is y-do, he hap rixt to alle siche þingis. Nowe, goode Clerk, þou knowest wel how worþi þis Jape is to be scorned." This notable Statute, as the Knight calleth it, I take to be that Constitution of Pope Bonifacius VIII. which I find in the Corpus Juris Canonici. Edit. Pith. Extravag. Comm. Lib. 1. Tit. vni. De Majoritate & Obedientia, an Extract from whence, I venture here to put down, "Unam Sanctam Ecclesiam Catholicam, & ipsam Apostolicam, urgente fide, credere cogimur & tenere. Nōq; hanc firmiter credimus, & simpliciter confitemur: extra quam, nec Salus est, nec remissio Peccatorum.—Igitur Ecclesie unus & unica; unum Corpus, unum Caput; non duo Capita, quasi Monstrum; Christus videlicet, et Christi Vicarius Petrus, Petrus; succesor.—Sive, ergo, Graci five alij se dicant Petro ejusq; Successoribus non esse commissos, fateantur necesse, se de Ovis Christi non esse, dicente Domino in Johanne, Unum Ovile, et Unicum esse Pastorem. In hac ejusq; potestate duos esse Gladios, Spiritualem videlicet & Tem; oralem, Evangelicis dictis instrumir. Nam dicentibus Apostolis, Ecce Gladij duo hic (in Ecclesie scilicet cum Apostoli loquerentur) non respondit Dominus nimis esse, sed Satis.—Uterque ergo est in potestate Ecclesie, Spiritus scilicet Gladius, & Materialis; sed is quidem pro Ecclesia; ille verò ab Ecclesia exercen lus. Ille Sacerdotis; is manu Regum & Milium; sed ad nutum & patientiam Sacerdotis. Oportet autem Gladium esse sub Gladio, et Temporalem auctoritatem Spirituali subijci potestati.—Spiritualem autem & Dignitatem & Nobilitatem terrarum quamlibet precellere potestatem, oportet tanto clarior nos fateri, quanto Spiritualia Temporalia antecellunt.—Nam Veritate testante, Spirituali potestas Terrarum potestatem insituere habet, et Judicare si bona non fuerit.—Ergo, si deviat Terrena potestas, judicabitur a potestate Spirituali: sed si deviat Spiritus minor, a suo Superiori: si verò Suprema, a solo Deo, nullo homine, poterit iudicari.—Porro, subest Romano Pontifici omnem humanam creaturam declaramus, definimus, & pronunciamus omnino esse, de necessitate Salutis."

This Tract is omitted by John Bale, & John Pits.

2. Sermo Domini Archiepiscopi Armachani, Anglicæ.

6.

This Translation is also omitted by Bale & Pits (as all Trevisa's works are by John Leland & Dr. Cave) but the Latin Original is published by Dr. Browne in his Appendix to the Fasciculus Rerum expetendarum & fugiendarum, at pag. 466. where it beareth this following Title, "Defensorium Cvratorem contra eos qui privilegios se dicunt: Propositio Richardi [Filij Radulphi, five Fitz-Rauf.] Archiepiscopi Armachani Pinnatis Hibernie, facta in Consistorio coram Domino Papa, & Dominis Cardinalibus ac Prælati, ad utilitatem Cleri & populi Christiani, super materia Mendicitatis & Privilegiorum, contra Fratres de Ordinibus mendicantium quibuscunque; apud Avinionem octava die Mensis Novembris A. D. 1357.

In this learned Tract, it appeareth that during the Times of Popery, therewere more Students in Oxford, than at this day; for saith he, fol. 11. b. "So þat zet in my tyme in þe universite of Oxenford were forty pound Scolers at ones: & now bep vnnese fixe þousand;" but good Books were scarcer presently thus, "for þese Orders of Beggens, for endless whyng & þat þe geth by beggyng of þe forreide Pryvyeges of Scholares & Scoleres

And alſo y ſent my Sugettes to Scole þre oper ſoure perſons: and hit is ſeid me þat ſome of them þeþ come home azen, for þei myſt nougt finde to ſelle oon gode Bible, noþer opere couenable bookes." Here (by the way) I like the Engliſh Tranſlation General Studies (which ſignifieth as much as Univerſities) much better than the Latin Text, as given us by Dr. Browne, or as cited from the Lambeth Manuſcript by Mr. Henry Wharton, in his Auctarium, or Appendix to Arch-Biſhop Uſher's Hiſtoria Dogmatica de Script. & Sac. Vern. page. 429. in both which, the words are Studijs communibus.

3. "þe booke of Methodij þe Biſhop of þe chirche of Paterenis & Martir of Criſt; which he chargide to tranſlate of Hebrue & Greek ſpeeche into Latyn: þat i, of þe bygynning of þe world & the Rewmes bitwixe, of Folkiſ, & þe ende of worldes; which þe noble man Seynt Jerom in his werkis prayled." 21. b.

This Tract is likewiſe omitted by Bale (& Pits) of whom the former (to do him Juſtice) after ſplitting Treviſa's Tranſlation of the Polychronicon into many pieces, concludeth thus, et alia plura fecit & tranſtulit. As to the Original; learned men generally deem it ſuppoſitious; it being idle enough, and making mention of the great Conqueſts & Cruelties of the Sarazens, who brake not forth from Arabia until many Centuries after the deceaſe of Methodius Paterenis.

Then follow,

4. An Alphabetical Table or Index to Ranulph Higden's Polychronicon.

24. NB. Some of the Principal Letters are cut out, by Children, as may be ſuppoſed.

5. Another Alphabetical Table to the ſame Book, in Engliſh.

32. b. John Treviſa's Dialogue with his Lord, touching the utility of Tranſlations in General, & of the Tranſlation of Polychronicon into Engliſh in particular.

42. In one place of it (which eſcaped Dr. Hickes; but is cited, in Latin, by Mr. Wharton in his Auctarium, or Appendix abovementioned, pag. 439.) the Lord argueth thus, "It is wonder þat þou makeſt fo feble arguments, & haſt y-go fo longe to ſcole; Aristoiliſ bokes & opere bokes alſo of Logike & of Philoſophy were tranſlated out of Grue into Latyn. Alſo atte praying of Kyng Charles, Johan Scot tranſlated Denys bookes out of Grue into Latyn; & þan, out of Latyn into Frenſche; þan what hath Engliſh y-treſpaced þat hit myzt not be tranſlated into Engliſh? Alſo King Alurede þat founded þe Vniuerſitie of Oxenford, tranſlated þe beſt Lawes into Engliſh tonge; and a grete del of þe Sauter out of Latyn into Engliſche; and made Wireſriþ Biſhop of Wiretre tranſlate Seynt Gregories bokes of Dialoges out of Latyn into Saxon. Alſo Cedmon of Whiteby was enſpired of þe holy Goſt, & made wonder poiſyes an Engliſh, neiz of al þe Storyes of Holy writ. Alſo þe Holy man Beda tranſlated Seynt Jones Goſpel out of Latyn into Engliſh. Alſo þou woſt where þe Apocalips is y write in þe Walles & Roof of a Chape, boþe in Latyn & in Frenſche."

This Dialogue which taketh up no more than three pages & Six Lines, is one of the Books aſcribed to our Treviſa by Bale [Upon occaſion of the word Quæ, twice above-written, and ſignifying the Greek Language] & Grues & Wreſ ſignify the Greek People] I call to mind, that in Benedicteus Petroburgienſis, & in his Deſcator Roger Hovedene, the Greeks or that Part of the People of a Region who followed the Greek Worſhip are divers times called Gryſones; which ſeemeth to have given occaſion to the formation of the former word. And I leave it to the Heralds to determine, whether their beloved Monſter the Gryphon, were not firſt born by ſuch of the Latins, who in their Sauntering towards the Holy Land, had occaſionally exerted their Manhood upon thoſe of the Greek Religion]

Num. 1900.

But to return; the next thing that appeareth, is,

7. Treviſa's Epistle to his Lord Berkeley; teſtifying his willingneſs to enter upon the Tranſlation of the following Work, & his Reſolution to go through with the ſame.

43. b. 8. John Treviſa's Translation of Ranulph Higden's Polychronicon, in 7 Books.

44. This Tranſlation endeth in the year of our Lord 1357; and hath none of the Continuations mentioned by Bale & others.

I have already (in this Volume) obſerved that Ranulph was not the original Author of the Polychronicon, but an errant Plagiary; and will not here repeat that matter. But it may not be amiſs to put down what Mr. Wharton ſaith of Treviſa, & of this Performance, in pag. 48 & 49 of his Appendix to Dr. Caves Hiſtoria Litteraria. "Ranulphi Polychronicon, ſaith he, juſti nobilis viri Thomæ de Barkeley Anglice verit Joannes de Treviſa, Sacerdos Cornubiensis, ac Vicarius de Barkelej; qui et multis alijs Scriptis, imprimis vero integræ uirulq; Testamenti verſione Anglica, inclauit. Polychronici Verſione ipſe nonnulla, appoſita tamen ſemper diſtinctionis notâ de ſuo interxit, præſertim contra Monachiſ Ordinis petulantiam ac Superſtitiones, quas ſæpius exagitare ſolet. Verſionem ad finem perduxit, uti ex nota calci adnexa patet, anno 1387. die 8vo Aprilis: adeo ut palum lapſus ſit ſeu incuria ſeu errato Typographico Caxtonus; qui in ſine Verſionis a ſe typis impreſſæ, adnotavit eam finitam eſſe anno 1357. Illam enim immutato paululum Anglice lingue Archaiſmo, et a ſeipſo ad annum uſq; 1460. Edwardi iv. Regis primum continuatam, typis impreſſam euulgavit Londini 1482. Guilielmus Caxtonus, qui ſub Edwardo Rege dicto clauit, primuſq; omnium artem typographicam Angliæ intulit. Ipſamet autem Johannis de Treviſa verſio, a Caxtono nondum perpolita, extat MS. in inſtructiſſima Rev. viri Thomæ Teniſoni Theologi noſtratiſ doctiſſimi, Bibliotheca."

The abovementioned Note at the end of this Tranſlation, hath created yet more trouble to learned men, as may partly appear by the following Citations. "Ad petitionem Domini ſui Thomæ de Barkeley (ſaith the learned Primate Uſher, Hiſt. Dogm. pag. 157.) in Anglicanum idioma tranſtulit totum Bibliorum opus, utruſq; ſcilicet Teſtamentum; præſatione præfixa, cujus initium 'Ego Johannes Treviſa Sacerdos,' &c. ut habet Balæus, Centur. 7. Verum ipſe in ſine Tranſlationis Polychronici, tempus quo ſcripſit, his verbis proponit, Verſio liſta finita eſt, die Jovis (lege potius die Martis) die 18 Aprilis A. Num. 1900.

But I find the words of the same Cottonian MS. Tib D. 7. to be these, þiss t'indlacpon ys ended in a þorðday þe cysstetube day of ðuceþyl.

To the above-written passage of Arch-bishop Usher, Mr. Wharton maketh the following Answer, Auctar. pag. 439. "Trevifæ ætatem Cl. Usherius a Caxtono deceptus male posuit. Quæ enim ex fine Translacionis Polychronici citat, a Caxtono foede corrupta sunt. Námq; is Verionem passim emendare, et pro lubitu mutare in se recepit; quod in Præfatione Editionis sue fatetur. Cum itaq; Historia Polychronici anno 1157. desierit; ille Verionem illo anno finitam esse, aut imprudens credidit, aut forsitan etiam sciens substituit. Propius ad veritatem accedunt hinc Codices MSS. ab Usherio memorati, alter D. Folterii, alter Cottonianus; quorum ille notat Verionem finitam esse die Jovis, Aprilis, octavo, anno 1387. decimo Richardi II. Ille autem, die Jovis, Aprilis 18. anno duodecimo Richardi II. Uterque vero lapsus est. Neque enim (in priore calculo) Aprilis 18 anno 1387. in diem Jovis incidit, sed in diem Lunæ: nec (in posteriore) annus 1387. incidit in duodecimum Richardi II. annum, sed in vicimum. Utrique igitur scrupulo feliciter satisfacti, et finitæ Verionis tempus recte definit Codex M^s. qui in instructissima cl. Tenisoni Bibliotheca habetur, his verbis. Ista Translatio finita est die Jovis, decimo octavo Aprilis die, A. D. 1387. decimo Richardi II. post Conquestum anno; anno autem tricesimo quinto ætatis Patroni mei Domini Thomæ Baronis de Berkeley, qui me Translationem istam aggressi fecit. Crafius adhuc hallucinatur Seldenus (in fine præfat. ad X Scriptores Angl.) qui Trevifam Higdeni Polychronicon con- vertisse, et ad initia Edwardi I. annum sc. 1260. continuasse dicit. Qui Verionem enim Polychronici primus edidit Caxtonus, Continuationem ejus ab anno 1257. ad 1260. non a Trevifa, sed a senect ipsius concriptam Iulio dieris verbis affirmat."

I have only to add, concerning the date, that in the present Copie of my Lords now before me; and in another now in the possession of my learned Friend Mr. Antis, I find plainly the xxiii day of ðuceþyl, and the tenþe year, about which so much dispute hath been made; and I doubt not but the same true reading may be found in other Copies. As to the Bible's being wholly translated by our Author Trevifa; I perceive it mentioned by Caxton; from him by Bale & Pits, who give the beginning of the Preface thereunto; from Bale, Primate Usher takes the notion; and at length Mr. Wharton (App. ad Cav. Hist. Litt. pag. 49.) believes it may be still extant: it relating not to the book in hand, I shall say no more but this; I shall be very glad to see one of them.

A paper-Book in fol. (given by the Hon. Coll. Henry Worleley, at this time His Majesty's Envoy extraordinary to the King of Portugal) being a second tome belonging to a former, designed to be a complete Register of the severall Acts, Negotiations, & Letters relating to Sir Thomas Roes Ambassage in Germany, for bringing about the Restoration of the Palatine-Family. A good part of it seemeth to have been written by Sir Thomas Roes own Hand; the rest, by his Secretary or Amanuensis. This Second Tome may be considered in the manner following,

First, Minutes or Draughts of Letters to divers Kings & Princes, drawne vp by his Majesties Order, to be sent to Oxford, August 1641.

NB. Those that follow in this Division, are all in the Name of K. Charles I.

1. To the Duke of Brunswick & Lunenburgh. 1. b. Thanking them for the Affection they had shewn to the Queen of Bohemia His Sister, Her Son the Prince Palatine & his Familie, at the late Diet at Ratibon; whose Interests His Majesty is still resolved to pursue at the general Treaties designed to be held at Munster and Olinaburg; especially, since at the Assembly in Francfort the German Princes had declared the Exile & Oppression of his Nephew, an Elector & principal Member of the Empire, to be a cheife impediment of the interne Peace; and particularly, since the Crownes of France & Sweden would take that just Cause into their Protection. He desireth them, therefore, to join with those other Princes & States who are mediators, or shall be interessed in that Treaty, for the general pacification, insilling upon the Vindication of their fundamentall Lawes & Liberties, and a general Amnestie to the year 1618. because both the being of the Protestant Religion, & all the Libertye & Priviledges of the German Princes, will depend upon

† If the MS. Copie of Trevifa's Translation now in the Library of St. Johns College in Cambridge, be that which formerly belonged to Mr. Forster (as in probability it may) the date thereof is right enough; for it expressly saith evngþenþe; as appeareth by the same sent by Mr. Baker to Dr. Hickes, with a remarkable passage from the same book; which, although it was before printed both by Caxton, and by Wynkyn de Worde, the Doctor reprinted in the general Preface to his Thesaurus, at pag. 17.

† This must be an error in the Print; surely Mr. Wharton could not have been guilty of so great a blunder.

¶ Here is another erratum; for Selden's words are these, "Versio illa typis, etiam superioribus seculis, his edita est; et ab interprete, Joanne Schæfer de Trevia etiam in Edwardi quarti initia continuata."

the Conclusion of this Treatye. For, as this shall leave them, either secured, or oppressed, or over-balanced by the inequality of the Electorall Colledge, many future Ages are like to find them.

2. A Note, shewing that the same in Substance was to be sent to the Landgrave & Landgravine of Hessen, to whom the Title of Illustrissima Celsitudo is to be given, in like manner as to the Dukes of Brunswick. ibid.

3. To the French King. ibid. Desiring that he would give such Commands & Instructions to His Ambassadors at the approaching Treaty of Munster, as that the exiled Palatine Family may be comprehended therein, as principal Members of the Empire; whose oppression hath bene an absolute impediment of the Peace; and without which, nothing can be settled secure & stable. ibid.

4. To the Queene Regent of France. ibid. Desiring that through Her Protection, & Authority with the King Her Son, the Condition of his Sister the Queen of Bohemia, & the Rights & entyre Restitution of the Princes her innocent Children, may be comprehended in the general intended Pacification of the Empire, without which, no peace can be secure, while one of the principall Members shall be excluded from that general benefit, whose cause he can never in Honour, nor for the neernes of blood, abandon. In which worke also, he is assured, the Queene of Suede will concur & co-operate. ibid.

5. To the Duke of Orleans. ibid. Invoking both the Assistance of his Authority & Wisedome, that in the general intended Treatyes for the Pacification of the Empire, the restitution of the Palatine Family may be comprehended, as essential to the Peace. Which can never be secured, but by resettling the principall Members in their antient Right & Inheritances. That, in this conjuncture he shall have Opportunity to oblige two of the firmest Pillars of the German Libertye, ibid.

Num. 1901.

the Illustrious Houses, Palatin & Lorreyne; whose posterity will owe this benefit to the Crowne of France, that they may be able to serve it, as bulwarks against any Enemye.

6. To the Queene of Suede. ibid.

Thanking Her for acquainting His Nephew the Prince Elector Palatine in her late Letters, that she had relolved, in the present Coniuncture of the designed Treaty of Pacification, to embrace his Cause, as an impediment of that consequence, that no Peace can be secure with the Oppression & Exclusion of one of the principall Pillars & Members of the Empire; and to that end, had procured from the Emperor, a Safe-Conduct for him or his Deputies, to appeare & plead his owne Rights. Shewing, that both the well-being, & being of the Protestant Religion, doth absolutely depend upon resetting the balance of the Electoral Colledge, and the Preservation of those Princes who will be united by the Common band of the sincere worship of God. His Majesty declareth his Opinion, that She will not find the Emperor very averse; he having tasted the bitterness of the Bavarian Friendship; and is most assured that She shall meet the Cooperations of the Crowne of France, of His Uncle the King of Denmark, and of all the Princes & States of Germany, that take any care of their owne Safetye & the Common Libertie.

7. To the King of Denmark. 3.

Declaring, that since neither the Justice of the Prince Elector Palatines Cause, his own longe abused Patience, nor the Intercession of so many Kings & Princes, had brought forth Effects answerable to his desires & endeavors for the Common Peace; & especially since by the Resolutions of the Duke of Bavaria, it doth appeare, that there is left no Hope, that he will by any private Treaties or Mediations, make any Restitution acceptable, neither of the Dignitie nor Lands by him vsurped: His Majesty had thought it fit to lay hold upon the opportunistic of the generall Treaties at Munster & Osnabrug, principally designed for the resetting & pacification of the Empire. In which, His Danish Majesty being the cheife Mediator, He fervently recommendeth the Cause of the Palatine-Family to his protection, that it may there be received as a principal Impediment of the desired Peace; which can never be secured with the Exclusion and oppression of the first Elector, as long as there shall live any of that Illustrious Family, that have either freinds or Courage.

8. To the Elector of Saxe. 3. b.

9. To the Elector of Brandeburgh. ibid.

10. To the Elector of Mentz. 4.

11. To the Elector of Collen. 4. 5.

The purport of all these Letters is the same; vizt: to exhort them to pursue the Interests of the Palatine Family at the approaching Treaties of Munster & Osnabrug; which they would find to be countenanced by the Crowns of France, Denmark, & Sweden.

There are Notes concerning the Style to be used to the Electors in writing; namely, that to the Secular Electors, Serenissima Celsitudo must be given in the conclusion; as also in the same manner to the Ecclesiastical Electors, who must be complimented with Rever^{ma}. Celsitudo at the beginning; & Reu^{ma}. Dignitas toward the middle.

Now followeth, the Second Tome, or Continuation of Acts, Negotiations, & Letters, of my (i. e. Sir Thomas Roe's) Ambassage to the Emperour, Electorall Diet, Princes, & States of Germany, viz.

12. Relation of a Conference betweene the Mediatours & me; 22 March 1641-2. 5.

These Mediatours were the Ambassadors of the King of Denmark & of the Elector of Mentz, who said they came to Sir Thomas with a Message from the Emperours Commissioners at the Treaty, the effect of which was, that Sir Thomas should send away a Post to procure from

CAT. HARL. VOL. II.

Num. 1901.

His Majesty K. Charles I. two things; first, an actual Ratification of what should be concluded in the Treaty; so that the Execution on our part might follow immediately without more Ceremony; for that they would actually and instantly restore & give possession to the Prince Elector-Palatin of whatsoever should be agreed upon. Secondly, that His Majesty would procure a Declaration from His Parliament, that they would be obliged to assist him for the performance of his part; to the end, that they might be assured both from the King & Kingdome. Both these proposals were utterly rejected, as highly unseasonable & affronting.

Then follow Draughts of Sir Thomas Roe's Letters.

13. To Sir Arthur Hopton, March 19. 1641-2. 7.

Concerning the King of Spain's Pleni-potence or full-power (of which there was much talk at the Conference above-mentioned) which Sir Thomas objected against, as invalid in respect of Language, Form & Substance. That the Imperialists are grown weak, & by these little & oblique Arts seek to gain time.

Another Letter of the same Date, was sent to Sir Henry de Vic.

14. To Mr. Curtius, 19 March 1641-2. 7. b.

About the Spanish Pleni-potence above mentioned; with remarks upon the Industry of the Hollanders; who during other mens Troubles, seek their own Opportunities; as if there were no day of reckoning. While Spayne & Portugall contend, they catch the Bone; while we wrangle, they snatch up the Stakes.

15. To the Duke of Wirtemberg, in French. 21 March, 1641-2. 8.

That now having attended, as Ambassador from our King to the Emperor & Imperial Diet, five Months, in Order to procure Restitution to all Princes who had been oppressed by the Emperor (among whom His Highness was one) he had not been able to effect any thing of that which was chiefly desired; since the Amnesty which was coming out, was exclusive of the much-wronged Palatine-House, whose Cause our King would never abandon.

16. To the Earle of Arundell. 26 March 1641-2. 8. b.

That when the Commissioners were ready to enter into a real Treaty, grounded on their powers, the Spanish Ambassador confessed he had none. That the Emperour sending an Express into Spayne, and assuring them, that he would procure such powers as were requisite, they had worne out four Months more. That, at last, there is come, and confidently enough presented, a thing like, and by them called, a Pleneptence; but so full of abuse, that it forceth him to conclude, that we can expect nothing from thence but Scorne or Delusion. Though, in the Condition wherein they are, in neede of freinds, he is amazed, that they should thus industriously loose them by trifling. That a little before, the Mediatourshad settled the Treaty in a forme: that is, that the Emperour should first declare what, & how he would restore, for the Lands in the lower Palatine, remitted by the Duke of Bavare to him; and for those held by the heyres of Inspruck, Mentz, & Darmstat. Then, that the Duke of Bavare should declare, for the Dignitye & Upper Lands; and then, that the Conditions of Confederation should be proposed. That they now expect the Emperours answer, who hath taken upon himselfe to conclude & execute for Spayne, upon which he (Sir Thomas) has chosen to relye, as upon the Head of the Emperyre.

17. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas, 23 March 1641-2. 9.

Concerning the Matters before rehearsed; with his Opinion, that if he should breake off & returne, the Emperour would send to His Majesties Gates, & offer that, which they will not give, while they have hope of our Patience, or relye on our owne home Troubles; for this

Protraction

Num. 1901.

Protraction of the first Answer doth block vs up, so that He cannot lay hold vpon the ouertures of the Duke of Buaue. That the Arch-duke Leopold doth stiffly refuse the Charge of Flanders with the Title of Governor; but requirith that of Regent, and to chooe all his owne Counsell: with condition, that if he marry, and have Heyres males, that they shall inherit it, as was agreed vnto the Arch-duke Albertus. But Sir Thomas cannot believe the Spaniards will give that away which is their owne; when they will not restore that they usurpe with injury.

18. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 30 March, 1642. 10. That neither Himself nor the Mediators can procure the Emperors answer; which ought to be the first Step & Ground of a Treaty. That his Ministers have restreyned it agayne to declare only for Himselfe, Spayne, the Heyres of Inspruch, and that part of the Lower Palatinate remitted by the Duke of Buaue: flatly referring us to seeke our owne accommodation with Mentz & Darmstat for the rest, and with the Duke of Buaue for the Dignity & Upper Lands; to whom the Mediators have intimated this Resolution; & the first two have taken time; but Buaue replied, that whensoever the Emperor will do his part, He will declare & enter vpon Treaty the next day. But Sir Thomas thinks that this is all Collusion, & that the full design is to weary us out; sprung from our owne distempers, and a Collection, that we can doe neyther good nor harme: it being reported that the Emperor & all his Court will loon go to Presburg, thence to Pyrna, & from thence to Prague, there to settle his Residence; and he believes that they shall not have tyme enough left for them to finish that in three weeks, which they have not bene able to begin in Nine Months.

19. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 6 April 1642. 10. b. That the Emperors Answer so long promised, is still delaved; the meaning whereof is this; the Imperial Court want to know what our King will do for them. For, vnles they may haue help from His Majesty, in their extreme necessity, they will restore nothing. They will aske (& nothing abate) to haue presently 10000 men given to the Prince Elector Palatin; & His Majesty bound by a Treaty to mainteine them, in conjunction with the Emperor & Emperre, vntill the generall Peace can be obtained, and against whom they shall be employed. Without this they will doe nothing; and this for the Lower Palatinate only; we being left to make our composition with Buaue, as well as we can. Wherefore, the Scale hangs thus, Whether it will be lesse Dishonour or Inconuenience to breake off vpon their Delays, or vpon a Confession of our own Impotency? Sir Thomas gives diuers particulars relating to the Courts of Vienna, Madrid, &c. which I here omit.

20. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 13 April 1642. 11. That the Cause of the Emperors Answer being still delayed, is the Liberty of the Press in England, and freedom for all manner of aduertisements to pass our Ports. For Relations & Journals of our Affaires being brought thither, are instantly translated & published to the infinite disadvantage of our State. Inso much, as he findeth a settled Opinion there, that His Majesty is not able to comply with their desires of present Ayde. And, therefore, howsoever they will in their Answer make some specious Offers vpon Conditions; yet that is only done to make a fayre shewe to the World, in assurance they shall not be put to the Tryall of Performance; and so they will spinne vs out, as long as they can, and in the end lay the sayling vpon vs. That the Emperor will remove within 5 Weekes; yet there is no Inuitement either to Him, or to the Mediators, to follow the Court, as was seriously done at Ratibon. So that it appeares they are content he should take an occasion to separate; and then he shall be forced, before that remove, to begin his Returne, left it should be too apparent, that he is left behind as vnconsiderable. Yet this he cannot do, vnles he be supplied with Money; for which he renues his pressing Instances.

21. To Sir Arthur Hopton. 16 April 1642. 11. b. That the Emperors Answer cannot yet be obtained, the difficulty resting betwene Him & the Duke of Buaue, to accomodate the Dukes Satisfaction betwene themselves. In which, if they can agree, He shall do all his worke at once; if not, we shall only receive an answer for the Lower Palatinate; and be left to treat with Buaue apart, which will proue very knotty. Sir Thomas heares that the Answer will be reasonably free, in the matter of Refutation, but very high the demands of Ayds & Confederacies on our part. Which Demands if they shall be exorbitant, the meaning will be, to make a fayre Shewe, as if they would have restored for the Loue of Peace, but that the sayling should rest vpon us, as (in this vnhappy conjuncture of hometroubles) vnwilling or vnable to comply with their necessities & desires.

22. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 20 April 1642. 12. In this as in former Letters, concerning the confused state of the German Affaires, which I pass over, hasting to what more nearly concerneth us, viz. that He had solicited the Emperors Answer to the last Hour before his removal to Vienna, and then was told by the Ambassador of Mentz, that the Declaration of the Emperor touching the Lower Palatinate was ready, for as much as concerned Him; but that he had given order it should not be exhibited, vntill the Duke of Buaue & the Elector of Mentz should, at the same tyme, deliuer their Resolution & Conditions. This being contrary to the Forme agreed vpon; contrary to the Imperial constant Promises; & a direct opposition to the Duke of Buaues Protestation, is the sure way anew to embroyle the proceeding. That to pacifie him, the Ambassador of Mentz had sent to excuse this delay, vpon the vnreasonable demands of the Duke of Buaue; and that the Emperor had sent to the Duke for more equal conditions. That the Elector of Saxe hath commanded his Ambassador to return, if a very speedy course be not taken to expedite the Treaty, one way or other. That the Ambassadors of Mentz have no Commission nor Instructions to declare any thing for the Bergstrait, which is remitted to the Chapter to resolve, which may be done in 2 or 3 Months, according as the French procede or retire from their Borders. That vnles the Elector of Mentz doe declare a Refutation, Buaue will not defend to any particular offer. Sir Thomas is resolved, hereupon, to send a preparative of Farewell to the Mediators; and to resent the Abuse by Letter to Count Trautmanndorf. That he will govern himself according to what such an Intimation may draw from them; and if they will be content thus to let him goe, he will retire to Nuremberg and there attend His Majesties Orders. Lastly, that he entertaine the offered seperate Treaty with the Duke of Buaue, and thereby make a full tryall of his Intentions.

23. To Count Trautmanndorf, in Italian, 21 April 1642. 12. b.

The occasion of this, is intimated in the Abstract of the last.

24. Sir Thomas's Latin Letter to the Mediators; complaining of the ill usage they all had received by the Delay of the Emperors Answer so often promised; thanking them for their good Offices; and partly taking leave of them. But in the Margin, he hath written these words, "This deferred to be sent vpon arrival of an Express from England; & new Promise of the whole answer."

25. To the King 26 April, 1642. 13. b.

In Answer to one he had received from His Majesty, wherein He had shewn His gracious acceptance of Sir Thomas's Services.

26. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 26 April 1642. 14. That Count Trautmanndorf had sent him an Answer to His Letter, wherein he promised a pre'ter Resolution from the Emperor to the whole Restitution. He afterwards enters into a long deliberation upon the purport of some Letters received by the Prince Palatine Ministers from their Master; whereby it was gessed that his Majesties pleasure was that that Prince should accept of the Lower Palatinate; with a Salvo jure to the Upper Palatinate; & observe a Neutralitie in the present War in the Empire. Sir Thomas sheweth the Reasons of his dislike to such a Motion; and that it is better, in the present conjuncture, to wait the Emperors freely-promised Resolution; to gain time by staying for Issue of the approaching Campaign; or to break off the Treatie in expectation of a more favorable Opportunity.

27. To the Prince Elector 27 April 1642. 15.

Referring Him to Mr. Secretary Nicholas for His Opinion of the Motion abovementioned. That His Highnesses Ministers & himself had agreed to prosecute the Treaty for the whole Lands; and an immediate alternative; & then if the answer to the generall shall be such as his private information whispereth, he shall not be able to beare it, but with just Indignation will breake-off, & venture His Majesties displeasure in coming away without order: for by so doing, he shall leave His Highnesses Cause entyre for a better occasion; & be justfied by the Iniquity of their Conditions.

28. Relation of a Conference betweene the Ambassadors Mediator & Sir Thomas, vpon their presentation of the long expected Declarations. 15. b. (29 April 1642.)

It sheweth that then the Ambassadors of Denmarke & Mentz, as Directors of the Mediation, came to Him, & presented him with foure Papers, being the severall answers & declarations of the Interessed & Possessors of the two Palatinats. The first in the name of the Emperor, for himselfe; the King of Spayne; the Duke of Bavare; and the Archduchess of Inspruck, as Tutrels to the Heyres of Leopold. The Second from the Elector of Mentz, concerning the Bergtraet. The third from the Bishop of Worms. The Fourth from the Landgrave of Darmstadt.

29. Sir Thomas's Answer to the Mediators thereupon; in Latin. 30 April, 1642. 16.

The Exordium, and divers of the Expreffions are taken from that abovementioned at no. 24. but what our King did resolutely insit upon, may be seen by the words following. "Placebit itaq; Excell^{en}ti, & Ill^{ust}. Domⁱⁿⁱ vestris cerò scire, nullam aliam Palatinatus Inferioris restitutionem, nisi integram, cum omnibus Juribus, Membris & Privilegiis, tam Politicis quam Ecclesiasticis, in eo Statu, ac Conditione, uti a Principibus Electoribus Palatinis antiquitus, et specialiter anno 1618. possidebantur, absque ulla Limitatione, ac Diminutione, vel Jurisdictionis, vel Possessionis, sicut omnes alij Electores & Principes, vel vi Legum, et Constitutionum Imperialium, vel Jure proprio in ditionibus suis, jisdem gaudent et possident, a Nobis acceptam iri. Quod ad Dignitatem Electoralem, & Palatinatum Superiorem attinet, Excell^{en}ti, & Ill^{ust}. Domⁱⁿⁱ vestris, et universo Orbi Christiano declaro, Seren^{iss}. Regem meum de accommodatione aqua et honesta tractare, in animo habuisse: sed vel Terras emere, vel de alia alternativa, nisi immediatâ & integrâ, quicquam audire nolle." This Sir Thomas opposed as an answer to the four Papers brought by them, which being obscurely or craftily worded, & so as to beget many inconveniences, he would no farther medle with.

30. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 3 May 1642. 16. b.

That He cannot thinke of the Papers aforesaid, nor mention them, without Indignation, and breaking out into Passion: For never was any thing proposed so vnjust, so insolent, & so dishonourable. Nor can he make any other Judgment, but that by longer Stay, he shall multiply the Occasion of more Scorne & Abuse. And he is the more amazed, because their Condition was never so low, almost desperage. He giveth the Sum of a Conference he lately had with Mr. Bidenback the Danes Ambassador, in the presence of the Prince Elector Palatinus Ministers, and the Answer he gave to the Questions asked by that Mediator. His Judgement (i. e. Sr. Thomas's) is, that nothing will be offered or asked, that shall be, in any proportion, equall, or just, or possible. So that he resolveth to take his Leave of the Emperor in fayre termes, without breach of the Treaty absolutely, but to suspend it to another tyme & place, and to a better Conjunction; such as shal be agreed on betweene their Majesties, it both shall like of it.

31. To the Prince Elector. 3 May 1642. 17. b.

That there is a necessity for him to come off, upon the Iniquity of the Declarations so long expected; & rather to preserve His Highnesses Rights & Title entyre, then to weaken them by offering to accept that which shall not, vpon any termes of honor be obtained. Yet he purposeth not to breake the Treaty (wherein some of the Mediators are our Opposites, and not only mock, but betray us) but to part vpon fayre termes, and to suspend it to some other place, & a fitter Conjunction.

32. To the Queene of Bohemia. 4 May, 1642. 18.

That after ten Moneths attendance, expectation, & promises; the Declarations of the Emperor & the others interessed, were delivered; being so absurd, vnjust, dishonourable, & impossible, that they deserved none answer. That he will preserve, in integrity the justice of the Prince Electors cause, & leave it no worle than he found it; but so much better, in that he hath drawn from them a Confession, that he is restorable; and that it is fit to doe him Justice; & that they have declared a will to treat even for the whole; but that the only hinderance hath bene, not in the Equity of the Cause, but in the Iniquity & Covetousnes of their Offers & Demands.

33. To Sir William Boswell. 4 May, 1642. ibid.

Touching the Declarations he had received; of which he thought those of Mentz, Wormes, & Darmstadt worthy of no Reply. For the Ambassadors of Mentz nothing, in theirs, but they had no formal Order from their Prince, but that they did collect out of some Circumstances, that he would be content to pay the money for which the Bergtraet had bene engaged. The pretension of the Bishop of Wormes is but a quarrell pickt, to embroyle the Cause with the Church, that Conscience might be pretended, to countenance Injury. The Deputie of Darmstatts long Narration was but Rayling, Scandall, & Folly; yet the Conclusion though sweeter, was ridiculous, vizt, that he would, for Love of Peace surrender de facto; upon condition, that he might haue Security to receiue back the same Lands in Feudo. He knoweth not what the Duke of Bavare will doe, the Emperor having the point of answering for him; so that he is not likely to abate to vs, nor treat vpon lower termes, than he hath agreed to the Emperor. The cause of this Change is supposed, this, that he hath secured his feares by some secret accord with the French: into which, it is suspected, he doth endeavour to draw his brother of Cullen, & the Elector of Mentz, now in this their assembly. In summe the whole Offer, & every part thereof is so unworthy, vnjust, insolent, & dishonourable, that he is resolved not to treat farther vpon it. That the Mediators hope to procure more moderate or tollerable Conditions to be proposed, which he will be ready to receive, to the last hower of his stay: but he will doe no more; supposing he can neuer come-off with more shewe of Honour, then vpon the Iniquity of their most vnequall & impossible Offers & Demands.

34. To the Prince Elector. 10 May, 1642. 18. b.

That the Design of the Imperial Court was that England should both enter into a League with them for their Assistance, that is for our King to raise & maintain, at the least, 10,000 Men for them (which he was then unable to do) and that the Parliament should be Security for the Kings performing his Covenant; and further, that his Majesty should pay a great Sum of Money, at the least, 2 or 300,000. to the Duke of Bavare. He thinks therefore, rather than confesse our weaknes, & take the Breach upon our selves, it would be best to hold them to a declaration of a full Restitution, which they will never yield to, and then to separate upon the Iniquity & Balenes of their Offers & Demands.

Num. 1901.
